FIREMEN STILL ON THE HUSTLE!

Grass and Woods Fires Make Fire Record of Week as Large as Previous Weeks. Fire Laddies Suffer in Cold First of the Week.

In spite of being shown what carelessness with ashes, matches etc., will create in the way of an expensive fire record, the people in this section keep right on having bon fires, grass fires and the like, let the fires get beyond their control and then, call a Combination to put out the blaze. It is about time Weymouthites used more caution during these dry times and it is a duty of every citizen in this town to make special effort to keep the fire record of our town down to a lower figure than has been the case during the past three weeks. The record in town the past seven days, follows:

WARD 1.

Friday, March 26, 7.35 P. M., grass fire Green, alarm from box 17.
Sat., March 27, at 6.45 P. M., Combination 1 made a quick seven minutes run to box 28 in East Weymouth.
Mon., March 29, 2.55 P. M., still, grass.
Tues., March 30, at 8.10 phone call to cover fire on Randall avenue, East Weymouth, Comb. 2 being out.
Same day, still at 4.10 grass on Sherwood road.
Wed., March 31, at 10.45 A. M. grass at Great Hill.
Same day, at 11.55, grass and rubbish at Weymouth Heights. Still alarm.

WARD 2.

Thurs., March 25, 10.10 A. M. still, woods on Middle street near residence of Horace Randall.
Same day, 11.30, woods on Middle street.
4.40 P. M., phone call, woods on Essex street.
11.30 P. M., responded to box 37 in Weymouth, making the run in extra fast time.
March 26, Friday, 4.20, still, woods on Essex street, near Hunt's fireworks plant.
7.40 P. M., box 17 in Ward 1, woods on Green street.
8.25 phone call, grass on Madison street Ward 2.
Saturday, March 27, 4.45, still, on a phone call, responded for grass fire on Randolph street, South Weymouth, the Ward 5 truck being out fighting the same fire from another side.
6.40 P. M. While at the South Weymouth fire alarm from box 28 came in, and the Ward 2 boys climbed aboard the Combination and raced back to Ward 2, where a lively blaze was discovered in the barn of G. Zallence on Shawmut street. The fire had gained such headway before the firemen arrived that it was impossible to save the structure. The building and its contents of considerable lumber were a total loss.
Sunday, March 28, 7, phone call, woods at Hockley.
9.15, still, called the Combination to put out a fire in a pile of sleepers at 345 Middle street. When the firemen arrived, sparks were blowing directly on to a dwelling house. The boys made short work of the blaze.

After the usual business session of the Chapter the regent, Mrs. Crane, introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. Charles Chase of Wollaston, who read a charming paper on old time gardens. From the settlement of the country the garden played an important part in the lives of the pioneer mothers. The garden on the Van Courtlandt estate, just out of New York City, although over two hundred years old, still retains its original shape and has still some of the old shrubs and vines planted by its first owners. The ancient peonies of Portsmouth, N. H., gardens were described and Mrs. Chase also gave an interesting account of the wonderful historical pageant given last year in her native town, Machias, Me., where there were eight hundred participants. IN OUR TOWN.

Is your Easter hat all ready?

In years past we have ridden on open cars during the third week of March, but who wanted to ride in an open trolley Friday, Saturday or Sunday of the past week? Br-r-r!

Irving Nightingale clerk at Bates and Humphrey's grocery store has entered the Panama-Pacific exposition trip contest being conducted by a Boston newspaper. We hope you win "Night".

Baseball and marbles have been having their innings in town this week, while the youngsters are having vacations. Rather cold the first of the vacation for much out-door stuff however.

The concert and drill of Delphi Lodge K. of P. last Friday night was a gala time and the drill was especially attractive.

Who wants to be a dog in Ward 5, these days?

Now that Hon. Albert P. Worthen has once more accepted the position as town council, the townspeople may rest assured that this town will be ably looked after in matters pertaining to law, as it certainly has been in the past.

What's doing in regard to Clean Up week this year? Come on committee get started early this year and let's have even better a result than last year.

High School Notes.

The final touches are being administered the debating squad by the teachers interested in that work. The boys all have the arguments and now they are paying strict attention to form. A large crowd expects to accompany them to Quincy when they debate there on April 7th. For the contest with Brockton, on the evening of the ninth, appropriate medals are being prepared for presentation to the winners.

A party given by the Junior Math. class (in honor of the Junior Math. class) was held in the gymnasium recently. Games were enjoyed and a repast partaken of.

The committee in charge of this year's parties for the graduation class, consists of: Miss Mary Allen, Miss Marjorie Keith, Edward Bates, Cornelius Condrick and Almon Dean. On the class picture committee are: Leonard Kelly, Kenneth Martin and Ralph Talbot. The class voted to give the usual play preceding the reception.

The girls who are in charge of the Athletic Association dance are pushing things along in fine style. Most of the credit for the enthusiasm and interest thus far shown belongs to undergraduates entirely. Tickets are now on sale.

After a meeting of the faculty last week, the graduation honor of Valedictorian was awarded to Miss Olive D. Sylvester, of East Weymouth and the honor of Salutatorian was awarded to Miss Avis Loud of South Weymouth. Miss Sylvester will properly graduate with the highest honors in the class in regard to school work. Miss Loud besides being Salutatorian, is also treasurer of her class.

A class ode by Frank Vender, with verses by Ralph Talbot, is being copyrighted. The regular school song has been set to instrumental music and the orchestra is playing it. Work on the music for graduation has begun and that's why Mr. "Jim" Calderwood is walking around with a smile on his face.

Fatal Accident.

Last Sunday afternoon in South Weymouth their occurred one of the saddest accidents this town has had for a long time, when Elmer Marble, the five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Marble of Main Street, was run into and fatally injured by an auto, owned and operated by Arthur E. McGilvray of Quincy. The accident happened directly in front of the boys home.

Dr. Granger was summoned and on his arrival found the little fellow was suffering from fractures of the skull, left leg and arm. He at once ordered the child's removal to the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, where an operation was performed by Dr. Simmons, but the boy never rallied and passed away Sunday evening at 10 P. M. The remains were removed to his home and services were held there last Wednesday afternoon, Rev. W. W. Rose officiating. Burial was at the Pond Plain cemetery. The authorities are going to hold an inquest and Mr. McGilvray has been held for examination.

CHAPTER I.

The House of Mystery.

A high and narrow gate of carefully joined boards, standing ajar in a fence of the same construction! What is there in this to rouse a whole neighborhood and collect before it a group of eager, anxious, hesitating people?

This is Judge Ostrander's place, and anyone who knows Shelby or the gossip of its suburbs knows that this house of his has not opened its doors to any outsider, man or woman, for over a dozen years; nor have his gates been seen in all that time to gape at anyone's instance or to stand unclosed to public intrusion. The seclusion sought was absolute. The men and women who passed and repassed this corner many times a day were as ignorant as the townspeople in general of what lay behind the gray, monotonous exterior of the weatherbeaten boards they so frequently brushed against. The house was there, of course—they all knew the house, or did once—but there were rumors of another fence, a second barrier, standing a few feet inside the first and similar to it in all respects, even to the gates which corresponded exactly with these outer and visible ones and probably were just as fully provided with bolts and bars.

And now! in the freshness of this summer morning, without warning or any seeming reason for the change, the strict habit of years has been broken into and this gate of gates is not only standing unclosed before their eyes, but a woman—a stranger to the town as her very act shows—has been seen to enter there!—to enter, but not come out; which means that she must still be inside, and possibly in the very presence of the judge.

Where is Bela? Why does he allow his errands? But it was Bela, or so they have been told, who left this gate ajar. . . . he, the awe and terror of the town, the enormous, redoubtable, close-mouthed negro, trusted as man is seldom trusted, and faithful to his trust, yes, up to this very hour, as all must acknowledge, in spite of every temptation (and they had been many and alluring) to disclose the secret of this home of which he was not the least interesting factor. What has made him thus suddenly careless, he who has never been careless before? Money? A bribe from the woman who had entered there?

What else was there to believe? There stood the gate with the pebble holding it away from the post; and here stood half the neighborhood, in a fascination which had for its motif the knowledge that they, themselves, if they had courage enough, might go in, just as this woman had gone in, and see—why, what she is seeing now—the unknown, unguessed reason for all these mysteries—the hidden treasure or the hidden sorrow which would explain why he, their first citizen, the respected, even revered judge of their highest court, should make use of such precautions and show such unvarying determination to bar out all comers from the place he called his home.

It had not always been so. Within the memory of many there it had been an abode of cheer and good fellowship. Not a few of the men and women now hesitating before its portals could not recall before its portals taken at the judge's ample board, and of evenings spent in animated conversation in the great room where he kept his books and did his writing.

But that was before his son left him in so unaccountable a manner; before—yes, all were agreed on this point—before that other bitter ordeal of his middle age, the trial and condemnation of the man who had waylaid and murdered his best friend.

Though the effect of these combined sorrows had not seemed to be immediate (one month had seen both); though a half-year had elapsed before all sociability was lost in extreme self-absorption, and a full one before he took down the picket fence which had hitherto been considered a sufficient protection to his simple grounds, and put up these boards which had so completely isolated him from the rest of the world, it was evident enough to the friends who recalled his look and step as he walked the streets with Algernon Etheridge on one side and his brilliant, ever-successful son on the other, that the change now observable in him was due to the violent sundering of these two ties. Grief slowly settled into confirmed melancholy, and melancholy into eccentricities.

Judge Ostrander was a recluse of the most uncompromising type; but he was such for only half his time. From ten in the morning till five in the afternoon, he came and went like any other citizen, fulfilling his judicial duties with the same scrupulous care as formerly and with more affability. Indeed, he showed at times, and often when it was least expected, a mellowness of temper quite foreign to him in his early days. The admiration awakened by his fine appearance on the bench was never marred now by those quick and rasping tones of an easily disturbed temper which had given edge to his invective when he stood as pleader in the very court where he now presided as judge. But away from the bench, once quit of the courthouse and the town, the man who attempted to accost him on his way to his carriage or sought to waylay him at his own gate had need of all his courage to sustain the rebuff his presumption incurred.

The son, a man of great ability who was making his way as a journalist in another city, had no explanation to give of his father's peculiarities. Though he never came to Shelby—the rupture between the two, if rupture it were, seeming to be complete—there were many who had visited him in his own place of business and put such questions concerning the judge and his eccentric manner of living as must have provoked response had the young man had any response to give. But he appeared to have none. Either he was as ignorant as themselves of the causes which had led to his father's habit of extreme isolation, or he showed powers of dissimulation hardly in accordance with the other traits of his admirable character.

All of which closed inquiry in this direction, but left the maw of curiosity unsatisfied. And unsatisfied it had remained up to this hour, when through accident—or was it treachery—the barrier to knowledge was down and the question of years seemed at last upon the point of being answered.

Meantime a fussy, talkative man was endeavoring to impress the rapidly collecting crowd with the advisability of their entering all together and approaching the judge in a body.

"We can say that we felt it to be our duty to follow this woman in," he argued. "Didn't you say she had a child with her, Miss Weeks?"

"Yes, and—"

"Tell us the whole story, Miss Weeks. Some of us haven't heard it. Then if it seems our duty as his neighbors and well wishers to go in, we'll just go in."

The little woman towards whom this appeal was directed immediately began her ingenious tale. She was sitting in her front window sewing. Everybody knew that this window faced the end of the lane in which they were then standing. She could see out without being very plainly seen herself; she had her eyes on this gate when Bela, prompt to the minute as he always was, issued forth on his morning walk to town for the day's supplies.

Always exact, always in a hurry—knowing as he did that the judge would not leave for court till his return—he had never, in all the eight years she had been sitting in that window making buttonholes, shown any hesitation in his methodical relocking of the gate and subsequent quick departure.

But this morning he had lingered in the gateway peering to right and left in a way so unlike himself that the moment he was out of sight she could not help running down the lane to see if her suspicions were correct. And they were. Not only had he left the gate unclosed, but he had done so purposely.

She had about decided that it was only proper for her to enter and make sure that all was right with the judge when she saw a woman looking at her from the road—a woman all in purple even to the veil which hid her features. A little child was with her, and the two must have stepped into the road from behind some of the bushes, as neither of them were anywhere in sight when she herself came running down from the corner.

It was enough to startle anyone, ex-ceptably as the woman did not speak, but stood silent and watching her through a veil the like of which was not to be found in Shelby, and which in itself was enough to rouse a decent woman's suspicions.

She was so amazed at this that she stepped back and attempted to address the stranger. But before she had got much further than a timid and hesitating "Madam," the woman, roused into action possibly by her interference, made a quick gesture suggestive of impatience it not rebuke, and moving resolutely towards the gate Miss Weeks had so indiscreetly left unguarded, pushed it open and disappeared within, dragging the little child after her.

"And she's in there still?"

"I haven't seen her come out."

"Then what's the matter with you?" called a burly, high-strung woman, stepping hastily from the group and laying her hand upon the gate still standing temptingly ajar. "It's no time for nonsense," she announced, as she pushed it open and stepped promptly in, followed by the motley group of men and women who, if they lacked courage to lead, certainly showed willingness to follow.

One glance and they felt their courage rewarded.

Rumor, which so often deceives, proved itself correct in this case. A second gate confronted them exactly like the first, even to the point of being held open by a pebble placed against the post. And a second fence, also built upon the same pattern as the one they had just passed through; the two forming a double barrier as mysterious to contemplate in fact as it had ever been in fancy. In gazing at these fences and the canyonlike walk stretching between them the band of curious invaders forgot their prime errand for a moment.

But whatever the mysteries of the place, a greater one awaited them beyond, and presently realized. In this, they burst with one accord through the second gate into the mass of greenery which, either from neglect or intention, masked this side of the Ostrander homestead.

Never before had they beheld so lawless a growth or a house so completely lost amid vines and shrubbery. Two solemn fir trees, which were all that remained of an old-time and famous group, kept guard over the untended lawn, adding their suggestion of age and brooding melancholy to the air of desolation infesting the whole place. One might be approaching a tomb, for all token that appeared of human presence. Even sound was lacking. It was like a painted scene—a dream of human extinction.

Instinctively the women faltered and the men drew back; then the very silence caused a sudden reaction, and with one simultaneous rush they made for the only entrance they saw and burst without further ceremony into the house.

A common hall and common furnishings confronted them. More they could not gather; for blocked as the doorway was by their crowding figures, the little light which sifted in over their heads was not enough to show up details. Halting with one accord in what seemed to be the middle of the uncarpeted floor, they waited for some indication of a clear passage-way to the great room where the judge would undoubtedly be found in conversation with his strange guest.

The woman of the hard voice and self-satisfied demeanor who had started them upon this adventure was still ahead; but even she quailed when she found herself face to face with a heavy curtain instead of a yielding door.

"Look at this!" she whispered, pushing the curtain inward with a quick movement.

Sunshine! A stream of it, dazzling them almost to blindness and sending them, one and all, pell-mell back upon each other! However dismal the approach, here all was in brilliant light with every evidence before them of busy life.

The room was not only filled, but crammed, with furniture. This was the first thing they noticed; then, as their blinking eyes became accustomed to the glare and to the unexpected confusion of tables and chairs and screens and standing receptacles for books and pamphlets and boxes labeled and padlocked, they beheld something else.

The judge was there, but in what a condition!

From the end of the forty-foot room his seated figure confronted them, silent, staring and unmoving. With clenched fingers gripping the arms of his great chair and head held forward, he looked like one frozen at the moment of doom, such the expression of features usually so noble, and now almost unrecognizable were it not for the snow white of his locks and his unmistakable brow.

Frozen! Not an eyelash quivered, nor was there any perceptible move-

Weymouth Gazette AND TRANSCRIPT

FRIDAY, APRIL 2, 1915

Don't talk war, talk business! You won't have to argue so long and so unsatisfactorily then.

Providence helps those who help themselves and it is the general opinion that it is about time to help ourselves with the watering cart or oil wagon.

All that Mayor Curley of Boston needs now to carry out his plan of dropping the names of Charlestown, East Boston, Dorchester, etc., and calling the entire district Boston, is to get the majority of the Boston people to think as he does.

Next Sunday is Easter Sunday! Don't forget, one and all, that this will be a grand Sunday to start in going to church. Special programs in all the churches should get large congregations out next Sunday, but you are wanted every Sunday, so get the habit and then KEEP it.

Notwithstanding the extreme cold weather the "Build Now" movement has taken on a somewhat definite form within a short while. There are now 18 new houses in process of construction in town and we hear of several others which will start as soon as weather conditions get a little more favorable.

Chairman Hull of the committee on Ways and Means thinks the State tax this year will jump over the $8,750,000 to $10,000,000 and as we have already made arrangements to send the Governor and his staff to the San Francisco Panama Celebration would it not be a good idea for the Legislature to call a halt on the bill to send a delegation of its members on junket to the same unless they pay the expenses out of their own salaries or some of their other personal funds.

In its recent case at the legislative hearing, the Ward Baking Co. showed clearly enough and by expert testimony, that the amount of calcium sulphate, otherwise known as plaster paris, used in the dough is but 66-1000 of one percent of the whole and that even that tiny bit is practically obliterated in the process of making. The people of the country are entitled to the best bread obtainable and it is certainly reassuring to know that one of the largest baking concerns in this section is not transgressing this right.

We are glad to note that several towns have taken up the school garden question and mapping out work along that line for the coming season. While we may not be able to give every school in town a farm there is land enough, and to be had, to give every school a good garden plot and include garden culture in our industrial education. As the Weymouth Agricultural and Industrial society has each year an exhibit of the industrial work of boys and girls, why not at the next Fair have an exhibit of garden work of our schools.

On April 9, 1905 General Lee surrendered to General U. S. Grant, drawing to a close the Great Civil War. It is fitting and proper for all of our citizens to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of that surrender on Friday, April 9, by heeding the request of the G. A. R. and displaying our flags on that day, in honor of the brave men, but few of whom are now left, who so gallantly and bravely fought to bring about that surrender, that our country might live. Remember, next Friday is the day, heed the request as those brave soldiers obeyed orders, and put out "Old Glory" on April 9.

The present European war in its robbery and blunder of non-combatant and unprotected people in the destruction of merchant marine engaged in legitimate traffic, in bombarding from the sky, towns and cities unfortified and unprotected, is without a parallel of inhumanity either in ancient or modern warfare. Inhuman and barbaric as the war has been on the one side it has, however, developed a humane side which is also unparalleled. The great American heart of sympathy has been deeply moved in behalf of the innocent sufferers and untold wealth has been poured out for their relief. Over $26,000,000 has already gone to the Belgian relief.

Whether the "jitney bus" will ever be a success in eastern Massachusetts remains to be seen, but the "jits" are making several railroad men do a lot of hard thinking. In Brockton a dozen or so licenses for "jitneys" have been issued and we hear that the railroad union in that section put up quite an argument against the new mode of every day travel. Among other things the street car men claim that the jitney bus will do, is to force conductors and motormen out of work. However most of the jitney busses thus far in this section are either Ford or other small cars, and we hardly believe that the Bay State road will have to suspend operations for some time yet, on their account.

Massachusetts is an investing community, yet it does not dare to put its money into anything except bonds. Your statute books are filled with laws that are constantly being amended or changed, so that nobody knows where he stands, and the business man does not know what new law is going to be passed." Lieut. Gov. Cushing, alas! is true and instead of improving year after year the situation grows more and more complicated by reason of restrictions placed on manufacturers and new tax legislation with a prospect before us of new tax laws which make the situation still more complex and expensive to towns and cities in the matter of assessing and collecting taxes. There are also several bills pending which if passed will have a tendency to restrict new business enterprises and possibly send some which are already established out of the state.

Let us go slowly in adopting new forms of town government. We have many critics of the present state of affairs and undoubtedly improvements can be made in some of our departments but several of the larger towns which have rushed in city forms and customs are discovering that it costs high to be a city and now it begins to develop that the Dayton or Norwood form is not quite as rosy as pictured. Taxes in Norwood dropped from $28.50 to $8.50 and the millenium had come but the pendulum immediately swung the other way and went up to $11.10. The next swing of the pendulum makes another rise with the limit not yet stated. Increased valuation is a good thing when the value is really in evidence and is equitable adjusted. A change of government either in merchantile, manufacturing or municipal affairs is in order when the existing form fails to accomplish the object for which it was organized.

We are more thankful for the things we have not said than for what we have said, for the following reasons which we quote from the Nantucket Inquirer "Editing a newspaper in our respects is a good deal like preaching. The gospel truth must be presented in the form of generalities or some fellow will get hit and howl, says a recent writer. Few persons like truth, even in homeopathic doses, if it hits them. But while preachers and editors are criticised for what they do say, for no one thinks of giving them credit for what they do not say. Yet what they keep to themselves constitutes the major portion of what they know about people.

Very many people harbor the belief that newspapers are eager to publish derogatory things. It's a mistake. There isn't a newspaper man that could not spring a sensation in the community at any time by merely telling what he knows. There is not a newspaper that does not keep under the lock of secrecy scores of derogatory things which never meet the public eye or reach the public ear. Deciding what not to print is the most trouble, some part of newspaper work. How many good stories are suppressed for innocent relatives and for the public good nobody outside of a newspaper office has any idea of."

How Paint.

The first cost of a good job of paint—Devoc—is $50 (average size, of course). The first cost of a second or third or fourth rate job, $55 to $100.

The wear is likewise. The better you paint, of course, the longer it wears. And the more you pay for your job, the shorter it wears!

Devoc is one of a dozen good paints. There are hundreds of bad ones. As likely as not, Devoc is the only good one in this town.

Winning the Multitude's Ear.
 Does not experience prove that influence over men's minds is gained only by offering them the difficult, nay, the impossible, to perform or believe? Offer only things that are reasonable and all the world will answer, "We knew as much as that." But enjoin things that are hard, impracticable; paint the Deity as ever armed with thunder; make blood run before altars, and you will win the multitude's ear and everybody will say of you: "He must be right or he would not so boldly proclaim things so marvelous."—Exchange.

ment in his sturdy chest. His eyes were on their eyes, but he saw no one; and down upon his head and over his whole form the sunshine poured from a large window let into the ceiling directly above him, lighting up the strained and unnatural aspect of his remarkable countenance and bringing into sharp prominence the commonplace objects cluttering the table at his elbow.

Inarticulate murmurs swelled and ebbed, now louder, now more faintly as the crowd surged forward or drew back, appalled by that moveless, breathless, awe-compelling figure.

A breathless moment; then the horrified murmur rose here, there and everywhere: "He's dead! He's dead!" when quietly and convincingly a bluff masculine voice spoke from the doorway behind them:

"You needn't be frightened. In an hour or a half-hour he will be the same as ever. My aunt has such attacks. They call it catalepsy."

Imperceptibly the crowd dwindled; the most discreet among them quite content to leave the house; a few, and these the most thoughtful, devoted all their energies to a serious quest for the woman and child whom they continued to believe to be in hiding somewhere inside the walls she had so audaciously entered.

The small party decided to start their search by a hasty inspection of the front hall, when a shout and scramble in the passages beyond cut short their intent and held them panting and eager, each to his place.

Frightened, they drew their gaze from the rigid figure in the chair, and, with bated breaths and rapidly paling cheeks, listened to the distant murmur on the far-off road.

What was it? They could not guess, and it was with unbounded relief they pressed forward to greet the shadowy form of a young girl hurrying toward them from the rear, with news in her face. She spoke quickly.

"The woman is gone. Harry Doane saw her sliding out behind us just after we came in. She was hiding in some of the corners here and slipped out by the kitchen way when we were not looking. He has gone to see—"

Breathlessly Miss Weeks cut the girl's story short; breathlessly she rushed to the nearest window, and, helped by willing hands, succeeded in forcing it up and tearing a note in the vines, through which they one and all looked out in eager excitement.

A motley throng of people were crowding in through the double gateway. Some one was in their grasp. It was Bela! Bela, the giant! Bela, the terror of the town, no longer a terror but a struggling, half-fainting figure, fighting to free himself and get in advance, despite some awful aunt which blanched his coat black features and made his great limbs falter, while still keeping his own and making his way, by sheer force of will, up the path and the two steps of entrance—his body alternately sinking back or plunging forward as those in the rear or those in front got the upper hand.

It was an awful and a terrifying sight to little Miss Weeks and, screaming loudly, she left her window and ran into Judge Ostrander's presence, and, gazing wildly about, wormed her way toward a heavily carved screen guarding a distant corner and cowered down behind it.

The gasping, struggling men, the frantic negro, were in the next room now—she could catch the sound of the latter's panting breath rising above the clamor of strange entreaties and excited cries with which the air was full; then a quick, hoarse shout of "Judge! Judge!" rose in the doorway, and she became conscious of the presence of a headlong, rushing force struck midway into silence as the frozen figure of his master flashed upon the negro's eyes—then a growl of concentrated emotion, uttered almost in her ear, and the screen which had been her refuge was violently thrust away from before her and in its place she beheld a terrible being standing over her, in whose eyes, dilating under this fresh surprise, she beheld her doom, even while recognizing that if she must suffer it would be simply as an obstacle to some goal at her back which he must reach—now—before he fell in his blood and died.

What was this goal? As she felt herself lifted, nay, almost hurled aside, she turned to see and found it to be a door before which the devoted Bela had now thrown himself, guarding it with every inch of his powerful but rapidly sinking body, and chattering defiance with his bloodless, quivering lips—a figure terrible in anger, sublime in purpose, and piteous in its failing energies.

"Back! all of you!" he cried, and stopped, clutching at the door casing on either side to hold himself erect. "You cannot come in here. This is the Judge's—"

Not even his iron resolve or once unequalled physique could stand the sapping of the terrible gash which disfigured his forehead. He had been run over by an automobile in a moment of blind abstraction, and his hurt was mortal. Already his head, held erect by the passion of his purpose, was sinking on his breast; already his glazing eye was losing its power of concentration, when with a final rally of his decaying strength he started erect again and cried out in terrible appeal:

"I have disobeyed the judge, and, as you see, it has killed him. Do not make me guilty of giving away his secret. Swear that you will leave this door unopened; swear that no one but his son shall ever turn this lock; or I will haunt you, I, Bela, man by man, till you sink in terror to your graves. Swear!"

His head fell forward again and in that intense moment of complete silence they could hear the splash of his lifeblood as it dropped from his forehead or to the polished boards beneath; then he threw up his arms and fell in a heap to the floor.

"Dead!" broke from little Miss Weeks as she flung herself down in reckless abandonment at his side. She had never known an agitation beyond some fluttering woman's hope she had stifled as soon as born, and now she knelt in blood.

A solemn hush, then a mighty sigh accumulated emotion swept from lip to lip, and the crowd of later invaders, already abashed if not terrified by the unexpected spectacle of suspended animation which confronted them from the judge's chair, shrank tumultuously back as little Miss Weeks advanced upon them, holding out her meager arms in late defense of the secret to save which she had just seen a man die.

"Let us do as he wished," she prayed. "I feel myself much to blame. What right had we to come in here?"

No one in authority was present; no one representing the law, not even a doctor; only haphazard persons from the street and a few neighbors who had not been on social terms with the judge for years and never expected to be so again. His secret!—always a source of wonder to every inhabitant of Shelby, but lifted now into a matter of vital importance by the events of the day and the tragic death of the negro! Were they to miss its solution, when only a door lay between it and them—a door which they might not even have to unlock? Miss Weeks was about to utter an impassioned appeal to their honor, when the current of her and their thoughts was changed by a sudden sense of some strange new influence at work in the room, and turning, they beheld the judge upon his feet, his mind awakened, but his eyes still fixed—an awesome figure; some thought more awesome than before.

Death was present with them—he saw it not. Strangers were making havoc with his solitude—he was as oblivious of their presence as he had been unconscious of it before. His faculties and all his attention were absorbed by the thought which had filled his brain when the cogs of that subtle mechanism had slipped and his faculties paused inert.

"Where is the woman?" he cried. It was a cry of fear; not of mastery.

FARM

POULTRY
Much Depends Upon Age, Breed, Vigor, Housing and Range Allowed—Hen Must Be the Gauge.

RULES FOR FEEDING FOWLS

There can be no hard and fast rules laid down as to the amount to feed fowls except this: feed all they will eat up clean at each meal. Hardly a week passes that the writer is not called on to tell how much grain or mash should be fed per hen per day, writes J. E. Dougherty in Orchard and Farm.

The quantity of feed eaten depends on breed, age, vigor, housing, range allowed, season of the year and many other factors which the ordinary man does not always consider and appreciate. The heavier breeds will eat more than the lighter breeds. Heavier layers will eat more than poor layers. The feeder must study his fowls constantly and regulate the amount fed at each meal in accordance with the appetites of the fowls. A little study and experience will soon enable one to become quite expert in feeding provided he really is interested enough in his task to watch and study his fowls closely.

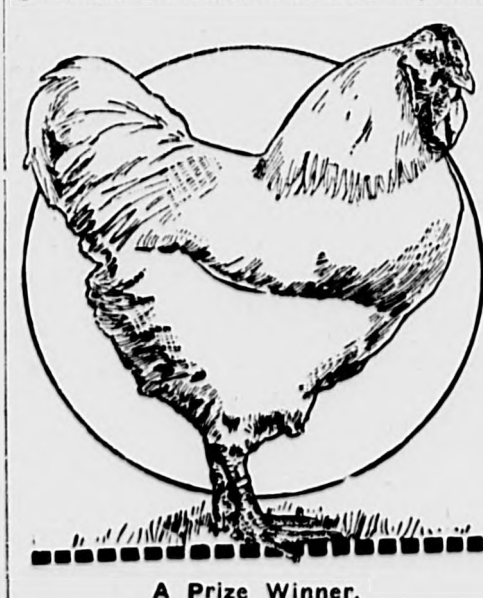

There is a saying among stock men that good breeders are born and not made. Be that as it may, we are sure that anyone with an instinctive love for fowls, a willingness to learn and good common sense can soon develop into a good feeder and a successful poultry man.

It will take, on the average, about seventy-five pounds of feed per year per hen. This amount may vary a little either way depending on the breed, but is a good average figure on which to base calculations as to the cost to feed a hen per year and the approximate amount to feed per day. If a daily feed consumption curve were drawn, we would find that the daily feed eaten would vary during different months, the winter consumption being heavier than that of summer. The hen herself must be the gauge by which to determine the amount fed from day to day.

BEST BREEDS FOR FATTENING

Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds and Orpingtons Will Do Well in a Crate.

The breeds of chickens best adapted for fattening purposes are the Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds and the Orpingtons. All these breeds, or any variety of these, will do well if placed in a fattening crate. They produce meat and lay on fat very economically, and dress out neat, plump and desirable carcasses for table use. The cockerels of any of these breeds, when taken at three and a half to four months of age, will usually gain from a pound to a pound and a half in three weeks' time. As they get older the amount of food required to make a pound gain increases very rapidly and crate fattening will not be very profitable after the birds are six months old. Strong, vigorous and healthy birds will always make better gains than those lacking in vigor and vitality.

The heavier breeds like Cochins, Brahmas and Langshans will not give very satisfactory results when fattened, as they do not stand close confinement as well as the utility breeds, nor will they make as economic gain.

Green Feed Essential.

Green feed must be supplied in some form. If the chicks are cooped on young grass they will help themselves, but if confined in small yards, green feed should be given them. To be easily assimilated, some tender and easily broken green stuff should be furnished, such as finely cut grass from the lawns, lettuce leaves, onion tops, chopped fine, or boiled vegetables.

Secret of Winter Eggs.

If you have not a nice lot of sharp grit on hand for your fowls during the cold and frozen weather, you cannot expect them to make very profitable returns in egg production. Sharp grit to aid digestion, wheat and meat scraps to tone up the appetite, is the secret of getting eggs in winter.

The HOME BEAUTIFUL

Flowers and Shrubby -
Their Care and Cultivation

Daisies Make a Good Growth Indoors.

STARTING OF THE ANNUALS

Many annuals can be started from seed planted now for winter flowering, and with the use of the plants now growing in the garden and young plants raised from cuttings a good display can be obtained for house culture at a very small expense.

It is a good idea to pot the plants sufficiently early so the pots can be plunged in the garden, permitting them to remain there a week or two before taking them into the house.

A good rule is to allow two leaves to remain on cuttings of such plants as geraniums, cutting off the top half of these leaves with a sharp knife.
Any cuttings that die or rot must be immediately removed.

The Rex Begonias are propagated from leaf cuttings, that is, a portion of the leaf cut and stuck in the sand, or the leaves can be spread out flat on the sand and pinned down tight with hairpins or wooden toothpicks.

Keep the cuttings shaded. Another good way to make cuttings is in a small earthen crock without drainage. Fill with sand to within an inch or two of the top. Insert the cuttings and pour in water until the sand is just covered. Keep the sand constantly covered with water and the cuttings will soon root.

When the cuttings are inserted in the sand, the sand should be packed firmly about them with the hands.
Insert the cuttings closely together.
The foliage should be cut back on the cuttings.

Plants growing in the garden, which make fine house plants include:
Fuchsias, begonias, geraniums, petunias, pinks, verbenas, arbutus, chrysanthemums, daisies. Cut the plants back about one-half.

PEONIES

No other herbaceous plant lives so long or produces flowers equal to the peony.

Peonies planted this autumn will flower next season. The middle of September to the middle of October is the best time to plant, preferably the earlier season to permit the plants to make a good root growth before winter sets in. The soil must be rich as the peony is a gross feeder.

Remove the soil to a depth of three feet and fill up the space to the depth of a foot with well rotted cow manure.
Spade the manure in well. If the soil is clayey, mix with it equal parts of sand, leaf and mold and manure for the other half. Fill up the excavation with the prepared soil, rounding it up to the center, which should be six or seven inches above the level of the lawn.

In setting the plants dig a hole from one and a half to two feet deep and two feet wide. Allow a space of three feet in diameter for each plant, placing the crowns three inches below the surface, firming the soil well around the roots. This is best done by the feet of the planter.

Mulch well before cold weather with coarse manure and leaves. In the spring loosen the soil, after removing the mulch, to a depth of five or six inches, care being taken to stir the soil without injuring the crowns of the plants.

Commercial fertilizer strong in potash should be used in the spring after the bed is started.

SOME FLOWER HINTS

Set out Iris in September and they will flower next summer.

Hellebore dusted on cabbage plants while they are wet with dew will keep the cabbage worms down.

Late pruning induces a new growth on plants and trees, rendering them susceptible to injury from the winter cold. The time for pruning is during the winter or early spring, before the buds start.

SPORTS IN TOWN.

By J. E. Fabyan.

Batter Up! Yep, boys the season is most here now.

On the vacant lots about town the past week the younger "Braves" and Red Sox have been getting in their Spring training and regular nine inning affairs will be on the list in a few days more.

All ye sports fans, take notice! The Weymouth High school will be represented by one of the best teams, this season and it behooves every one of you, yes, fair sex and all, to loyally support Coach Cosgrove's aggregation. The boys and the popular, untiring coach are working extra hard this spring to get into top form and they deserve the best support in your power to give.

I am asked if the Weymouth A. C. is to have a team this season. I am informed that as yet nothing has been done in the south part of the town about a 1915 nine, but, doubtless when warm weather arrives the Nash's Corner hustlers will get the old bunch together and with new blood, put another fast aggregation in the field.

Going to the opening game in Boston in a couple of weeks? First chance to see the World Champs in action since they won the title.

The Humphrey school basket ball five, champions of the Weymouth Grammar school league, journeyed to Hingham a few evenings ago and met defeat at the hands of the Fearless five of that town, by the score of 24 to 23.

BOWLING.

Captain "Billy" Preston of Team 4 at the C. M. A. is surely hitting the maples lately. Last week he hung three singles of 120, 113 and 112 and copped a three string total of 345. Arthur Cunningham held the high scores previously, but Fred "Sav" Nolan, always a fast man at the finish, says he will trim Preston's score yet.

The C. M. A. boys handed an awful trimming to the Nehoiden club of Weymouth on C. M. A. alleys Sat. night. The boys from Weymouth had an off night only rolling 1358 while the week previous in a match against the Newtownites they rolled 1575. The score:

Arthur Cunningham's quintet came through in first class style at the C. M. A. last Monday by defeating Team 6, Fred Drinkwater capt. two strings and total, thus taking three out of four points. Arthur Cunningham was high man of the evening with 277, while Fred Bumpus was high in the single records with 106. The totals in strings follows: Team 2, 418, 408, 411-1237; Team 6, 387, 381, 456-1224.

At the Norfolk Club on Monday night, Team 2, won from Team 5, Hall captain, Loud's aggregation capturing all the points with a pin-fall of 1403 to 1314 for Hall's squad. Loud was high man with a single of 123, and three strings of 328.

BASE BALL.

Manager Arthur Sampson of the High School announces the following complete baseball schedule for this season. The schedule includes all the fast team in this section and liberal support is asked for by the faculty and student body. The schedule:

Tues. April 13, Hingham.

With the first home game next Wednesday, the High School team is fast getting into shape. Of the pitchers there is no doubt but that Callahan leads the other candidates by quite a margin yet O'Rourke, Dwyer and Deane are showing fine form. "Toby" Fraher and Eddie Condrick are stopping everything behind the bat. Fraher is in a class by himself in his position he without doubt being one of fastest school-boy catchers in New England. Condrick is showing class also.

At first base there are several good men out, with the honors evenly divided between Vender and Whittle.
At second Capt. Gorman is the whole

Concert, Drill and Dance

A large gathering attended the concert, drill and dance of Delphi Lodge K. of P. in Bates' opera house last Friday night. A reception was the opening feature followed by a concert by Shaw's orchestra, a decidedly pleasing drill by members of the lodge with George Ludden, leader, and dancing until 1 o'clock. The event is marked as one of the most successful in the history of the order.

WEYMOUTH, MASS., FRIDAY, APRIL 9, 1915.

VOL. XLIX. NO. 4.

PRICE FIVE CENTS

A Free Trip For You

The Weymouth Travel Club which will be composed of four Weymouth women and a chaperone will receive a trip embracing New York via Fall River line, the Hudson River by daylight, sight-seeing in Albany, Buffalo and Niagara Falls, Toronto, Charlotte, a ride down the St. Lawrence River, through the Thousand Islands, a stay in Montreal, shooting the Lachine Rapids, visiting Mt. Royal and many other historic points of interest. Party will return by rail to Boston via the White Mountains known for their unexcelled scenery, along the shores of Lakes Memphremagog and Winnipegosis. The opportunity is one to be grasped NOW.

WHY NOT BE ONE OF THE PARTY?

This paper announces today the organization of the WEYMOUTH GAZETTE Travel Club to be composed of young women of this vicinity to be chosen by readers of this paper.

The trip that will be given is one of the most pleasant the country affords and is educational in the highest degree. Every American likes to travel, and there few who, having once visited the places to be seen by the Travel Club who would not gladly go again. The wonders of this delightful trip are almost inexhaustible. The annual travelers have not seen them all, so this paper has selected this trip for the tour of the Travel Club.

The party will travel in the very best of style with the best of service and at the most desirable season of the year. The entire expense of the trip from the start to the return will be borne by this paper.

You are invited to become a member. There are no good reasons why you should not become a member. The plan is simple and you can do it. The organization of the Travel Club will be accomplished by the contest plan.

A coupon will appear in each issue of this paper beginning today and continuing until the contest is closed. Each ballot, when filled in with the name of a regularly nominated candidate, will count the number of votes printed thereon.

But first of all, the nomination of the candidates must be effected, so on another page you will find a nomination blank which is self-explanatory. Fill in the name of your favorite and send to the WEYMOUTH GAZETTE office at once, as the first list of nominees will be announced next Friday. An early start is a battle half won.

There is no restriction on the number of ballots that may be voted by any one person for a candidate. Votes will also be issued on paid subscriptions in proportion to the length of time subscriptions are paid.

The number of votes issued on each payment with the brief rules and plan governing the conduct of the contest will be found in the space announcement.

Any woman of good character over sixteen years of age, married or single, is eligible to enter the contest. Every candidate must be endorsed by one reputable citizen, who will vouch for her good character.

Candidates may enter their own application and may nominate others of their friends should they so desire. The residence of the candidate determines her district.

It costs nothing, the trips are surely worth the effort. If you once convince your friends of your earnestness you will be surprised to find how loyally they will support you.

And why may not you be one of the party that will take this tour? The opportunity, which is one of a lifetime, is yours for the mere reaching out for and embracing this big offer. All you have to do is to get started.

During the progress of the contest the office will be open on Thursday evening of each week for the accommodation of candidates who may find it impossible to call during the day.

In the event of any needed information just phone Weymouth 145, and ask for the "Contest Man."

There are four districts, and one candidate will be chosen from each district. But, it is the getting started that counts in an event of this sort and friends of prospective candidates should send in the names of the favored ones without delay.

The duration of the trip will be a reality in a very few weeks. It costs nothing to nominate a candidate and places the nominator under no obligation. The office will not divulge the names of those making nominations.

Receipt books will be delivered to any properly nominated candidate and the ways and means to get the most results from well directed efforts will be readily given. Each contestant must have a receipt book. The subscription votes are issued at the office when the money has been reported.

There will be some more valuable prizes offered and won during the life of the contest so it is doubly important that YOUR NOMINATION is in for the first announcement. You need not wait for the nominations to appear before starting after the subscriptions. Just call up the Contest Department and advise us that you are going to take that trip at the expense of this paper and the needed information for your benefit will be forthcoming.

Candidates enter from the district in which they live but may procure subscriptions and votes anywhere.

How to Enter the Campaign

Nominate yourself or a friend today. The plan is simple and easy to understand. Call on the Contest Manager and he will tell you the best way to proceed to get the best results. He will supply you with all the required printed forms and tell you many things that may be to your advantage during the quest for votes.

Get your friends and acquaintances who are not taking the paper to give you a subscription for a year or more. You will note that the larger number of votes are given on new readers, get them. It makes no difference where the subscriber lives as the paper will be sent any place in the United States.

Candidates will receive credit for money turned in by or for them. Clip out the nomination blank today and send in the name of some deserving young woman and then work for her success.

In the table of votes, which appears in the advertisement on another page, will be found the value in votes for the different payments made. It will be a good idea for each interested person to study this table of vote values and to be able to explain to the subscriber the number of votes each payment will bring.

The larger vote is given on new readers so it behooves the workers and their friends to scramble for the new subscribers. Study the vote values.

It's much easier to answer questions than to correct mistakes, so all those who are interested, or hope to interest some one, will kindly get all the necessary information before starting out for the counters that will bring home the trip.

The proposed trip, coming at the recognized vacation season and after the close of the High schools, should appeal very much to students and teachers of the public schools, as well as many others inasmuch as it furnishes an excellent opportunity to enjoy a most pleasing vacation and at no expense. The attractions at all the points chosen for visitation need no elaboration. They are the greatest in the United States from the standpoint of the facilities they afford for combined recreation and education.

This trip should not be compared, in any way, with those cheap advertised excursions that are an annual affair, as the WEYMOUTH GAZETTE has taken much time and effort in preparing a suitable itinerary and desires to make it plain that the very best of everything will be given the young women, who will compose the Travel Club. The Travel Club will be accompanied by a chaperone and shown about the cities visited, in such a manner that the most can be seen in the least space of time. It should also be remembered that this trip will be an all-expense affair, borne by the WEYMOUTH GAZETTE. The trip proffered should be an incentive to any young women desirous of having a vacation trip that she would not ordinarily enjoy. And the half has not been told relative to what is in store for the fortunate ones who secure the honor to be a member of the Travel Club.

Gold Piece for Nomination
The WEYMOUTH GAZETTE will give the first nominator of the candidate securing the largest vote total at the conclusion of the contest a ten-dollar gold piece. A nominator can name as many candidates as may be desired. Send in the name of your favorite at once.

Hornets Did the Work.
Daniel Sapp of Gardenville, Mo., after losing many bees because of the appetite of a bee martin, placed a large hornets' nest over the hives. LAST SUPPER OF SEASON.

Clapp Memorial Association Men's Club Winds Up Successful Season with Large Gathering, Delicious Supper and Fine Address.

With a very good sized audience present, a delicious supper and an extra fine address, the closing monthly meeting of the season of the Men's club connected with the Clapp Memorial association goes on record as one of the most successful in the annals of the club.

Wednesday night's festivities opened at 5.15 when members and their friends gathered about the building and indulged in a social chat with their fellow-men. At 6.45 the company adjourned to the spacious auditorium where a delicious roast beef supper was served by the following waiters: Cornelius Condrick, Arthur Sampson, George Curtin, John Reis, Charles Palmer, Frank Vender, Robert Locke and Vincent Gorman. The repast was prepared by Mr. and Mrs. Hosa Farrer.

At the conclusion of the banquet, chairs were pushed back and after a few introductory remarks, President W. A. Wheaton of the club presented as the speaker of the evening, George H. Nobbs of Hingham, who but recently returned from Mexico.

Mr. Nobbs is indeed an interesting speaker. He gave a very clear and brief history of Mexico, the discovery, and events since, and then gave many amusing, instructive and extremely interesting anecdotes and stories concerning his stay in Mexico.

At the close of his talk Mr. Nobbs was extended a rising vote of thanks by the appreciative audience, who thoroughly enjoyed the address from start to finish. The club next took up the matter of electing officers for the ensuing year, and the following list was selected: President, W. C. Earle; vice president, Henry Hilden; secretary, F. W. Preston; treasurer, William A. Hodges; executive board, W. A. Wheaton, H. R. Drinkwater, W. C. Earle, A. P. Conathan, H. P. Tilden, T. F. Lynch, Willard Holbrook, F. M. Crocker and Norton F. Pratt; supper com., L. E. Jones C. J. Newcomb, Ray Sherman, J. E. Farrer, W. E. Hodges, E. A. Whitmarsh and B. B. Sylvester, A. P. Conathan and H. P. Tilden.

At 9.30 the meeting adjourned until the first Wednesday in October next.

OBITUARY.

Ernest Barrell French.

In last week's issue we were just able to give notice of the death of Everett Burrell French, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. French of Nash's Corner. The well known young man was taken to the Boothby hospital a week ago last Saturday after an attack of appendicitis. He was operated on the same day and appeared to be resting comfortably. Last Thursday change came for the worse and he passed away early Friday morning. He was 18 years of age and a member of the graduating class of 1914 of Weymouth High school. The young man was employed by Dame, Stoddard of Boston. Funeral services were held from his late home last Monday afternoon at 2 P. M. The services were conducted by Rev. Edward Norton of Quincy and Miss Anne Deane of this town sang. The bearers were Marcus Tirrell, Louis Callahan, Harry Burrell and William Griffin, four of his most intimate friends. Burial was at the Fairmount cemetery, East Weymouth.

Mrs. Eugene Smith, Dead.

One of the saddest deaths in town of late years was that of Mrs. Eugene Smith wife of Eugene Smith of Center street on Friday last.

Mrs. Smith was born in Weymouth and graduated from Weymouth High school in 1904. Besides her husband, she is survived by two children, two brothers and three sisters.

Funeral services were held in the Church of the Immaculate Conception on Monday morning. Rev. C. T. Horton was the celebrant. Rev. J. B. Holland, the deacon and Rev. R. Bronsahan, sub-deacon at the solemn High Mass of Requiem. The bearers were Edward Butler, Charles Smith, James O'Brien, Frederick Bumpas, A. Damon and George Connell. Interment was in St. Francis Xavier cemetery.

Moose Notes.

On account of the storm last Saturday the institution of the Loyal Moose circle was postponed until last night, when it took place before a large number of Loyal Order of Moose members and their lady friends. The installation of officers of the new circle will be held next Tuesday evening. Each member is entitled to bring a lady.

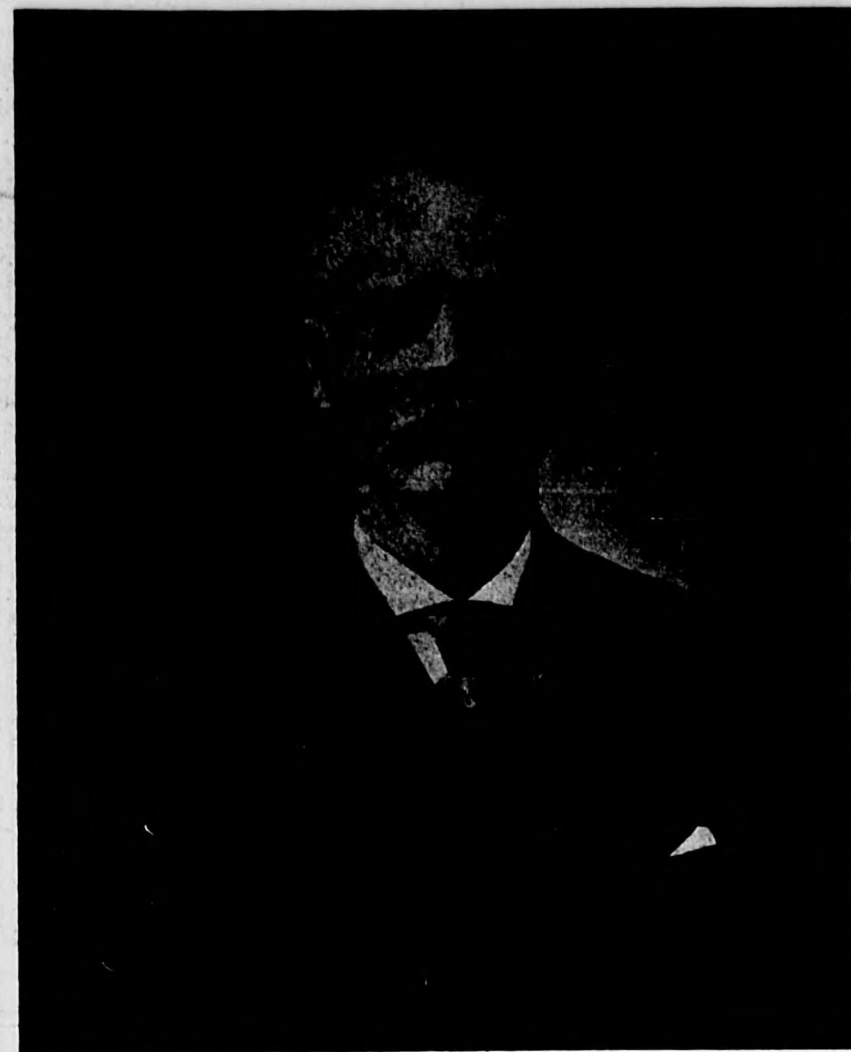

Loring—Powers.

At the home of Rev. Rufus Dix in Newton last Saturday afternoon Lewis D. Loring of East Weymouth and Miss Nellie Powers of North Weymouth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Powers of Arlington, former residents of North Weymouth, were united in marriage by Rev. Mr. Dix, a former pastor of the Universalist church in North Weymouth. They were attended by Ward F. Humphrey of East Weymouth, a friend of the groom and Miss Ruth Powers, a sister of the bride. The ceremony was performed at 2 o'clock and then the bridal party journeyed to Boston where a banquet was enjoyed at the Copley Plaza, after which the newly married couple left for a honeymoon trip to Washington, D. C., Philadelphia, New York, Newark and other points of interest along the coast.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Loring will reside in North Weymouth.

Another Veteran Gone

Asa B. Pratt Answers the Last Call and Joins the Great Majority

ASA B. PRATT

After months of declining health and but a few days of actual confinement to his home by pneumonia Asa B. Pratt quietly passed to the great beyond last Sunday at his home, 626 Broad street, East Weymouth, in the 82d year of his age.

Mr. Pratt was of a long line of Weymouth ancestry being the last survivor of a family of children born to Joshua and Martha Pratt of North Weymouth. His schooling was the old district school and like boys of his time he early became a seaman.

In 1862 he answered a call of the lamented Lincoln and enlisted in Co. H, 35th Mass. Infantry and on going to the front immediately saw hard fighting at South Mountain and Antietam and later saw nearly four years of hard service both in the western and Potomac fields and was mustered out with honor in June 1865.

On returning to active home life he became a well known manufacturer of custom made boots and shoes at the same time for twenty-five years on the police and constabulary force of his native town. Army associations were dear to Mr. Pratt and Reynolds Post 58 had in him one of its most faithful workers, he filling many important positions among them commander in 1905. The Congregational church and Mechanics Temple of Honor are also indebted to Mr. Pratt for faithful membership.

Funeral services were held at the home Tuesday afternoon and were conducted by Rev. Edward T. Ford, D. D. of the Congregational church. A quartet composed of Mrs. Page, Miss Ethel F. Raymond, Mrs. Wm. A. Hodges and Miss Susie B. Raymond sang "Nearer My God to Thee," "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "Abide With Me."

There was a large attendance of comrades of Post 58 G. A. R. and its burial service was rendered by S. V. C., L. W. Cain and Chaplain J. Q. Spear.

The bearers were four grandsons of the deceased, Elmer Sampson, Henry C. Pratt, Lyman F. Pratt and Harold Pratt. The remains were taken to Fairmount cemetery where a salute was fired, taps sounded and another soldier left to his final rest, leaving behind a widow, one son, Willie A. Pratt, one daughter, Mrs. Joseph A. Sampson and several grandchildren.

OBJECT TO SKUNK FARM.

Pond Plain People Petition For Abatement of Alleged Evil In Their Midst.

Considerable excitement has been manifested in the bustling little village across the tracks in South Weymouth, known as Pond Plain, on account of the alleged statement by many of the Plainites that the skunk farm kept for some time past, by Fred "Judge" Davis is a decided public nuisance and a detriment to the development of real estate in the section.

A hearing was given the petitioners against the farm in the Selectmen's room some few evenings ago and several Pond Plain citizens testified that the skunk farm was objectionable in various ways, while several others, strongly argued in favor of the farm being allowed to continue.

Easter Monday Ball.

Three hundred couples attended the fourth annual Easter Monday ball of Court Monastiquot, 150 Foresters of America held at Bates' opera house, Weymouth, Monday evening. The courts in Brockton, Quincy, South Weymouth and other places were represented. Stanley E. Walsh was floor director, Fred Leverage, assistant. The chief of aids was Cornelius O'Connell and the aids, Charles Gough, Henry Bailey, James Curley, Milton Richmond, Harry Richmond, William Coyle, George Maguire, Thomas O'Brien, John J. Powers and G. W. Walsh.

Historical Relic.

At the meeting of the Weymouth Historical society in the Fogg Library, Tuesday evening, March 30, 1915, a very valuable deed was presented to the Weymouth Historical society by Austin Tirrell. The deed was one from Mathew Pratt and Gideon Tirrell and the date is 1685. The deed is valuable because of its age and because it contains the signature as a witness of Peregrin White, the first white child born in New England. Mr. Tirrell had been offered $1000 for the deed by one of the Boston societies. A unanimous vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Tirrell for his valuable gift.

A Day of Thanksgiving.

The Selectmen of Weymouth are in receipt of a communication from San Francisco, California, stating the fact, that in recognition of the blessings which have enabled that city to rise from the ashes of its great calamity of nine years ago, Sunday, the eighteenth day of the present month is to be observed in all the churches of that city as a day of thanksgiving for the blessings of peace without which the rebuilding of the city could not have been accomplished.

The churches of the various denominations throughout the land are asked to join with those of San Francisco in the observance of the above date with appropriate services in commemoration of the triumph of the Pursuits of Peace, as illustrated in the following resolutions.

"Resolve. That on Sunday, the eighteenth day of April, 1915, we shall commemorate these world known facts by services of thanksgiving in all our respective places of worship, with serious expressions of gratitude to Almighty God that we are privileged to live in a land and in a community where the victory of the pursuits of peace has been so strongly demonstrated, and that in addition to the special services thus to be held, we shall hold a mass meeting in the Municipal Auditorium, to which the entire population of the city shall be invited in order that we may, in a spirit of unity, give public expression to our appreciation and thankfulness." "And we do further Resolve, that this resolution shall be given to the press of this nation and of the world, with the desire and belief that all people may join with us in commemorating a course of events which offer the strongest foundation upon which an appeal may reasonably be based for the peace of the world."

The above resolutions are signed by the leading clergymen of various denominations, by the mayor of the city and by representative citizens of San Francisco. The Selectmen of Weymouth urgently request all the churches and clergymen in our town to join in complying with the foregoing appeal.

The Selectmen of Weymouth,
By Bradford Hawes, Secretary.

CARD OF THANKS.

We take this occasion to thank our many friends and neighbors for the kindly acts of assistance and words of sympathy in our loss. Side by side with her memory in our hearts we hope ever to keep in memory the many kind words and deeds.

ANNUAL LADIES' NIGHT.

Weymouth Council 729 K. of C. Entertains Large Gathering of Members, Special Guests and Lady Friends in Masonic Temple last Wednesday Night. Governor Walsh Unable to be Present.

With over two hundred and fifty members and their friends in attendance, the annual Ladies' Night of Weymouth Council 729 K. of C. was held in the Masonic Temple, East Weymouth on Wednesday evening.

At 8.30 o'clock, after a reception, a concert program was rendered by Millo Burke's ever popular orchestra of five pieces assisted by the Liszt quartet, Miss Alice Gorman, violin and Miss Kent piano. All the numbers were greatly enjoyed by all and the program closed with remarks by special guests and other officials of the order.

Among the list of special guests were: His Excellency Governor David I. Walsh, Rev. J. B. Holland, Rev. Cornelius Rorand, Rev. D. J. Crimmins, Rev. Raymond Bronsahan, Rev. Fr. White, Rev. Fr. McCull, State Labor Commissioner Edwin Mulready, and the Grand Knights of the lodges in surrounding towns. Governor Walsh notified the committee in charge that on account of the sad death of Ex-Governor Curtis Guild, he was unable to attend the gala event.

The next feature was dancing, with Millo Burke's orchestra furnishing music. A feature of the concert program not listed above was a cornet solo by Millo Burke and as usual it was rendered in Mr. Burke's wonderful manner.

During the evening a buffet lunch was served by P. L. Burns, caterer of Boston. The committee of arrangements were: Frank McCarthy, Edward Butler, Joseph Fern, chairman; Daniel Looney, secretary; Joseph Conroy and B. Connell.

SPORTS IN TOWN.

By J. E. Fabyan.

WRESTLING.

The New England A. A. U. wrestling championship will be held in Lawrence Light Guards Armory, Medford, tonight. The Clapp Memorial will be represented in four of the classes by the following men: 125 lb. class, Martin and Frank Zeile; 135 lb. class, George Ovardian; 158 lb. class, Arthur Price; heavyweight class, Basil Warren. These boys have all been going in championship form and should make a fine showing.

BASE BALL.

The High School, being shy of snow shoes were obliged to cancel the Wednesday afternoon game with Brighton.

The battery candidates will practice in the Clapp Memorial Association gym until the field is in condition.

The Clapp Memorial will be represented by the fastest base ball team that can be picked from local talent. The season will start about June 1st.

Ray Condrick walked over from Weymouth the other day to inform the writers that "the old whip" was better than ever this season and that he would have them all guessing this year.

Somebody tried to tell me that "Holley" Morales was done playing ball but I stand willing to bet that about 3 o'clock on the day of our first game "Holley" will be seen coming over Broad street driving his "Million Dollar Mystery" and undoubtedly those same bloomers will be running around in left field.

We are glad to hear the Braintree teams are to combine this season. With "New-kie" at the wheel Braintree will sure be on the base ball map this year.

Everyone, whether interested in prize fights or not, feels a certain pride in having the heavyweight title again in the hands of a white man. That was sure some scrap from start to finish. Let us hope that in the future mixed fights will be eliminated as possible.

Reed Cemetery Association.

The annual meeting of the Reed Cemetery association will be held in the hall of the Hose house, Nash's Corner, Friday evening, the 16th. A full attendance is desired of all interested in the Reed cemetery, whether members of the association or not.

Monday Club.

Gentlemen's Night the social event of the season was celebrated by the Monday Club in Masonic Temple, Monday evening April 5. Almost three hundred were present. The hall was beautifully decorated under the direction of Mrs. Fred C. Rivinus with palms, ferns, tulip lilies and pinks.

Shaw's orchestra gave a most enjoyable concert, with Mrs. Edwin R. Sampson president, Mrs. Frank A. Pray and Mrs. Fred A. Hilton vice-presidents and Mrs. W. H. Wilde corresponding secretary received the members and their guests. The ushers under the direction of Mrs. J. Herbert Walsh were Mrs. Edward W. Jones, Mrs. George H. James, Mrs. Roy Vining, Mrs. Wendall T. Dizer, Mrs. Thomas G. Hartling, Mrs. W. D. Dasha and Miss Carrie Robinson.

After the concert Mrs. Edwin R. Sampson first welcomed the guests in a few well chosen words, then introduced the reader Miss Maud Sheerer who gave a very pleasing entertainment.

Next lured by the enticing strains of music all repaired to the banquet hall beautifully decorated by Mrs. A. E. Beals who with her aids Mrs. James Jones, Mrs. Melzar L. Burrell, Mrs. Lillian F. Curtiss and ladies of the club dispensed refreshments.

After a pleasant social hour enlivened by music, dancing strains of Shaw's orchestra was enjoyed in the upper hall until 11.30.

IN OUR TOWN.

By Observer.

Some storm, eh?

Easter Sunday was all right for that new hat, but what about these new shoes? Weymouth Loyal Order of Moose is to have a fine minstrel show on April 22 and 23 if reports from the enthusiastic rehearsals are any criterion.

Haven't noticed any grass fires about town this week.

Just as the town got around to getting some tarvia to put on our dusty roads, and relieve our parched and dust clogged throats, along comes a snow storm and makes tarvia unnecessary for a few minutes at least. We ought to have the tarvia a month ago, instead of now.

I understand that the letter carriers in town will be allowed to wear lighter and cooler clothing in the summer time. Postmaster General Burleson at Washington has issued an order providing that the uniform consist of light-weight bluish gray worsted or serge, "composed wholly or in part of wool or cotton." It makes possible the use of all cotton goods. No change is made in the cut or design of the uniform.

Did you read "Doc" Fabyan's column last week? It was surely "some" column. If you want to keep up with the sporting dope in town you surely want to follow "Doc's" stories each week.

The Ladies' Night of the Weymouth Council K. of C. in the Masonic Temple Wednesday night was certainly a gala event.

After the railroad took down the snow fences about town we had the worst storm of the year. What's the matter with you Mr. Weatherman, anyhow, can't you do better than that?

Another week has passed and all about town the citizens are still waiting in anxious suspense for the Selectmen to name their choice for fire engineers. At present I am informed that the guessing on who will be appointed is about even on all candidates in line for the positions.

John Maynard, our street superintendent, is to be married soon, so I hear. Good luck to you "Jack."

I am told that some of Weymouth's prettiest young ladies, of which this town has its share, are to enter the Boston Traveler contest for trips to the Panama-Pacific exposition in California. Go to it ladies and have Weymouth represented in that pretty girl contingent that will travel to the Pacific coast as guests of the Traveler. By the way, young ladies, don't forget the Gazette Traveler club either. Send in your name and get busy and land one of the free eight day trips offered by the editor of this paper. Four of you are going, with a good, competent chaperone, and why can't you be the one from your district?

I am told that W. O. Collier of North Weymouth, who retired a few weeks ago from active business with the J. W. Bartlett Co. grocery company, served forty-six years with this company, which is certainly a record to be proud of.

While walking around the shore at North Weymouth the past week I noticed that several of the summer houses were opened and I am informed that while not a very large number have arrived as yet for the season many "over Sunday" parties are enjoyed by the summerites at their cottages at this time in the year.

TOWN BUSINESS.

The Selectmen are in receipt of a request signed by Wm. E. Pray and 55 others asking for the appointment of Wallace H. Blacknell as Fire Engineer for Ward 3.

J. H. Walsh in behalf of the Park Commissioners ask to have Charles R. Trask appointed as Special Park officer. Pending the significance of the office and other necessary information it was laid on the table.

Selectman Ralph Burrell was appointed to co-operate with the Weymouth Historical Society in locating and marking the supposed graves of revolutionary soldiers in the old burying ground of Josiah Martin off Park avenue.

An interview was had with Joseph Matcovsky the lessee of the herring fishery and efforts will be made to have the fishery preserved by insisting on carrying out the provisions of the sale to the Weymouth Iron Co. in 1846.

Charles Q. Clapp was granted permit to construct a granite sidewalk on Monatiquet street.

E. M. Toby was granted a gasoline license and Geo. W. Tirrell permit to dig claims for sale.

Geo. P. Dennet representing the Alden Spear Oil Co. appeared before the Board on Monday to talk over the situation in regard to street oiling.

A hearing was given the Weymouth Light and Power Co. on its petition for 3 poles on Norfolk street, 1 on Granite, 4 on Summit and 5 on Federal. No remonstrance and petition granted. The same company put in a further petition for 6 poles on Weybossett street and a hearing will be held at the Selectmen's rooms on Monday the 19th.

The Selectmen took further action in regard to the setting and removal of poles. To obviate the irregularity in setting poles, all poles in the future will be located by the superintendent of streets and all poles removed must be taken out of the ground; no more cutting down of poles leaving a stump to rot away with a constant settling of side walks.

CHAPTER II.

The Veiled Woman.
 The intensity of the question, the compelling, self-forgetting passion of the man, had a startling effect upon the crowd of people huddled before him. With one accord, and without stopping to pick their way, they made for the open doorway, knocking the smaller pieces of furniture about and creating havoc generally. Some fled the house; others stopped to peer in again from behind the folds of the curtain which had been only partially torn from its fastenings. Miss Weeks was the only one to stand her ground.

When the room was quite cleared and the noise abated (it was a frightful experience to see how little the judge had been affected by all this hubbub of combined movement and sound) she stepped within the line of his vision and lifted her feeble and ineffectual hand in an effort to attract his attention to herself.

But he did not notice her, any more than he had noticed the others. Still looking in the one direction, he cried aloud in troubled tones:

"She stood there! the woman stood there and I saw her! Where is she now?"

"She is no longer in the house," came in gentle reply from the only one in or out of the room courageous enough to speak. "She went out when she saw us coming. We knew that she had no right to be here. That is why we intruded ourselves, sir. We did not like the looks of her, and so followed her in to prevent mischief."

"How dared you! How dared she!" Then as his mind regained its full poise, "And how, even if you had the temerity to venture an entrance here, did you manage to pass my gates? They are never open. Bela sees to that."

As she watched she saw his eyes, fixed up to now upon her face, leave it and pass furtively and with many nestations from object to object, toward that spot behind him where lay the source of her great terror, till finally, with fatal precision, they reached the point where the screen had stood, and not finding it, flew in open terror to the door it was set there to conceal—when that something else, huddled in oozing blood, on the floor beneath, drew them to itself with the irresistible force of grim reality, and he forgot all else.

Dead! Bela! Dead! and lying in his blood! The rest may have been no dream, but this was surely one, for his eyes, used to inner visions, were playing him false.

Grasping the table at his side to steady his falling limbs, he pulled himself along by its curving edge till he came almost abreast of the helpless figure which for so many years had been the embodiment of faithful and unwearying service.

Then and then only did the truth of his great misfortune burst upon his bewildered soul; and with a cry which tore the ears of all hearers and was never forgotten by anyone there, he flung himself down beside the dead negro, and, turning him hastily over, gazed in his face.

"And where was I, when all this happened?" he demanded in a voice made low by awe and dread of its own sound.

"You? You were seated here," murmured the little woman, pointing at the great chair. "You were not—quite—quite yourself," she softly explained, wondering at her own compulsion. Then quickly, as she saw his thoughts revert to the dead friend at his feet, "Bela was not hurt here. He was downtown when it happened; but he managed to struggle home and gain this place, which he tried to hold against the men who followed him. He thought you were dead, you sat there so rigid and so white, and, before he quite gave up, he asked us all to promise not to let anyone enter this room till your son Oliver came."

Understanding partly, but not yet quite clear in his mind, the judge sighed, and, stooping again, straightened the faithful negro's limbs. Then, with a sidelong look in her direction, he felt in one of the pockets of the dead negro's coat and, drawing out a small key, held it in one hand while he fumbled in his own for another, which found, he became on the instant his own man again.

Miss Weeks, seeing the difference in him, and seeing, too, that the doorway was now clear of the wondering, awe-struck group which had previously blocked it, bowed her slight body and proceeded to withdraw; but the judge, staying her by a gesture, she waited patiently near one of the bookracks against which she had stumbled, to hear what he had to say.

"I must have had an attack of some kind," he calmly remarked. "Will you be good enough to explain exactly what occurred here that I may more fully comprehend my own misfortune and the death of this faithful friend."

Then she saw that his faculties were now fully restored, and came a step forward. But before she could begin her story he added this searching question:

"Was it he who let you in—you and the others—I think you said others? Was it he who unlocked my gates?"

Miss Weeks sighed and betrayed fluster. It was not easy to relate her story; besides it was woefully incomplete. She knew nothing of what had happened downtown, she could only tell what had passed before her eyes. But there was one thing she could make clear to him, and that was how the seemingly impassable gates had been made ready for the woman's entrance and afterwards taken such advantage of by herself and others. A pebble had done it all—a pebble placed in the gateway by Bela's hands.

As she described this and insisted upon the fact in face of the judge's almost frenzied disclaimer, she thought she saw the hair move on his forehead. Bela a traitor, and in the interests of the woman who had fronted him from the other end of the room at the moment consciousness had left him! Evidently this intrusive little body did not know Bela or his story, or—

Why should interruption come then? Why was he stopped, when in the passion of the moment he might have let fall some word of enlightenment which would have eased the agitated curiosity of the whole town? Miss Weeks often asked herself this question and bewailed the sudden access of sounds in the rooms without, which proclaimed the entrance of the police and put a new strain upon the judge's faculty of self-control and attention to the one matter in hand.

The commonplace of an official inquiry were about to supersede the play of a startled spirit struggling with a problem of whose complexities he had received but a glimpse.

The library again! but how changed! Evening light now instead of blazing sunshine; and evening light so shaded that the corners seemed far and the many articles of furniture, cumbering the spaces between, larger for the shadows in which they stood hidden. Perhaps the man who sat there in company with the judge would have preferred to see more perfectly that portion of the room where Bela had taken his stand and finally fallen; but from the place where he sat there was no getting any possible view of that part of the wall or of anything connected with it; and so, with every appearance of satisfaction at being allowed in the room at all, Sergeant Doolittle from headquarters drank the judge's wine and listened for the judge's commands.

"Sergeant, I have lost a faithful servant under circumstances which have called an unfortunate attention to my house. I should like to have this place guarded—carefully guarded, you understand—from any and all intrusions till I can look about me and secure protection of my own. May I rely upon the police to do this, beginning tonight at an early hour? There are loiterers already at the corner and in front of the two gates. I am not accustomed to these attentions, and ask to have my fence cleared."

"Two men are already detailed for the job, your honor. I heard the order given just as I left headquarters."

The judge showed small satisfaction. "Two men! Couldn't I have three? One for each gate and one to patrol the fence separating these grounds from the adjoining lot?"

"If two men are not enough to insure you a quiet sleep you shall have three or four or even more, Judge Ostrander. Do you want one of them to stay inside? That might do the business better than a dozen out."

"No. While Bela lies above ground, we want no third here. When he is buried I may call upon you for a special to watch my room door. But it's of outside protection we're talking now. Only, who is to protect me against your men?"

"What do you mean by that, your honor?"

"They are human, are they not? They have instincts of curiosity like the rest of us. How can I be made sure that they won't yield to the temptation of their position and climb the fences they are detailed to guard?"

"And would this be so fatal to your peace, judge?" A smile tempered the suggestion.

"It would be a breach of trust which would greatly disturb me. I want nobody on my grounds, nobody at all. Has not my long life of solitude within these walls sufficiently proved this? I want to feel that these men of yours would no more climb my fence than they would burst into my house without a warrant."

"Judge, I will be one of the men. You can trust me."

"Thank you, sergeant; I appreciate the favor. I shall rest now as quietly as any man can who has met with a great loss. I shall always suffer from regret that I was not in a condition to receive Bela's last sigh. He was a man in a thousand. One seldom sees his like among white or black."

"He was a very powerfully built man. It took a sixty-horsepower racing machine, going at a high rate of speed, to kill him."

A spasm of grief or unavailing regret crossed the judge's face as his head sank back again against the high back of his chair.

"I should like to ask a question," he finally observed. "You were not at the inquiry this afternoon, and may not know that just as Bela and the crowd about him turned this corner they ran into a woman leading a small child, who stopped the whole throng in order to address him. I saw that woman myself, earlier. She was in this house. She was in this room. If you will consent to look for her, and if she is found and no stir made, I will pay all that you think it right to demand."

"Let me hear her description, your honor."

The judge, who had withdrawn into the shadow, considered for a moment, then said:

"I cannot describe her features, for she was heavily veiled; neither can I describe her figure except to say that she is tall and slender. But her dress I remember. She wore purple; not an old woman's purple, but a soft shade which did not take from her youth. The child did not seem to belong to her, though she held her tightly by the hand. In age it appeared to be about six—or that was the impression I received before—"

The sergeant, who had been watching the speaker very closely, leaned forward with a hasty, inquiring glance

"Who is to Protect Me Against Your Men?"

expressive of something like consternation. Was the judge falling again into unconsciousness?

No; for the eyes which had gone blank had turned his way again, and only a disconnected expression which fell from the judge's lips showed that his mind had been wandering.

"It's not the same but another one; that's all."

Inconsequent words, but the sergeant meant to remember them, for with their utterance a change passed over the judge, and his manner, which had been constrained and hurried during his attempted description, became at once more natural and therefore more courteous.

"Do you think you can find her with such insufficient data? A woman, dressed in purple, leading a little child?"

"Judge, I not only feel sure that I can find her, but I think she is found already. Do you remember the old tavern on the Rushville road? I believe they call it an inn now, or some such fancy name."

The judge sat quiet, but the sergeant, who dared not peer too closely, noticed a sudden constriction in the fingers of the hand with which his host fingered a paper cutter lying on the table between them.

"The one where—"

"I respect your hesitation, judge. Yes, the one run by the man you sentenced—"

A gesture had stopped him. He waited respectfully for the judge's next words.

They came quickly and with stern and solemn emphasis.

"For a hideous and wholly unprovoked crime. Why do you mention it and—and his tavern?"

"Because of something I have lately heard in its connection. You know that the old house has been all made over since that time and run as a place of resort for automobilists in search of light refreshments. The proprietor's name is Yardley. We have nothing against him; the place is highly respectable. But it harbors a boarder, a permanent one, I believe, who has occasioned no little comment. No one has ever seen her face; unless it is the landlady's wife. She has all her meals served in her room, and when she goes out she wears the purple dress and purple veil you've been talking about. Perhaps she's your visitor of today. Hadn't I better find out?"

"Has she a child? Is she a mother?"

"I haven't heard of any child, but Mrs. Yardley has seven."

The judge's hand withdrew from the table and for an instant the room was so quiet that you could hear some far-off clock ticking out the minutes. Then Judge Ostrander rose and in a peremptory tone said:

"Tomorrow. After you hear from me again. Make no move tonight. Let me feel that all your energies are devoted to securing my privacy."

The sergeant, who had sprung to his feet at the same instant as the judge, cast a last look about him, curiously burning in his heart and a sort of desperate desire to get all he could out of his present opportunity. For he felt absolutely sure that he would never be allowed to enter this room again.

But the arrangement of light was such as to hold in shadow all but the central portion of the room. With a sigh the sergeant dropped his eyes from the walls he could barely distinguish and, following Judge Ostrander's lead, passed with him under the torn folds of the curtain and through the narrow vestibule whose door was made of iron, into the room where, in a stronger blaze of light than they had left, lay the body of the dead negro awaiting the last rites.

Would the judge pass this body, or turn away from it toward a door leading front? The sergeant had come in at the rear, but he greatly desired to go out front, as this would give him so much additional knowledge of the house. Unexpectedly to himself the judge's intentions were in the direction of his own wishes. He was led front; and, entering an old-fashioned hall dimly lighted, passed a staircase and two closed doors, both of which gave him the impression of having been shut upon a past it had pleased no one to revive in many years.

Beyond them was the great front door of colonial style and workmanship, a fine specimen once, but greatly disfigured now by the bolts and bars which had been added to it in satisfaction of the judge's ideas of security.

Many years had passed since Judge Ostrander had played the host; but he had not lost a sense of its obligations. It was for him to shoot the bolts and lift the bars; but he went about it so clumsily and with such evident aversion to the task that the sergeant instinctively sprang to help him.

"I shall miss Bela at every turn," remarked the judge, turning with a sad smile as he finally pulled the door open. This is an unaccustomed effort for me. Excuse my awkwardness."

Something in his attitude, something in the way he lifted his hand to push back a fallen lock from his forehead, impressed itself upon the sergeant's mind so vividly that he always remembered the judge as he appeared to him at that minute. Certainly there were but few men like him in the country, and none in his own town. Of a commanding personality by reason of his height, his features were of a cast to express his mental attributes and enforce attention, and the incongruity between his dominating figure and the apprehensions which he displayed in these multiplied and extraordinary arrangements for personal security was forcible enough to arouse any man's interest.

The sergeant was so occupied by the mystery of the man and the mystery of the house that they had passed the first gate (which the judge had unlocked without much difficulty) before he realized that there still remained something of interest for him to see and to talk about later. The two dark openings on either side, raised questions which the most imaginative mind could not fail to hear explained. Ere the second gate swung open and he found himself again in the street he had built up more than one theory in explanation of this freak of parallel fences with the strip of gloom between.

He would have felt the suggestion of the spot still more deeply had it been given him to see the anxious and hesitating figure which, immediately upon his departure entered this dark maze, and with feeling hands and cautious step wound its way from corner to corner—now stopping abruptly to listen, now shrinking from some imaginary presence—a shadow among shadows—till it stood again between the gates from which it had started.

Weymouth Gazette
AND TRANSCRIPT

FRIDAY, APRIL 9, 1915

"Swat the fly" has not been without its good result and by agitation and resultant labor that much dreaded house pest has become almost extinct and now Newton Highlands goes one better by a well-organized systematic campaign against that other pest, the mosquito.

The Farm Bureau suggests the testing of seeds before planting seeds which have no germinating qualities. We can endorse this idea as we can show by an experiment of the last two weeks, good bright corn growing from seed of Hamilton sweet corn raised in East Weymouth last season.

The Panama Canal Exposition at San Francisco is now fairly on and the display of the products of the Nations of the world exceed anything ever before shown at any one event of the kind the illustrated history of the skill of man. Comments on the different features are numerous and nude statuary gets a good ad by a request to have it draped.

Billy Sunday is reported to have called Sunday school teachers a "Booze Hoisting, Card Playing Bunch." Before the advent of Mr. Wm. Sunday, noble men and devoted women were engaged in Sunday school work and let us hope the present workers in that line will not get disconcerted by such criticism and continue to sing "Pass it On" letting future generations continue the song.

Town and cities are beginning to agitate the "Clean Up" movement and no doubt Weymouth will be in the van but we need something more than a spasmodic week of "Clean Up." There are several places where it should be a daily act and instead of throwing waste paper and rubbish into the back yards to be blown about the streets, into the neighbors' yards or across the fields. Let the waste paper be daily disposed of and not become a nuisance to others.

The Dedham Transcript says, "We have at present over two thousand legal voters. Every voter has the right and it is his duty to attend the town meeting. If, however, one-half of these voters felt the call of duty they could not enter the hall." What is true of Dedham is more than true of Weymouth as under similar circumstances not one-third of the voters of Weymouth could get into any hall in town at any one time and no one expects Weymouth to build a Town hall with seating capacity for three thousand people.

Another word about legislatures and legislative Laws and Resolves piled up. Every day it becomes more apparent that we are becoming a law ridden people and the statute books are piled up with absurd enactments and nothing can be more absurd than the following now before the legislature of Massachusetts: A bill that would compel bachelors to pay an annual tax of $5 per head. Another would prohibit the wearing of whiskers by physicians and dentists, while still another provides that all weeds and plants which cause hay fever shall be removed from the roadsides.

Following the Declaration of Independence, the Revolutionary war and the victory won Massachusetts became a free and independent state, and chose for its first Governor John Hancock, the first signer of the Declaration of Independence and from 1780 to 1785 he held that office.

Curtis Guild Jr., who passed away on Monday was the 42nd successor of the Immortal Hancock and among the long list of Governors who went before him and the few who have followed him, no one has more truly earned a niche high up in the "Temple of Fame".

Curtis Guild's distinction was not won alone as a model Governor but in many other activities of life. In fact, from boyhood to the end his entire life was one of activity and every action was for the public good as he saw it and a well-balanced mind together with the courage to act according to the dictates of reason won for him the respect and confidence of his fellowmen.

Under some circumstances a man 55 years of age might not be considered old but when a man's activities crowd two or three years into one he is apt to strike the "bonus he cannot pass" and such was Curtis Guild. From boyhood an active journalist and writer, a public speaker constantly sought after, an active political worker and legislator, a diplomat of no mean ability representing his country in the courts of Russia, Italy and other foreign governments, a military organizer and veteran of the Spanish war. These were only a part of the strong life of Curtis Guild, other services were in State and National Commission which required study and action.

Overwork in filling speaking engagements found him in poor conditions to battle with the grip and the end came.

Some may say "the world will move on just the same." True the world, as the phrase goes, will move on but never the same. The world has been made richer by the life of Curtis Guild and made poorer by his death.

OUR NEW SERIAL

We have had many fine compliments on our first installment of our new serial "Dark Hollow" which started last Friday. The mystery and thrill of excitement of the story has already caught the story loving people and we believe it is worth while for every body to follow this absorbing feature.

ASSIST THE G. A. R.

The idea of Reynolds Post 58, G. A. R. in utilizing automobiles on Memorial Day to convey its members about town, is indeed a worthy one, and it should have the hearty support of every auto owner in the town. The veterans of the great Civil War are fast "marching on", and those that are left are growing feeble and find it hard work to march to the different cemeteries from the squares or other points. This year automobiles will take the place of street cars and thus carry the veterans right to the several cemeteries. As many autos are needed it behooves every loyal citizen to immediately be up and doing and notify the committee of arrangements, that their automobile is at the Post's disposal on Memorial Day. The committee is in charge of this new feature.

R. R. CONNECTION AT CENTRAL SQUARE

In our travels about town we hear a lot of genuine "kicking" about the connections between the East Weymouth and Braintree line cars and those on the Quincy line, at Central Square. Maybe they are not supposed to connect, but for the life of us, we can't see, why the cars on the East Weymouth and Braintree line can't wait a moment at Central Square for a car from North Weymouth, when the block signal is on at Poole's turn out, instead of racing along and waiting anywhere from two to five minutes in Washington Square, for the car coming from Braintree. It is the same way on the Quincy line. A moment or two wait at Central Square, for the car from Weymouth and Braintree wouldn't delay the Quincy car a bit in making Quincy depot in time, but time and time again, we have been on the car coming from Braintree, the car would be at the old Braintree and Weymouth car barn switch and the Quincy car would swing around the corner at Central Square and deliberately keep on to Quincy without waiting an instant, even when the car from Braintree was perhaps five hundred feet away. A few Sunday nights ago, a former correspondent of this paper told the writer that he stood at Central Square for two hours and a half, and in that time, he saw the Quincy crew and Braintree crew pull into Central Square, so that each could see the other's lights four times, and yet they failed to wait for passengers going to Weymouth and other points, and in the other direction to North Weymouth and Quincy. Not all the crews, we are glad to say, will go off, with the other car in sight, but unfortunately these considerate motorists and conductors are in the minority. We believe that more consideration in the matter of connection at Central Square would benefit lots of people in all parts of the town and it is high time more consideration was shown the people who have to travel these lines every day.

Now Paint.

Strike when the iron is hot and paint when the property needs it.

They paint ships a dozen times a year; yes, some of them, every voyage. What for, do you think? To look nice and get business.

A livery keeps its carriages painted and varnished and washed, to look nice and get business.

A man, with a house for sale or to let, "does it up," and Devco is the paint.

There's more in paint than to keep-out water. Paint for looks and you needn't think about water. A fresh coat of paint once a year is about as good for his credit as paying his debts. But the man whose buildings and fences look new, very likely, has no debts.

Everett Loud, East Weymouth; M. R. Loud & Co., South Weymouth, and A. J. Sidelinger, North Weymouth sell it.

Citizenship.

Loyalty no longer consists in meeting the ordinary responsibilities in citizenship, or even in manifesting willingness to surrender life in a time of peril. Citizenship has, like all life itself, become exceedingly complex; and the man can be the right kind of citizen only as he realizes that every thought and every act of his life must bear a conscious relation to society and to the well-being of the people.

BEST FORM OF POULTRY HOUSE

Designed to Get Results in the Increased Production of Eggs.

SUNLIGHT IS PROVIDED FOR

Cheaply Built and Easily Made Comfortable for the Fowls in Any Kind of Weather—Arranged So That Inside May Be Thoroughly Cleaned.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

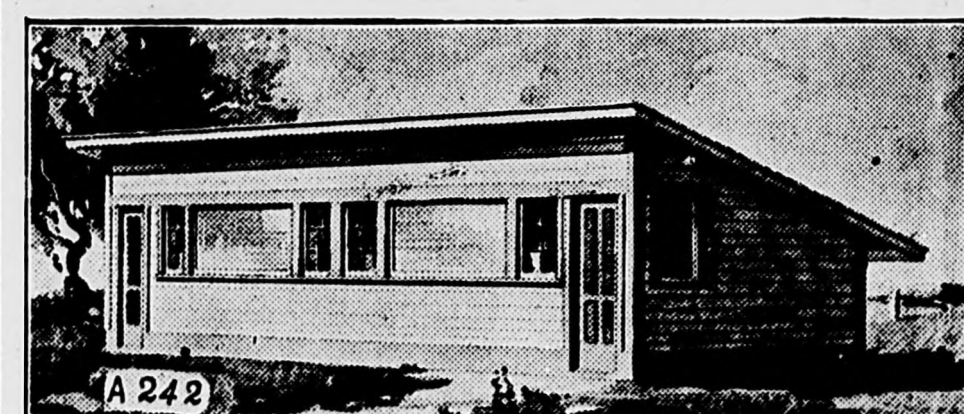

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building up the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

A poultry house 36 feet long naturally divides into two compartments. This poultry house is only 12 feet from front to back, which is in accordance with the ideas of a great many poultrymen who are anxious to have the sun shine clear back to the far wall during the very early spring weeks when eggs are high in price and the hens need every possible encouragement to supply the demand.

Shed roof poultry houses present the high sides of the buildings to the sun. Poultry houses are always faced in a southerly direction, and they are always closed in tight at the north and west, because the prevailing cold winds usually come from those two directions. The sun shining against the high side of the building during the day usually keeps the house comfortable during part of the night because of the stored up heat. In addition to the warmth a house is much more cheerful on account of admitting considerable bright sunshine.

Shed roof poultry houses are quite common in the eastern states where thousands of farmers keep poultry for profit. Some of them keep poultry only in a small way, but they have studied the needs of laying hens and have provided means to keep them comfortable and to induce them to lay eggs in the winter time.

These shed roof poultry houses are cheaply built and are easily made comfortable for the fowls in all kinds of weather. Usually such houses are made quite low at the back. Some are as low as three feet, being designed for the convenience of the attendant, because considerable stooping is required when doing the cleaning in the back part of house.

When shed roof poultry houses are ventilated by means of cheese-cloth covered openings in front, they are easily provided with fresh air.

The general ground plan is to leave the whole floor space free to be covered with straw several inches deep for scratching purposes. Laying hens must be kept busy to prevent them from getting too fat. In order to manufacture eggs the hens must be well fed. The difference between fat hens and laying hens depends upon the kind of food rather than the quantity, but the element of exercise has a good deal to do with the keeping of laying hens in proper condition.

In these shed roof poultry houses the droppings board usually is placed under the low roof at the back. The roosts are supported a few inches above the droppings board and the nest boxes are suspended underneath. This work is all done in such a way that the whole outfit may be taken out easily and the whole inside of the house may be thoroughly cleaned. The easy cleaning proposition is worked out in connection with all parts of the house. Cleanliness means a great deal in the poultry house.

The plan of this particular design further provides for a closed-in room for brooding coops. This room may be divided by a partition, or it may be made into one room for the use of houses. Some poultrymen use this center room for the nest boxes as well as for broody hens. The laying is principally done in December, January and February and brooding seldom commences before March.

Shed roof poultry houses seem to work out better than any other style of roof when it comes to ventilation. It is not easy to manage a poultry house in such a way as to ventilate it properly. The ventilation in all farm buildings depends on a certain degree of warmth. Large animals, such as cattle and horses, have considerable body warmth, which sets the air in motion. Fowls are so small that their body heat is not sufficient to warm very much cubic air space. This is one reason for putting the roof of a poultry house low down at the back. Hens require very little head room.

In this plan the manner of placing the droppings board and roosts close up against the low back roof helps splendidly in ventilation, because the fresh air comes in through the thin cotton cloth ventilators in front and takes the place of the warmer heated air around the poultry roosts. The warmer air naturally finds its way up along the sloping roof to the front of the house. In this way a natural circulation of air is kept going all night and all day.

A shed roof poultry house may be built in such a way as to add a good deal to the appearance of the place. As the illustration shows, there should be considerable projection of roof and this calls for a neat finish all around the edge. Also the different door frames and window frames should be painted a different color from the body of the house.

This particular plan calls for wooden siding lined on the inside with building paper. The paper is put onto the studding and is covered over with the siding. The smooth side of the paper is turned in and all 2x4's used for studding are dressed four sides. Also the rafters and girts are dressed all around and finished smooth before being put into place. When finished it has a very neat businesslike appearance and is smooth enough to clean easily.

NOT AT ALL PLEASANT TASK

Sampling Candies Sounds Attractive as a Profession, but It Gets Tiresome.

"Do I get tired of sampling every dainty this company makes?" echoed the official sampler of a huge confectionery company. "I can answer that question both 'Yes' and 'No.' When I have a few minutes of spare time I usually nibble a soda cracker. One never gets tired of them, for they only use the more plentiful saliva juices.

"In the rush season, that is, just before Christmas, we have thousands of pounds of all sorts of dainty sweets to sample before they leave the bakery. It is then that one gets tired of the always sweet. You have no idea how many sweets people eat until you have to sample the stuff. I get so used to the different taste of different sweets that invariably I know whether or not a certain making is all right before I have finished the first bite.

"After eating sweets for a long time one loses the acute taste which each dainty individual has. When this happens I take a few minutes off to take a drink of plain water, then I eat a plain soda cracker, which immediately restores my discriminating taste.

"Medical authorities assert that the losing of this taste is due to the fact that after a long period of overwork certain saliva glands temporarily give

SCHOOLBOY COMPOSER.

Frank Vender of East Weymouth, Member of Class of 1915 W. H. S. Completes Orchestration of New March.

"The W. H. S. March". It is some time since East Weymouth, or any part of Weymouth for that matter can boast of a 17 year old composer, and an excellent one at that. Also, Weymouth High School has the honor of having the new march dedicated to its institution, and therefore it is not hard to discover why the youthful composer Frank Vender of East Weymouth ranks high in popularity with his fellow students and people of Weymouth at large.

Mr. Vender's new march entitled "The W. H. S. March" is in full orchestra score and it is being played all over this section by many orchestras.

Vender is the youngest of one of the most musical families in this town. His father, a shoe maker, is a veteran musician and in his younger days, played in many leading bands in his native country, Italy. At present, his four sons are all members of the Stetson Shoe Band of the town.

The younger composer in speaking of composition said: "Although I have never been fortunate enough to take a lesson in harmony in my life, I have always had a desire to write something. About three years ago I took piano lessons for twelve months and at that time I joined a band, and can play several instruments although I like the cornet the best."

About a year ago, Mr. Vender started improving on the piano, and soon afterwards, re-arranged a band march for the Stetson Band. The youthful music writer attributes his success in the music line to the confidence and praise bestowed on him by prominent Boston musicians.

At present Mr. Vender is composing the music for the class ode of the class 1915 of which he is a member. After his graduation in June he intends to follow musical work at the N. E. Conservatory of Music.

Mr. Vender is also prominent in athletics, being a sprinter of some note and is also a member of the Weymouth High School baseball team.

Mr. Vender has had his march published and copies of the same are now on sale about town.

Man's Only Right.

Each man has but a limited right to the good things of the world; and the natural allowed way by which he is to compass the possession of these things is by his own industrious acquisition of them.—South.

SIGNALS OF DISTRESS.

Weymouth People Should Know How to Read and Heed Them.

Disordered kidneys give many signals of distress. The secretions may be dark, contain sediment.

Passages are sometimes frequent, scanty, painful. Backache is often present day and night.

Headaches and dizzy spells may occur. Weakened kidneys should receive quick help.

Don't delay! Use a special kidney remedy. Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys, backache and urinary disorders.

Weymouth evidence proves their worth. Mrs. B. W. Hewett, 191 Washington street, Weymouth, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are a household remedy with us. One of the family found Doan's Kidney Pills most beneficial when his kidneys caused him trouble. I gladly confirm all I have ever said about Doan's Kidney Pills, as we know they live up to the claims made for them."

Price 50 cents, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Hewett had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

First Principle of Precept. Impossible is the precept. "Know thyself," till it be translated into this partially possible one. "Know what thou canst work at."—Thomas Carlyle.

VOL. XLIX. NO. 5.

TOWN BUSINESS.

At the Monday meeting of the Selectmen permit was granted the Weymouth Light & Power Co. to erect 17 poles on Randolph street.

Members of Combination 1, North Weymouth, ask for the appointment of Hiram Nadell as fire chief for that ward.

The Lithurian club or society of Boston are in early for permit to hold a picnic at New Downer Landing on July 4th.

The State Health department suggest that it might be better to contract with Quincy for hospital accommodations for tuberculous patients than to build and maintain a hospital.

Chief Butler is instructed to see that the alewife contract relative to seeding Whitman's pond with 30,000 of the first run of fish is complied with this year.

Voted to grant Officer Arthur H. Pratt three months' leave of absence and a good part of that time Mr. and Mrs. Pratt will spend with her brother in California.

Permit was granted Margaret Goodnow and others to hold a dancing party in Music hall, South Weymouth and permit to Willey Lodge I. O. O. F. to have a street parade.

A request of residents on Evans road, North Weymouth for improvements was referred to Engineer Whiting for investigation. More definite street numbering is wanted.

Charles H. Pratt, J. H. Tracy, Ernest L. Prouty, T. A. McFann and George Brown were granted permits to dig claims for sale.

The Hannaford estate off Main street was recommended as the proper location for Fred Davis' skunk farm, which has stirred up considerable excitement in town.

At a special meeting of the Selectmen held at the town office, Wednesday afternoon, the condition of Washington street, from Washington to Lincoln square, was discussed, and as a result it was voted to invite John F. Conway, superintendent of the Street Railway, to meet them next Tuesday afternoon, for the purpose of taking some immediate action to remedy the evil which has so long existed.

At the last meeting of the Board of Health, Ed Ludden was appointed plumber inspector in town.

BOY SCOUT NOTES.

Troop 2, East Weymouth.

The last meeting of the troop was held at 6:45 P. M. so that the boys could finish up the business part in time to board the 7:30 trolley for Weymouth so as to take in the Scout Movies. About twenty members of the troop attended the show and all pronounced it first class.

Saturday afternoon patrol outdoor meetings were held at different places. The Eagle Patrol was in charge of P. L. Blackney, the Buffalo in charge of P. L. Lincoln and the Hound was in the care of the Scout Master.

Saturday a new patrol was organized. This will be known as the Lion Patrol and the following have been placed in charge. Patrol Leader Emery Millet, Asst. Patrol Leader Clarence Wyman.

The formation of a base ball team is now under way and Scout Edward Rand has been unanimously elected manager of the team.

Clarence Wyman, Frank Whipple and Wilbert Comeau have successfully passed the tenderfoot tests.

Patrol Leader Millet has a complete wireless outfit installed at his home and can send or receive messages with great facility. The Continental Morse Code is used by him.

The hike to the Fore River Works has been postponed as on account of the submarines being built there no passes will be issued except to employees.

Moose Notes.

On Wednesday night, the Loyal Women's Moose Circle, which has just been organized, met at Moose Hall. The newly elected officers were installed. There were thirty-one members present and the officers were installed by Deputy Supreme Dictator Louis M. Beach. The officers installed are Past Worth Matron, Mrs. James Pierce; Worthy Matron, Mrs. Louis Beach; Associate Matron, Mrs. J. Bernhardt; Deaconess, Mrs. Abbie Blanchard; Secretary, Miss Isabel Auld; Treasurer, Mrs. James Pratt; Conductress, Mrs. Paul Landry; Inside Guard, Mrs. Warren Mirchia; Outside Guard, Mrs. A. Horsley; Trustees, Mrs. Frank Holmes, Mrs. John Ball, Mrs. Ross.

At the Moose Hall, last Tuesday night, the newly elected officers were installed for the coming year by Deputy Supreme Dictator, Louis M. Beach. About 250 were present at the exercises. The Moose orchestra furnished music during the evening. Solos were sung by Miss Marion Bowker, accompanied by her sister, Miss Ethel. Ice cream and cakes were served and dancing was enjoyed until 12 o'clock.

IN OUR TOWN.

By Observer.

Did you join the deferred Easter parade of new hats, etc., on Sunday last?

Our long-looked and prayed for tarvia has arrived at last and is being put on to our streets at last, for which fact we are duly thankful. The tarvia is doubly welcome at this time as no doubt the open cars will be on the lines soon, and we hate to think what the conditions would have been without tarvia or water.

I am told that one man in Weymouth was so ticked to see the oil that he promptly laid down in the middle of it in Washington square after alighting from a car last Wednesday morning. I cannot say as to whether he liked the grease so much on arising, but nevertheless he was somewhat riled and his black overcoat was covered with the hot tar.

I hear lots of talk about town about the trip contest just started by this paper and while I never went on the same route as this trip proposes, I do know that a better itinerary could not have been selected by any paper. I believe it is to the interest of every lady over sixteen to get into this contest and hustle. I am informed that a chaperone will accompany the tourists and like the four lucky persons to go on the trip, her entire expenses will be paid by the paper.

I am told about town that many new autos are being delivered to new purchasers in this town. Yet, they say "times are very hard."

I met Rev. Mr. Scrivenir of Norwich, Conn., in East Weymouth the first of the week. The former pastor, who, by the way was one of the most popular ministers this town ever had, is well and finds things going nicely in his office as district superintendent. While in town Rev. Mr. Scrivenir made a round of calls on his former parishioners.

I am in receipt of a partial program of the list of events on the card at the Boy Scout field day at the fair grounds all day next Monday, April 19, and a most delightful day is in view. In the morning the scouts in athletic events for two cups, the first prize being presented by this paper, and the second cup by the manager of the South Weymouth Public Market.

I am glad to hear that the management of this paper has secured Leo B. Fraher the popular Weymouth Center lad to correspond in Ward 2, for the Gazette. "Toby" is a fine fellow, the right kind to meet, and I am sure his many friends in town will help to make Mr. Fraher's debut as a newspaper writer a decided success.

I dropped into the Railroad boys' annual ball in Quincy last Friday night and the street car employees certainly know how to handle a crowd. I noticed, however, that a large share of the hustlers at the dance work at the local barn, which speaks mighty well for Foreman Howley's boys.

I learn from the Moose in town that the minstrel show the latter part of this month is coming along in fine shape. The program as given out is a decidedly attractive one.

W. R. C. Notes.

At the meeting of April 13th, through the kindness of a member just returned from Florida, oranges were distributed to members and as far as possible sent to members not present.

The Good of the Order Committee will meet at G. A. R. hall, April 22, at 2 o'clock. Name bags will be opened at that time, and members are requested to bring all work finished and unfinished.

It is expected several candidates will be initiated on the evening of the next meeting, April 22.

After the afternoon meeting of May 11, a reception will be given in the evening to charter members. Supper and entertainment and Good of the Order sale for relief—admission free.

Preparations are being made for an entertainment and sale by the Executive Board on April 27.

At the recent Department Convention, held in Boston, Corps No. 102 has the honor of a member, Mrs. Carrie P. Loring, elected a member on the Department Executive Board. Mrs. Harriet Litchfield acted as one of the conductors at this meeting.

Post cards are to be sent to Mrs. Eliza Ferris of North Weymouth and Mrs. Annie Vogel, address Littleton, N. H., care of Ralph Colby.

Corp No. 102 has received an invitation to a reception to be given to the Department President, Miss Susie F. Burton, Thursday evening, April 29, at the Department House, Center street, Dorchester, Mass. Members expecting to attend will please notify at once the President, Mrs. Annie E. Jordan, Weymouth, Mass.

Will Try For Travel Club

A Number of Ladies Nominated in Contest for a Place on Great Trip to be Given by This Paper

The WEYMOUTH GAZETTE announces today the names of candidates so far nominated for membership in the Travel Club, which includes four free trips to New York City, Hudson River, Albany, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Toronto, St. Lawrence River, Montreal, and other places, with all expenses paid. The response is most gratifying. The trip to be given is one that appeals to all and special itinerary that has been prepared for this particular trip makes the project more alluring. The great contest is for women only and the representative list of nominees published in this issue from each district, is assurance enough that the personnel of the party will be most satisfactory.

Get a Good Start

The first thing for the candidates to do is to win a place, and the only possible way to do this is to secure the needed votes. The early weeks of the contest are the best for vote getting, so it is suggested to all whose names appear today that they get their candidacy well established at the earliest possible moment, as supporters will work in proportion to the interest shown by the candidate.

Secure Votes Anywhere

Get the promise of subscriptions now and collect them later. The districts have been established and one trip will be awarded the candidate securing the largest vote in the district in which she competes. A contestant is not confined to any particular section to secure votes, but may solicit anywhere. It will be noted, by referring to the table of votes, that the new subscriptions secure the largest vote. A new subscriber is one who did not take the paper regularly at the time this contest was announced.

Office Open Thursday Night

For the accommodation of the candidates and their friends the contest department will be open each Thursday evening until eight o'clock and at any other time by appointment. The WEYMOUTH GAZETTE is ready and willing to assist the candidates in every possible way and request that they call up by phone or in person, at any time. Receipt books and report blanks will be mailed each nominee, so that no time need be lost. Best plan is to call and get them at the office.

Votes For Women

With the publishing of the names so far entered in the competition the opportunity for women to vote is thereby provided, for not only can the women vote, but they can vote for women, too. Organizations will be perfected and lines drawn in a manner that will surprise the most experienced campaign manager.

Get a Campaign Manager

That is a one very important asset—a campaign manager—and each candidate is urged to get a good one—or two—and then show the men what can be done in the way of vote getting.

Coupons Help Swell Totals

While the subscriptions count the larger vote, candidates should not forget the coupons. The votes that are given on cash payments will be issued at the office at the time payment is made, and under no conditions will votes be issued unless the money accompanies the subscription.

Vote Exhibit

Next Friday the first list showing the standing of the candidates will be given and all votes to be counted must be in the ballot box by Thursday night. Candidates who cannot call during the day can report Thursday evening, or in response to a 'phone message a representative will call, if convenient and get the votes.

Certificate Vote on Subscriptions

Any payment made on subscriptions in favor of a candidate, properly nominated, will secure votes. Contestants are urged to solicit pre-payment and arrearages as well as new subscriptions.

The new subscription gets the most votes, so candidates should put the most effort into procuring new readers. No candidate need hesitate to ask any person to subscribe for The WEYMOUTH GAZETTE. Every home should have it, and the fact that it costs no more to pay a candidate than at the office and may mean the winning of a most delightful trip for the person in whose favor it is paid, should be incentive enough for the subscriber.

Is Your Name on the List?

There are many candidates in the field, but there is room for more. All candidates have the same opportunity of winning one of the valuable trips. The winners in an event of this nature will be the ones who assert themselves and do not overlook an opportunity to secure the votes by the subscription route.

Cast Ballots Thursday

The ballot box for the reception of the votes is located in the business office and votes sent to this office are kept in this box until the time for counting, which is done every Thursday night. No person will be informed of what votes have been cast until the vote standing is published each week.

A Word to Present Subscribers

Persons who are at present readers of this paper can help a candidate materially by clipping out the coupon that appears each week, write thereon the name of the favorite contestant, and send or bring to this office before expiration.

Subscription Votes

The table of votes is given on another page and the most liberal number of counters is issued on NEW SUBSCRIPTIONS but any payment made of one dollar or more entitles the payee to vote for some of those who are entered in the contest.

Ask For The Votes

A certificate good for 1250 votes will be given all present subscribers and if a payment of two dollars is made to the candidates, or at the office. New subscriptions double the vote. Pre-payments count as well as arrearages and if the payment is made at the office the votes should be asked for at the time that payment is made. Subscribers can assist the candidates by calling at the office, or by paying the candidate for the advance year, thereby giving her the votes.

Entrants for trip honors who desire to make a try for a place in the Travel Club and do not live in any of the districts already given will enter from the district nearer to the residence or from the business address.

The nominations to date are as follows,—each candidate starting with the complimentary vote of 5000:—

Bonus Vote For Hustlers

In order to stimulate the vote-getting spirit and to permit the contestants to secure more votes while the field is open a Bonus Vote will be given as follows:

Clubs of five annual subscriptions will give the candidate 5000 votes extra. Two six months subscriptions will count as one annual. In other words, for each report of $10 on subscriptions before Thursday night, April 22, will entitle the candidate to the bonus in addition to the regular vote issued. Candidates can secure as many of these extra Bonus Votes as desired.

THE LIST OF NOMINATIONS FOR THE TRAVEL CLUB RECEIVED AT THIS OFFICE BEFORE NINE O'CLOCK THIS MORNING, IS PUBLISHED BELOW. EACH ONE STARTS WITH 5,000 VOTES, AS THE NOMINATION COUNTS THAT MUCH. THE REAL VOTE COUNTING WILL NOW BEGIN, AND THE STANDING OF THE CONTESTANTS WILL BE PUBLISHED EACH WEEK UNTIL THE CLOSE OF THE CONTEST.

Railroad Ball in Quincy.

In spite of "hard times", "no money" etc., the annual reception, concert and ball of the Division 1 Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees of America, Local 253 Benefit Association held last Friday night in Music hall, Quincy, was attended by the largest crowd that has ever gathered at the gala event for many years.

As early as 7 o'clock, an hour before the scheduled time for starting, auto and street cars unloaded large parties, who soon wended their way into the spacious hall, to secure the choice seats, before the influx of humanity at 8 o'clock.

The reception committee was on duty early and from all indications, considering the due way the crowd was handled, not one of the committee "flipped" on his night's work. The reception committee was composed of the following railroad men from the three carbars of Quincy, East Weymouth and South Braintree: William N. Fields, chairman, James Brasill, C. Gill, Edward Myatt, Arthur Blanchard, George Sprague, T. Ferguson, H. Johnson, H. Packard, J. F. O'Brien, George A. Walker, Frank Russell, George Fay, James Murphy and T. Ambrose Boyle.

At 8 o'clock the following concert program was pleasingly given by Wilson's ever popular orchestra of ten pieces:

March, "Flag of Victory" (Von Blom)
Overture, "Orpheus" (Offenbach)
Concert Waltz, "Rose of Panama" (Blyn)
Selection, Popular Airs (Remick)
Finale, "Northern Light" (Weidt)

On account of small supper accommodations the first table was scheduled for 11 o'clock and the second at 12 when intermission occurred. Large crowds sat down at both tables. The menu consisted of the following edibles: roast turkey, mashed potato, cranberry sauce, banana and cream fritters, lobster and chicken salad, chicken croquets and peas, cream sauce, assorted cakes, ices, rolls and coffee. The caterers were Burleigh and Martin, Boston.

At the close of the banquet the crowd again gathered in the hall and took up the last half of the dance order and at 2 A. M. special cars conveyed the merry makers to their various homes.

The committee directly in charge of the affair was: William H. Gould, chairman, J. J. Kelley, secretary, F. W. Sampson, treasurer, W. S. Belyea, Alfred Sanberg, J. S. Ronayne, E. S. Gomez, James Ford, J. P. McManus, J. F. Kelley, F. W. Theisfeldt, George Dunham, C. Gill, H. Kaufman, H. A. Guy, William Pierce, James Murphy and George Slavin.

DIED ON THE FIELD OF BATTLE

At the Post of Duty Patrick Butler Chief of Police Gives up His Life.

At 7 o'clock last night Patrick Butler, Chief of Police went out from his home, 1027 Pleasant street, full of life and vigor to go to the Police Station at East Weymouth, this morning the mangled and lifeless form of Chief Butler is lying in the home he loved.

As the story goes Butler stepped out into the street and as he did so he saw an auto coming up from East Weymouth without a light or signal. He moved out waving his hands to stop the oncoming machine, neighbor's and persons near by heard a scream and on rushing to the scene found Butler unconscious on the road beside an auto which was being driven by J. E. L. Miller.

The body was taken into the home and medical examiner Dr. J. C. Fraser and Dr. J. H. Libby were shortly on the scene and found the chief with a fractured skull and broken back. Butler lived but two hours, but in that time regained consciousness to tell a part of the story and other details were worked up by Officers Pratt and Schofield later in the evening, a more detailed report of which and life of Chief Butler will appear in our next issue.

High School Notes.

On the first ballot, before any discussion had been made, the three judges of the interscholastic debate between Weymouth and Quincy, held at Quincy on the evening of April 7th, voted unanimously in favor of Weymouth. In the announcement of the decision, the chairman of the judges, Principal Andrews of Hingham, said that it was a sweeping victory. The other judges were Mr. Sampson of Weymouth and Mr. Foye of Quincy. Headmaster Collins of Quincy introduced the speakers, while Mr. Hilton of Weymouth wielded the timer's gavel. On the question, "Resolved, that the Philippines should be given their immediate independence" Quincy upheld the affirmative, with Foye, McDonald and Macmahon in the main debate and Smith in the rebuttal. Weymouth was represented by Martin, Dizer and Talbot in the main speeches, and Talbot in the rebuttal. The time allotted in each speech was twelve minutes. The audience which heard the debate numbered about 300.

Both students and graduates will be glad to hear that John Dizer '14, who was business manager of the school paper, was elected one of the five editors of the Mass. "Aggie" publication in open competition.

Emil Rosnell visited school last week. "Amy" has been busy upholding Weymouth's scholastic fame in the college ranks and he has succeeded pretty well. In a class of over 400 at Dartmouth he was listed as about the 14th in scholarship rank.

Mrs. Eliza J. Bicknell, Dead.

Another of East Weymouth's aged and much respected citizens was called from earthly scenes and activities last Friday morning.

Mrs. Eliza Jane, of whom we write, was the widow of Jacob N. L. Bicknell and was born in East Weymouth 85 years ago, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Dyer and the most of her long and active life has been spent within easy walking distance of the place of her birth.

Narrow distance does not always indicate narrow usefulness as the circle in which the deceased moved found in her a most valued friend and worker. Living within the shadow of the Methodist church from early childhood until infirmities of age compelled a retirement, she was always found where her hands and voice could be of service in any of the departments of church work. The W. C. T. U. could also always rely on her help in promoting its interests.

Funeral services were held at her late home, 746 Broad street last Sunday afternoon and were conducted by Rev. William M. Newton of the Methodist church. Mrs. Wm. A. Hodges added to the exercises the following selections: "Passing Out of the Shadow" and "Beautiful Land on High."

The burial was in the Bicknell lot at Fairmount cemetery, Benjamin B. Sylvester Charles Chubbuck Jr., George A. Lincoln and Minot F. Poole, acting bearers.

Mrs. Bicknell is survived by two octogenarian sisters, Mrs. Nancy Bates of Cottage street and Mary, wife of Francis Poole, Middle, also several grand children.

 Which Appeared in the Gazette

Forty-seven years ago.
 Weymouth Grant Club.—In accordance with the call of the President, Col. J.
 L. Bates the club met at the Town hall on Tuesday evening last, April 9th the anniversary of the surrender of Lee's army.
 The chair was occupied by the president and in the absence of the secretary, Capt.
 C. W. Hastings, James Humphrey Esq. was chosen secretary-protem.

It was voted to proceed to the further organization of the club by the choice of thirty vice presidents to act as a committee in their several districts to canvas the town and keep a list of all persons in their district for the popular candidate for president and use all honorable means for the nomination of Gen. U. S. Grant and his triumphant election by the people.

 sumed operations Monday morning.

The silver wedding of Mr. and Mrs.
 Clinton Nash occurs next Monday evening but as their new dwelling is not yet completed, the party will be given in the hall of the engine-house at Nash's Corner.

The concert complimentary to the East Weymouth Temple Drum Corps, given in the hall of Mechanics Temple of Honor, last Monday evening, was well attended, about 200 ladies and gentlemen being present. The opening feature of the entertainment was a quartette given by Mrs.
 B. S. Lovell, Mrs. A. B. Pratt, Messrs.
 Amos Tirrell, C. W. Bailey, with piano accompaniment by Mr. W. F. Burrell.

Election of Officers.—At the annual meeting of the East Weymouth Savings bank the following officers were elected:
 President, John P. Lovell; vice presidents,
 Z. L. Bicknell, Joseph Totman; directors,
 P. W. French, David Tucker, Bela French,
 George W. Fay, David D. Randall, H. F.
 Bicknell, C. H. Pratt, Peter W. French,

 The severe storm which commenced early Saturday morning was the hardest that we have had this winter, some 11 inches of snow falling, which drifted badly, but quickly disappeared.

 No. 2, with their apparatus, escorting the engineers, with Eureka H. & L. Co. and E. S. Beals Hose Co. of North Weymouth as guests, marched to Jackson square, where a trial was made of the steamer and hydrants.

At the meeting of the East Weymouth Cemetery Association, held Wednesday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Martin E. Hawes; clerk and treasurer,
 W. W. Raymond; standing committee,
 Z. L. Bicknell, D. D. Randall, Joseph
 Totman, A. J. Garey, E. G. Bates.

It is a matter of general regret that Messrs. John Long & Son have thought it advisable to remove their manufacturing business to Braintree about May 1. A large number of hands have been regularly employed at their factory here for a number of years, and the work is more steady than at many of our boot and shoe houses, and it is not pleasant to announce any change that means less business for South Weymouth.

Larger Main.—The Bradley Fertilizer Company will greatly enlarge their works at North Weymouth, and as a larger supply of Wessagusset Lake water will be needed, the company have communicated with the board of Water Commissioners relative to the replacing of the present six inch pipe from Bridge street, through Neck and River streets, with a ten inch pipe.

The Cigarette's Appeal.

By JENNIE F. STODDARD.

Come, boys, and follow me,
 I will gladly lead the way
 To drink, despair and misery,
 There'll not be much delay.

I will take from out your life,
 Every noble purpose in it,
 You shall choose some special sin,
 I will help you sin it.
 I'll create a strong desire
 In your heart for all things low,
 I will make you dull and stupid.
 A blockhead, whom your friends won't know.

You shall hold no place of trust,
 No honor shall you ever bear,
 I'll introduce you, if I must,
 To those who'll lead you to despair.

The jail's and prison's yawning jaws
 Shall be, with greed, awaiting you;
 Do not think of nature's laws,
 Or of the wreck I have in view.

You need not take my word, I think,
 For many drunkards can surely see,
 How this fatal desire for drink
 Was first urged by smoking me.

Ask the keepers of insane men
 Why so many spend their lives
 In an asylum, or a paupers' den,
 While I'm always alert, and will strive.

To get new soldiers to join my ranks,
 New converts to embrace my creed, Come, boys, I've promised, I'm always frank,

My word I never fail to keep,
 I'll lead you to a life that's low,
 I'll guide your weary, faltering feet
 Where those, who smoke me, always go.

Counting the Cost

I OFTEN wonder," said a local merchant recently, "why our bill for toll calls isn't larger each month, when I stop long enough to consider the use we make of the telephone, both at the store and at home. There isn't a town where I do business but seems nearer to me than even next door. I can beat many competitors by selling my goods over the telephone before they can get there by train; I can get into every town in New England all in one day, tell about my stock, quote my prices, make my deals and sit right here with my eyes on the home store all the time. Most of the people I sell to like that way of doing business.

"As for the folks at home, they keep in touch with all their friends everywhere, and my daughter there at Wellesley isn't a bit lonely, for she has mothers counsel, and it's the same way with Bob in Boston.

"Do you think I would let that telephone out of my reach?
 No siree! It's not only money in my pocket in my business, but we are in the center of a big world of real live people, just because we can call up any one, anywhere."

 CHAPTER III.

Across the Bridge.

It was ten o'clock, not later, when the judge re-entered his front door. He was alone—absolutely alone, as he had never been since that night of long ago, when with the inner fence completed and the gates all locked, he turned to the great negro at his side and quietly said:

"We are done with the world, Bela.
 Are you satisfied to share this solitude with me?" And Bela had replied:
 "Night and day, your honor. And when you are not here—when you are at court, to bear it alone."

And now this faithful friend was dead, and it was he who must bear it alone—alone! How could he face it!
 He sought for no answer, nor did he allow himself to dwell for one minute on the thought. There was something else he must do first—do this very night, if possible.

Taking down his hat from the rack, he turned and went out again, this time carefully locking the door behind him, also the first gate. But he stopped to listen before lifting his hand to the second one.

A sound of steady breathing, accompanied by a few impatient movements, came from the other side. A man was posted there within a foot of the gate.
 Noiselessly the judge recoiled and made his way around to the other set of gates. Here all was quiet enough, and, sliding quickly out, he cast a

Cast a Hasty Glance Up and Down the Lane.

hasty glance up and down the lane and,
 seeing nothing more alarming than the back of a second officer lounging at the corner, pulled the gate quietly to and locked it.

He was well down the road toward the ravine before the officer turned.

The time has now come for giving you a clearer idea of this especial neighborhood. Judge Ostrander's house, situated at the juncture of an unimportant road with the main highway, had in its rear three small houses, two of them let and one still unrented. Farther on, but on the opposite side of the way, stood a very old dwelling, in which there lived and presumably worked a solitary woman, the sole and final survivor of a large family. Beyond was the ravine, cutting across the road and terminating in a ravine merits some description.

It was a picturesque addition to the town through which it cut at the point of greatest activity. With the various bridges connecting the residence portion with the lower business streets we have nothing to do. But there was a nearer one, of which the demands of this story necessitate a clear presentation.

This bridge was called Long, and spanned the ravine and its shallow stream of water not a quarter of a mile below the short road or lane we have just seen Judge Ostrander enter.
 Between it and this lane, a narrow path ran amid the trees and bushes bordering the ravine. This path was seldom used, but when it was it acted as a short cut to a certain part of the town mostly given over to factories.

Indeed the road of which this bridge formed a part was called Factory on this account. Starting from the main highway a half-mile or so below Ostrander lane, it ran diagonally back to the bridge, where it received a turn which sent it south and east again toward the lower town. A high bluff rose at this point, which made the farther side of the ravine much more imposing than the one on the near side, where the slope was gradual.

This path, and even the bridge itself, were almost wholly unlighted. They were seldom used at night—seldom used at any time. But it was by this route the judge elected to go into town; not for the pleasure of the walk, as was very apparent from the extreme depression of his manner, but from some inward necessity which drove him on, against his wishes, possibly against his secret misgivings.

He had met no one in his short walk down the lane, but for all that he paused before entering the path just mentioned, to glance back and see if he were being watched or followed.
 When satisfied that he was not he looked up from the solitary waste where he stood, to the cheerless heavens and sighed; then forward into the mass of impenetrable shadow that he must yet traverse and shuddered as many another had shuddered ere beginning this walk. For it was near the end of this path, in full sight of the bridge he must cross, that his friend, Algernon Etheridge, had been set upon and murdered so many years before;
 and the shadow of this ancient crime still lingered over the spot.

Determined not to stop or to cast one faltering look to right or left, he hurried on with his eyes fixed upon the ground and every nerve braced to resist the influence of the place and its undying memories. But with the striking of his foot against the boards of the bridge nature was too much for him, and his resolve vanished. Instead of hastening on he stopped, and, having stopped, paused long enough to take in all the features of the scene and any changes which time might have wrought. He even forced his shrinking eyes to turn and gaze upon the exact spot where his beloved Al-gernon had been found, with his sightless eyes turned to the sky.

This latter place, singular in that it lay open to the opposite bank without the mask of bush or tree to hide it, was in immediate proximity to the end of the bridge he had attempted to cross. It bore the name of Dark Hollow, and hollow and dark it looked in the universal gloom. But the power of its associations was upon him, and before he knew it he was retracing his steps as though drawn by a magnetism he could not resist, till he stood within this hollow and possibly on the very foot of ground from the mere memory of which he had recoiled for years.

A moment of contemplation—a sigh, such as only escapes the bursting heart in moments of extreme grief or desolation—and he tore his eyes from the ground to raise them slowly but with deep meaning, to something which rose from the brow of the hill in stark and curious outline not explainable in itself, but clear enough to one who had seen its shape by daylight. Judge Ostrander had thus seen it many times in the past, and knew just where to look for the one remaining chimney and solitary gable of a house struck many years before by lightning and left a grinning shell to mock the eye of all who walked this path or crossed this bridge.

Black amid blackness, with just the contrast of its straight lines to the curve of natural objects about it, it commanded the bluff, summoning up memories of an evil race cut short in a moment by an outraged Providence, and Judge Ostrander, marking it, found himself muttering aloud as he dragged himself slowly away: "Why should Time, so destructive elsewhere, leave one stone upon another of this accursed ruin?"

When he had reached the middle of the bridge he stopped short to look back at Dark Hollow and utter in a smothered groan, which would not be repressed, a name which by all the rights of the spot should have been Algernon's, but was not.

The utterance of this name seemed to startle him, for, with a shuddering look around, he hastily traversed the rest of the bridge and took the turn about the hill to where Factory road branched off toward the town. Here he stopped again and for the first time revealed the true nature of his destination. For when he moved on again it was to take the road along the bluff, and not the one leading directly into town.

This meant a speedy passing by the lightning-struck house. He knew, of course, and evidently shrank from the ordeal, for once up the hill and on the level stretch above, he resolutely forbore to cast a glance at its dilapidated fence and decayed gate posts. Had he not done this—had his eyes followed from these tottering posts to the face of the ruin, he would have been witness to a strange sight. For gleaming through the demolished heart of it—between the chimney on the one side and the broken line of the gable on the other—could be seen the half-circle of the moon suddenly released from the clouds which had hitherto enshrouded it. A weird sight, to be seen only when all conditions favored.
 It was to be seen here tonight; but the judge's eye was bent another way, and he passed on, unnoting.

The ground was high along this bluff; almost fifty feet above the level of the city upon which he had just turned his back. Of stony formation and much exposed to the elements, it had been considered an undesirable site by builders, and not a house was to be seen between the broken shell of the one he had just left, and the long, low, brilliantly illuminated structure ahead, for which he was evidently making.

The pant of a dozen motors, the shouting of various farewells and then the sudden rushing forth of a long line of automobiles proclaimed that the fete of the day was about over and that peace and order would soon prevail again in Claymore inn.

Without waiting for the final one to pass, the judge slid around to the rear and peered in at the kitchen door.

Three women were at work in this busiest of scenes, and the three women's heads came simultaneously together. There was reason for their whispers. His figure, his head, his face were all unusual, and at that moment highly expressive, and coming as he did out of the darkness, his presence had an uncanny effect upon their simple minds. They had been laughing before; they ceased to laugh
 now. Why?

Meanwhile Judge Ostrander was looking about him for Mrs. Yardley.
 The quiet figure of a squat little body blocked up a certain doorway.

"I am looking for Mrs. Yardley," he ventured.

The little figure turned; he was conscious of two very piercing eyes being raised to his, and heard in shaking accents, which yet were not the accents of weakness, the surprised ejacula-
 tion:

"Judge Ostrander!"

Next minute they were together in a small room, with the door shut behind them. The energy and decision of this mite of a woman were surprising.

"I was going—to you—in the morning—" she panted in her excitement.
 "To apologize," she respectfully finished.

"Then," said he, "it was your child who visited my house today?"

She nodded. Her large head was somewhat disproportioned to her short and stocky body. But her glance and manner were not unpleasing. There was a moment of silence which she hastened to break.

"Peggy is very young; it was not her fault. She is so young she doesn't know where she went. She was found loitering around the bridge—a dangerous place for a child, but we've been very busy all day—and she was found there and taken along by—the other person. I hope that you will excuse it, sir."

What he had to say came with a decided abruptness.

"Who is the woman, Mrs. Yardley?
 That's what I have come to learn, and not to complain of your child."

The answer struck him very strangely, though he saw nothing to lead him to distrust her candor.

"I don't know, Judge Ostrander. She calls herself Averill, but that doesn't make me sure of her. You wonder that I should keep a lodger about whom I have any doubts, but there are times when Mr. Yardley uses his own judgment, and this is one of the times. The woman pays well and promptly," she added in a lower tone.

"Her status? Is she maid, wife or widow?"

"Oh, she says she is a widow, and I see every reason to believe her."

A slight grimace in her manner, the smallest possible edge to her voice,
 led the judge to remark:

"Pretty?"

"Not like a girl, sir. She's old enough to show fade; but I don't believe that a man would mind that. She has a look—a way, that even women feel. You may judge, sir, if we, old stagers at the business, have been willing to take her in and keep her, at any price—a woman who won't show her face except to me, and who will not leave her room without her veil and then only for walks in places where no one else wants to go—she must have some queer sort of charm to overcome all scruples. But she's gone too far today. She shall leave the inn tomorrow. I promise you that, sir, whatever Samuel says. But sit down; sit down; you look tired, judge. Is there anything you would like? Shall I call Samuel?"

"No. I'm not much used to walking. Besides, I have had a great loss today. My man, Bela—" Then with his former abruptness: "Have you no idea who this Mrs. Averill is, or why she broke into my house?"

"There's but one explanation, sir.
 I've been thinking about it ever since
 I got wind of where she took my Peggy. The woman is not responsible

"Have You No Idea Who This Mrs. Averill Is?"
 She has some sort of mania. Why else should she go into a strange gate just because she saw it open?"

"You speak of her as a stranger.
 Are you quite sure that she is a stranger to Shelby? You have not been so very many years here, and her constant wearing of a veil indoors and out is very suspicious."

"So I'm beginning to think. And there is something else, judge, which makes me suspect you may be quite correct about her not being an entire stranger here. She knows this house too well."

The judge started. The strength of his self-control had relaxed a bit, and he showed in the look he cast about him what it had cost him to enter these doors.

"It is not the same, of course," continued Mrs. Yardley, affected in a peculiar way by the glimpse she had caught of the other's emotion, unnatural and incomprehensible as it appeared to her. "The place has been greatly changed, but there is a certain portion of the old house left which only a person who knew it as it originally was would be apt to find;
 and yesterday, on going into one of these remote rooms I came upon her sitting in one of the windows looking out. How she got there or why she went I cannot tell you. She didn't choose to tell me, and I didn't ask.
 But I've not felt real easy about her since."

"Excuse me, Mrs. Yardley, it may be a matter of no moment, but do you mind telling me where this room is?"
 "It's on the top floor, sir; and it looks out over the ravine. Perhaps she was spying out the path to your house."

The judge's face hardened. He felt baffled and greatly disturbed; but he spoke kindly enough when he again addressed Mrs. Yardley:

"I am as ignorant as you of this woman's personality and of her reasons for intruding into my presence this morning. But there is something so peculiar about this presumptuous attempt of hers at an interview that I feel impelled to inquire into it more fully, even if I have to approach the only source of information capable of giving me what I want—that is, herself. Mrs. Yardley, will you procure me an immediate interview with this woman? I am sure that you can be relied upon to do this and to do it with caution. You have the countenance of a woman unusually discreet."

The subtle flattery did its work.
 She was not blind to the fact that he had introduced it for that very purpose, but it was not in her nature to withstand any appeal from so exalted a source, however made. Lifting her eyes fearlessly to his, she responded earnestly:

"I am proud to serve you. I will see what I can do. Will you wait here?"

Judge Ostrander had just time to brace himself to meet the unknown when the door fell back and the woman of the morning appeared in the opening.

Weymouth Gazette AND TRANSCRIPT

FRIDAY, APRIL 16, 1915

Have a friendly talk with your neighbor about his hens before you plant your garden.

We hear much said about hard times, the unemployed and kindred topics but at times we think the picture is somewhat overdrawn. Fairs and entertainments throughout the season have invariably been quite successful and on inquiry at our several savings banks we learn that while the gains for the year have not been as large as in some previous years, yet every bank shows quite a material increase in the amount of deposit now in the banks.

Boston is the leading city in the world in the territorial area set apart for parks and play grounds, it has 20,570 acres. London comes next with 19,000 acres, while New York boasts of but 6,930 acres. Being in the Metropolitan district and having a part of this 20,570 acres it occurs to us that as we are annually paying quite a liberal Metropolitan tax it might be a good idea to make a strenuous effort to get back $50 to add to what we raise direct for park improvements.

Mrs. Helen Allen Hunt in Recital.

Mrs. Helen Allen Hunt, mezzo-soprano, is to give a song recital in Alpha hall, Quincy, on the afternoon of Sunday, April 25th at 3.30 o'clock. Mrs. Hunt will be assisted by a violinist of the Boston Symphony orchestra, and Harris S. Shaw, the noted Boston organist, at the piano. The public sale of tickets is now on at the drug store of C. D. Harlow Weymouth, and C. C. Hearn, in Quincy square.—Adv.

"My Marjorie" by Weymouth Composer.

One of the most beautiful examples of ballad writing since "Sweet Adeline" came out some years ago has for its title "My Marjorie," and is composed (words and music) by a Weymouth boy, C. Raymond Perkins. Since the first edition of this song about a week ago the sales have been remarkable and several publishers predict it to be one of the biggest hits for a long time.

Mr. Perkins is a graduate of Weymouth High School '09 and for the past ten years has devoted most of his time to his chosen art which seems to be a natural gift to him. As a teacher of the piano he has been very successful and has a large class at present.

Weymouth Board of Trade.

The April meeting of the Board of Trade, as held in the Clapp Memorial building, Wednesday night, was a well attended one, and several topics were discussed with much interest.

A suggestion that a few trees be set out at Great Hill park brought out quite a talk on the relation of Weymouth to the Metropolitan Park system, opened quite a debate as to the advisability of making a more strenuous effort to get something in return for our Metropolitan Park tax, but as the commissioners are now arranging the tax levy for the next five years, it was thought advisable to postpone action until the tax was adjusted, and the meeting voted an appropriation of $20 for trees at the Great Hill park; the same to be expended under the direction of the Weymouth Park Commissioners.

The "Build Now" movement was discussed, and the need of more up-to-date tenements was made quite manifest if we are to hold out inducements for new people to look to Weymouth for homes.

"Clean Up Day" was another topic for debate, with much said in praise of last year's work and at the same time criticism and suggestion of improved methods. The subject resulting in a vote to ask the Selectmen to designate a Clean-Up week and ask the citizens to co-operate in the work.

Reynolds Post 58, G. A. R. Celebrate.

The 50th anniversary of the surrender of his army by Gen'l Lee to Gen'l Grant was fittingly observed by Reynolds Post 58 G. A. R. hall in East Weymouth last Friday night. There was a good attendance of the survivors of the great struggle and other patriotic bodies were well represented.

The program of the hour was singing of patriotic songs, cornet solos by Miss Theodora Keith, piano and mandolin duets by Misses Ethel and Gertrude Ryan, Mrs. Mary Flint, accompanist.

The story of the three great events of the war was well told by J. M. Whitcomb, Dr. W. A. Drake and Bradford Hawes. Mr. Whitcomb pictured the uprising of 1861 and going forth of the minute men and those who followed them.

Dr. Drake, an eye witness of the surrender of Lee, gave a graphic description of the event at Appomattox and Bradford Hawes told the story of the home coming and settling down to civil life.

SPORTS IN TOWN.

By J. E. Fabyan.

Weymouth High swamped Hingham High Tuesday afternoon on the Clapp Memorial field the score being 16-2. In the early part of the game Hingham showed quite strong and for a time some of the Weymouth fans were worried for fear of what might happen but the Weymouth boys finally began to land and after that there was nothing to it but Weymouth. Hingham scored their two runs in the third inning when they found Deane for several hits. Deane was a little off on control but we can't expect too much in the first game. "Connie" had them breaking their backs for four innings.

Daily Thought.

I always think that the first time one feels pain and hopelessness teaches one a great deal about oneself. It is just yourself that you need to learn about.—Mandell Creighton.

SIGNALS OF DISTRESS.

Weymouth People Should Know How to Read and Heed Them.

Disordered kidneys give many signals of distress.

The secretions may be dark, contain sediment.

Passages are sometimes frequent, scanty, painful.

Backache is often present day and night.

Headaches and dizzy spells may occur. Weakened kidneys should receive quick help.

Don't delay! Use a special kidney remedy.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys, backache and urinary disorders.

Weymouth evidence proves their worth. Mrs. B. W. Hewett, 191 Washington street, Weymouth, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are a household remedy with us. One of the family found Doan's Kidney Pills most beneficial when his kidneys caused him trouble. I gladly confirm all I have ever said about Doan's Kidney Pills, as we know they live up to the claims made for them."

Price 50 cents, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Hewett had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

The HOME BEAUTIFUL

Their Care and Cultivation

Among the Most Beautiful of Plants Are the Different Varieties of Ferns, Cool Looking and Luxuriant.

CARE OF THE FERNS

By L. M. BENNINGTON.

The ordinary way to propagate this class of plants is by dividing the plants, by the creeping rhizomes, by the little bulbets that form on the fronds and by the seeds or spores that appear on the under side of the leaves.

The enterprising fern lover will find it most interesting to propagate by spores and perchance produce a really valuable addition to these beautiful and graceful plants.

Procure a seed-pan or box with plenty of drainage holes, and cover the bottom with broken crockery. On this place half-decayed sod and fill with carefully mixed and sifted leaf-mold and sand.

Make the surface of the soil perfectly smooth and level, and then scatter the spores on it and leave them without any covering, that is, of soil. However, they must be inclosed in glass by placing a pane of glass over the seed-box or pan.

Water by placing the seed-pan in water, and keep it there until the water appears on the surface of the soil. Then remove at once, for too much water will destroy the spores. Keep the box in the light, but not the sun, remembering that ferns naturally grow in shady places and that we should try to follow nature's lead.

KEEP LAWN WELL ROLLED

To make a good lawn the soil requires frequent rolling. In the first place a good lawn cannot be produced in one, two or three years, that is, a perfect lawn, without depression and with a soil surface as smooth as a floor.

A lawn roller can be made, without much expense, from cement, using gas pipe for the axle and frame. The form for setting the cement may be of wood, using very narrow slats or galvanized iron. In case the latter is used, the form may be left on the roller, and if it is kept dry and protected from the weather, it will last a long time.

A handy size for a lawn roller is one about 20 inches long by 14 inches in diameter. If one has the proper tools, which consist of a vise and a thread-cutting tool, a roller can be made in a short time, and at very little expense.

HOTBED FOR EARLY FLOWERS

A hotbed enables one to gain a month on the season. They are made and handled like a coldframe, but are built in a three-foot-deep excavation which is filled to the level of the earth with fresh stable manure, which for a few days has been fermented and forked and fermented again. It must be trodden down and, when the soil is at 90 degrees temperature, covered with six inches of rich soil. Bank up the outside. When the sun shines the temperature of the air in the bed may be 70 to 80 and at other times 55 to 60 degrees. A hotbed extends the season of tender annuals by making possible an early start for transplanting in May.

FIGHTING THE FLOWER BUGS

If the leaves of your plants curl up look for insects. If red spider deluge the plant (not the soil) with clear, cold water. If aphids, fumigate with tobacco or wash them with strong soap suds, or with a tea made of quassia chips, as hot as the hand can bear.

For white worms, let the soil get as dry as may be, then set the pot in a vessel containing quite hot water, taking care not to scald the plant. Or, set the dry pot into a vessel containing lime-water until thoroughly saturated; or make a strong tea of black pepper, and saturate the soil.

If insects appear on the ferns, apply fir-tree oil soap suds, dipping the plant so that it may be entirely covered. The bath may injure the plant, in inexperienced hands, but the insects will kill it. Try to use judgment.

When you find a plant or plants with lice on them, have ready a large tight box and cover the bottom of it with an inch of cut tobacco stems. On this sprinkle a little boiling water, set the plants at once on the tobacco, cover tightly and leave for twenty-four hours. The lice will be sick if not dead. Repeat if necessary. This is better than smoking or dipping.

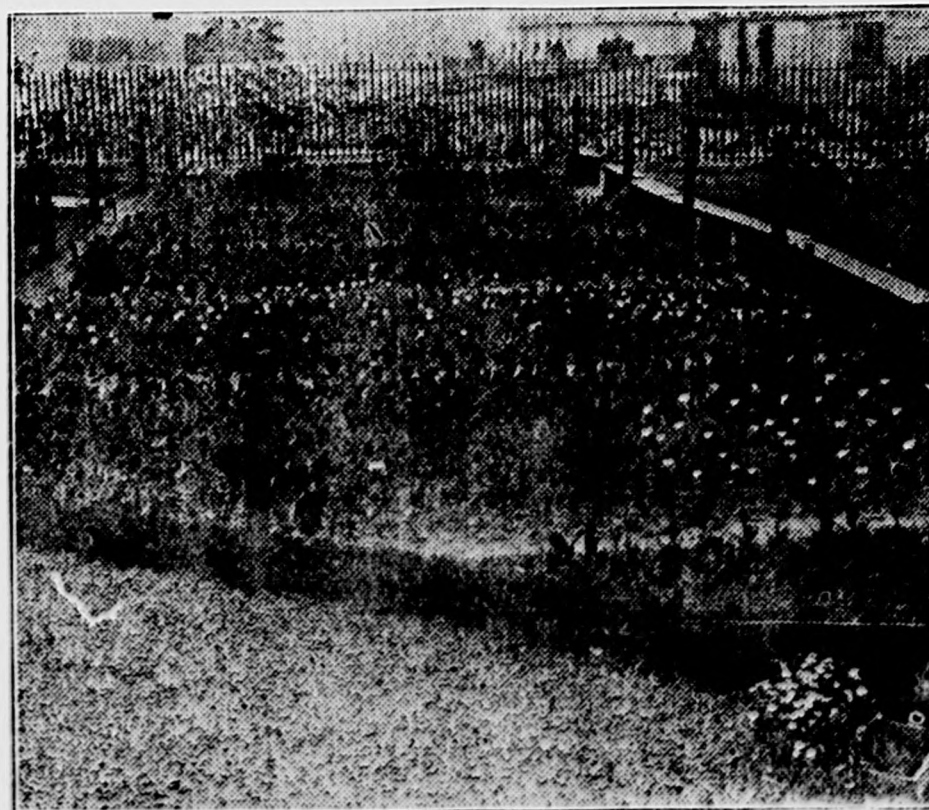

HINTS ABOUT FLOWERS

We usually think of pruning only when a plant is asleep. It is true, that the easiest pruning should be done then, but there is much that we can do during the summer to keep a plant in good condition.

The lilac is usually the best pruned shrub we have, for the simple reason that we are apt to pick every bloom. The plant cannot of course then make any seeds and the strength is thrown into new wood where it belongs.

Rose bushes should be treated the same way. A second bloom can be produced on wistaria by following this rule and cutting head of each runner.

Along towards the middle of summer you will notice new, very strong shoots coming upon your plants. When they reach an even height with the rest of the plant nip out the tip and leaves with your thumb and finger and thus make the shoot send out some side branches.

Carlyle on Warfare.

Are not all true men that live, or that ever lived, soldiers of the same army, enlisted under heaven's captaincy, to do battle against the same enemy, the empire of darkness and wrong? Why should we misknow one another, fight not against the enemy, but against ourselves, from mere difference of uniform? All uniforms shall be good, so they hold in them true, valiant men—Carlyle.

VOL. XLIX. NO. 6.

TRAVEL CLUB CONTEST NOW ON

Balloting For Candidates Now in Order. First Vote Exhibit Given Today. Special Prizes for Hustlers

Contestants for a place in The Weymouth Gazette Travel Club will have an additional interest in the coming week for CASH PRIZES IN GOLD will be offered for the person casting the largest number of votes and to the person sending in the largest number of individual subscriptions, as follows:

$2.50 in Gold for the largest vote.
$2.50 in Gold for the largest number of individual subscription.

Two six months subscriptions to count as one annual. This supplementary contest will close at eight o'clock Thursday night April 29th, and is open to all contestants.

The first vote exhibit showing the standing of those candidates entered in the competition for membership in the Travel Club that is being formed of Weymouth women and will be given a nine-day trip extraordinary to New York up the Hudson River by daylight, Albany, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Toronto, The Thousand Islands, Montreal and returning by the White Mountains, as well as many pleasing side trips which will be announced later, is given today. From this time on it is going to be intensely interesting to watch the vote totals as the different counts are made and published in The Gazette each week. It is going to be a very interesting event and at the end some happy faces will gleam with pleasure for the successful termination of their efforts. And in any event there will be no losers. Everyone wins. Several of the contestants did not make a report of their votes for this first showing but will be represented in the next standing which will be given in the issue of next week.

The "Bonus Vote" which was offered on clubs of subscriptions of ten dollars will be repeated this week in order to allow each one of those who care to benefit thereby. This means that for each report of ten dollars reported by next Thursday will entitle the candidate to 5000 votes in addition to the regular schedule. This offering is called a "Bonus Vote".

Each contestant can secure as many of these "Bonus Vote" offers as may be desired. The time to act is now. Again it is timely to call the contestants' attention to the fact that this is not a long drawn out contest but will terminate in about six weeks. The early hustler has the advantage.

In securing these extra "Bonus Votes" at this time may be the means of paving the way for the trip honors that will come to those who try hard enough.

Candidates are urged to get the coupons that are clipped from the Gazette to the counting room before the expiration as expired coupons will not be counted in the totals. These counters are worth twenty-five votes and will materially increase the count of the one in whose favor they are voted. The dating is extended each week so friends who are saving coupons for the benefit of the contestants should "Watch the Date" on each one.

The certificate vote is that vote that is issued on payments made on subscription and can be voted at the convenience of the recipient.

While the vote totals are not large as yet they mark the beginning of the battle for the ballots which will be continued for the next few weeks and which will determine who the ladies will be who will go on this delightful trip at the expense of this paper. The following weeks will be brimful of hustle and the interest will be intense as the totals of the various candidates reach the high figures.

Several new candidates from the various districts have announced their candidature since last week's issue. This is to be expected for as the value of this excellent itinerary and the exceptional easy plan that has been provided to secure the benefits of same are fully realized many are the persons who will be sorry indeed that their candidacy was not established at the very beginning of the competition. In every district there is ample opportunity for a candidate to get into the vote-getting habit and forge to the top of the standing in one week's balloting.

This contest is just like anything else worth while in life. Those who set a goal and faithfully go after it, are the ones who get the big things in this world. Several of the candidates say it is the greatest fun they ever had. They assert that it is all in the trying. Find a contestant who is really trying and see if she is not pleased that she is in the contest. The world looks around a winner and this is going to be more evident at the contest progresses. The real contest began with this week's standing, yet the votes are already coming to the office for the favorite ones and many are the votes that will be accorded the workers in this way that will be a distinct surprise to those who get them.

SUBSCRIPTIONS CAN BE PAID AT THE OFFICE BY ANY SUBSCRIBER AT ANY TIME, AND THE VOTES GIVEN TO A CANDIDATE, BUT THE VOTES MUST BE ASKED FOR AT THE TIME THAT THE PAYMENT IS MADE.

The Trip.

No where in the world is there a trip so picturesque, or one which embraces as great a variety of attractions for the summer tourist and vacation seeker as does this trip that has been provided for the Travel Club, which will be formed by the contest route of Weymouth women. The trip in its entirety begins with the departure from Boston and is completed only when the entire party arrive safely back again. But the sail up the famous Hudson River on the extremely modern steamers with the historic scenes to greet the eyes at every turn makes this portion of the ride one of long memory.

The stay in Albany, most noted for being the capitol of the great state of New York, in which the largest city in the states is contained, is not of long duration but a night at the Ten Eyck hotel, one of the best that can be had, and a sight-seeing expedition around the city will be of much interest to the travelers.

There is much that will be seen of a nature that would not be afforded elsewhere. A person who is thoroughly conversant with the best way to see the most will be at hand and nothing will be missed that time will allow to be seen.

Not much of interest is to be seen on the ride from Albany to Buffalo, but another day will be given to describing the rail route and the most pleasing sights that will be seen by the party.

From Buffalo to the Falls is but a short ride but one of the most inspiring for before you the great cataract of America is thundering, smoking, glittering with green and white rollers, hurling the waters of a whole continent in splendor and speed over the sharp edges of the long, brown rock by which Lake Erie the "Broad" steps proudly down to Ontario, "the Beautiful".

The climatic conditions of these Niagara Falls are, in summer, as near perfection as possible; the "day of sunshine are clear and bright and are crowned with most beautiful sunsets; the nights are cool and sleep-producing; and the great body of water combined with woodland and mountain breezes cool and purify the air to such a degree that it has a subtle charm for those in search of health, rest and recreation. It has been said and truthfully so, that one of Nature's greatest creations whose shrine commands the homage of wonder worshippers from every known land, the Falls of Niagara are a singularly fit place for the little less historic ride down the St. Lawrence river.

TOWN BUSINESS.

At the meeting of the Selectmen on Monday, Willard F. Hall was appointed to see that the contract in regard to transporting of herring to the pond is enforced; vacancy caused by the death of Chief Butler.

Walter W. Arnold et. al. asked for endorsement, according to state laws, as suitable persons to form a corporation which is to be known as the Fort Point Athletic Association.

A communication from Allen J. Leigh, Commissioner of Health, gives the town an opportunity to join with any other town or city in the maintenance of a hospital for the care of tuberculous patients.

Charles F. Marble, who recently lost a child by an automobile accident, filed a very earnest plea for a better enforcement of the laws in regard to automobile travel on our streets.

Arthur H. Pratt files an application for the position, now vacant, of Chief of Police.

Theodore Raymond, Thomas F. Brady and Charles B. Mowry were drawn as jurors for the Superior Court at Dedham.

There seems to be a break in the price of road oil, cut prices are constantly coming to the Board of Selectmen and the lowest yet was a proposal at 3 1/2 cents.

It was voted to join with Braintree in cleaning out that much smelt brook which in part the dividing line between the two towns.

The appointment of Fire Chiefs was one of the burdens of the board for the afternoon, as in one or two instances there were rival petitions presented to the board for the positions. A discussion and some balloting resulted in the appointment of Hiram Nadel, Ward 1; John Q. Hunt, Ward 2; Wallace H. Bicknell, Ward 3; Walter W. Pratt, Ward 4 and Matthew O'Dowd, Ward 5.

The much talked of condition of Washington street between Washington and Lincoln squares was up again and by request of the selectmen Superintendent Conway of the Bay State Street Railway Co. was present to talk it over. No new light was thrown upon the screen. Every body admits that the travel is unbearable on account of the rolls, jumps and pitches the travelling public have been obliged to endure. Mr. Conway will now take the matter up with his board of directors and see what can be done to remedy the evil.

Pony express licenses were granted to George E. Fogg, Kenneth McKenzie and George E. Rowell.

Salaries for the year of the Board of Selectmen will be $600 for the clerk and $450 for each of the other members.

Chief Butler at Rest.

Thousand of People of Weymouth and Other Places Pay Tribute to Our Fallen Chief.

PATRICK BUTLER

Briefly last week we recorded the sad taking away of Patrick Butler, Chief of Police of this town. There is now but little we can add to the manner of his going. He went out from his home at about seven o'clock in his usual health and vigor and on reaching the street saw an automobile coming up from East Weymouth without lights. The immediate following incidents will probably never be known but in the next instant the mangled form of Chief Butler was beneath a machine driven by J. E. L. Miller of Lovell's Corner. Chief Butler was removed to his now stricken home and in the few conscious moments given him before death came, he told of making an effort to stop the car. Medical Examiner Dr. J. C. Fraser and Dr. J. H. Libby were in attendance, but from the moment he was struck by the oncoming car Patrick Butler was beyond medical aid, which he fully realized and bidding goodbye to wife and children he passed away.

Funeral services were held on Monday and rarely has there been in Weymouth a more general tribute of respect shown to a departed citizen. Flags were at half mast and all business houses closed during the hours of service which was held at the Immaculate Conception church on Monday morning.

Under escort of the Weymouth Police Department, the Fire Department, Weymouth Council K. of C., of which Chief Butler's son is Grand Knight, headed by D. G. K. William Doyle, and delegates from the Police Department of Boston, Quincy, Hingham, Milton, Cohasset and Hull, the remains were brought to the church.

Rev. Fr. Cornelius T. Riordan, pastor of the church, was the celebrant of solemn requiem mass and had as assistants Rev. Fr. Dennis J. Crimmins of St. Francis Xavier church, South Weymouth, deacon and Rev. Maurice Lynch of Cambridge, sub-deacon. He was also assisted by the regular church choir directed by Miss Nellie F. Noonan, organist.

The ushers were Frank McCarthy, William J. Fitzsimmons, J. E. Mulligan, Walter H. Cronin, C. B. Mitchell and John McCarthy.

Among the prominent persons in the church during the services were Asst. Dist. Atty. Fred G. Katzman of Dedham, Acting Chief David R. McKay and Inspector F. W. Goodhue of the Quincy Police department, Chief Maurice Pierce of Milton, Chief W. J. James of Hingham, Chief Frank Reynolds of Hull, Chief Walter Bates of Cohasset and Ex-Supt. William H. Pierce of the Boston Police department. The Board of Selectmen of Weymouth, comprising Edward Hunt, chairman; Bradford Hawes, George W. Newton, Henry E. Hanley and Ralph P. Burrell, also A. P. Worthen, Esq., town council.

Under the same escort which took the body to the church it was escorted to the Hingham line at Fresh River, and followed by the long procession of relatives and friends proceeded to St. Paul's cemetery where the interment took place.

The pall bearers were Thomas Fitzgerald, Arthur H. Pratt, Lawrence A. Schfield, Charles W. Baker, Geo. W. Nash, Adelbert Ford, Charles Trask and William Gaughan of the Weymouth police force.

Chief Butler was born in Ireland 60 years ago and came to this country when a lad of ten years of age, found an early home in Weymouth and passed through the several grades of its schools, then in early manhood learned the blacksmith trade but abandoned it for shoe factory work. Meanwhile, some twenty-five years ago, accepting a minor position on the police force of Weymouth and step by step advanced to Chief and making a study of it and court processes became one of the best known court officers in the Norfolk District.

Mr. Butler married Mary Ashton of Hingham and to them came 11 boys and girls all now living and with the mother are left to mourn the loss of husband and father but in their affliction have the consolation of a large circle of friends.

PROMINENT SOUTH WEYMOUTH MAN DEAD.

George Clifford Torrey Passes Away After a few Week's Illness With the Grippe.

Weymouth in the sphere of her highest interests, sustains a serious loss in the unexpected death of George C. Torrey, who died at his home at South Weymouth on Wednesday morning. A prostrating attack of the grippe a few weeks ago was complicated by an abscess in the ear, which suddenly developed on Tuesday into a brain trouble which ended his life.

Mr. Torrey was born in South Weymouth sixty-one years ago on Dec. 4, 1853, the son of J. Quincy Torrey and Sarah A. Torrey, who were life-long residents of South Weymouth. Educated in Weymouth schools, after early teaching in Marshfield, he returned to be, for several years, the principal of the Pratt school on Pleasant street.

Entering business life, he established his well-known insurance agency at South Weymouth. Throughout his career he has been a citizen giving intelligent and earnest attention to the interests of the town and community, whether serving in official position or not. His fellow citizens repeatedly called him to public office; for three years he served upon the school committee, for thirteen years was one of the board of assessors, for the years 1901-1902 he was the South Weymouth member of the board of selectmen, and for two years was tax collector. He was often named on public committees, having been one of the members of the present town planning board. He co-operated in the Village Improvement society, to which he belonged. As one of the South Weymouth Savings Bank his judgment was valued. He was also a member of Wilsey Lodge, No. 21, I. O. O. F.

But his paramount interest, centered in the Old South church in which he was trained, of which he was a member over forty years ago, and in which he was serving as its senior deacon, having been chosen in May, 1895. For many years he served on the parish committee and since the incorporation of the church, as one of the trustees. For several years he was superintendent of the Sunday school and was a habitual attendant at the prayer meetings, being deeply concerned in both the temporal and spiritual welfare of the church.

Mr. Torrey was a man of convictions, conscientiousness, and sincerity; true, careful, faithful, a man to be trusted, a man whose judgment counted—many a man has sought his office for advice, freely given—and withal a man of unselfish devotion to both community and welfare.

Mr. Torrey leaves a widow, the daughter of the late Henry Dyer, and two sons, Frank C. and John Q. The funeral services will be held at his late residence on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, his pastor, Rev. Henry C. Alvord officiating, and the burial will be at the Mount Hope Cemetery.

Baker sang "Face to Face" "The Christians Good Night" and "Sometime We'll Understand". The interment was at Village cemetery.

solation of a large circle of friends. The esteem in which Chief Butler was held by neighbors and social and business associates was marked by many rare and rich floral tributes at the funeral.

The contracting parties were Gaetano Pecoraro of Lake street and Miss Enrica Demetrio of Madison street. Antonio P. Denley was best man and Miss Nellie DeAellendro maid of honor.

He Was a Very Mean Man

By OSCAR COX

I knew a man who was so mean that he married a woman he believed to be waiting for his best friend to marry her.

Ralph Newland and Herbert Tucker were the friends. Ralph was the selfish man. Herbert was so generous that he would have given away his head if it could have been of use to another. The secret of Ralph's power over women no one could explain except the girls he fooled, and it is a question if even they knew just how he did it. At any rate, he seemed to draw them as honey draws flies.

Tucker became engaged to Laura Perkins and introduced his friend Newland to her. Within a fortnight she had deserted Tucker for Newland. Tucker was philosophic about it. He said that if the girl preferred his friend to him his friend was welcome to her and she to him. After the damage had been done Newland sheered off and left Miss Perkins out in the cold. She tried to make it up with Tucker, but Tucker would have nothing to do with her. What made her mad was that Tucker seemed to be more friendly than before with the man who had deprived him of her. It was a direct reflection on her, indicating that Tucker felt grateful for having been saved from her.

After awhile Tucker made up to another girl, Helen Spangler. He introduced Newland to this one, too, telling him that if he could win her away from him he was welcome to do so. Tucker didn't want any girl for a wife who didn't love him better than the whole world. He asked his friend to put his second love to a similar test to the first. Newland accommodated him and captured the girl.

Tucker was so pleased at having been saved from a girl who could not have been in love with him—so he considered it—that he blew Newland off to a champagne dinner. Newland was surprised that his friend took all this supplanting with such equanimity, but could not detect the slightest wounding of his amour propre. "It's all right," said Tucker, "only a matter of taste. Some day I may find a girl who will truly love me; then no one can take her away from me. Meanwhile I appreciate these services you are doing me."

Newland dropped the last girl as he had dropped the first. Miss Spangler had more tact than the other. She didn't let on she was a bit displeased. She only said that there wasn't enough in both the men to make one real, noble, good man, and she was well rid of both of them. But she did not say this to either Tucker or Newland; she said it to a friend. As to the men, she told them she hoped they would both be her friends for ever and ever. This was after she had known of how Tucker stuck to Newland despite the way the former was taking the latter's girl away from him, and probably she wanted to show that a woman might have an equanimity of that kind in her as well as a man.

One day Newland received an anonymous note informing him that Tucker was courting a third girl and keeping it a secret from his friend. Newland showed the note to Tucker, who denied the impeachment. Newland only half believed him. Only persons of real innocence believe in the innocence of others, and Newland wasn't exactly an innocent man, as may appear from this story.

Presently he received another letter informing him that Tucker was about to be married. Newland did not show this letter to Tucker. He kept it to himself, but concluded to watch his friend. It happened that Tucker had a platonic friend on whom he called occasionally, and one evening Newland shadowed him to her house.

"I wonder," said Newland to himself, "if after all I've done for him he thinks he's going to fool me. I'll get even with him."

Tucker told Newland one day that he was going out of town for a week. A few hours after the parting Newland was called to the telephone, and the following brief dialogue occurred between him and a female voice:

"Mr. Newland?"

"Yes, I'm Newland."

"Are you aware that your friend, Mr. Tucker, is about to be married this evening?"

"No. Is he?"

"Yes, at a quarter to 9 at 274 Mulford street."

"You don't mean it?"

There was a click, and Newland could get nothing more. It was half past 8. No time to lose. He was in evening dress, ready for a wedding. Calling a cab, in ten minutes he was at 274 Mulford street and entered a room where a bride and two bridesmaids were evidently awaiting the groom. The bride was telled, and the bridesmaids turned away.

"For heaven's sake, don't marry Herbert Tucker," he said to the bride. "He will make your life miserable."

There was a hurried dialogue. The bride said she had promised to marry and must marry, whereupon Newland declared that rather than have her sacrifice herself he would marry her. A parson waiting in the next room was called in, the bridesmaids turned, each let down a veil, and the couple were married. When they were pronounced man and wife the three women raised their veils.

The bride was old and homely. One bridesmaid was Miss Perkins, the other Miss Spangler.

Following Are a Few of the Items Which Appeared in the Gazette Years Ago This Week.

FORTY-SEVEN YEARS AGO.

The present number of the Gazette closes the first year of its existence and we take occasion to extend our thanks to the many friends who have kindly aided in the establishment and success of the paper, by their good words in its favor, their subscriptions and advertising patronage and the large amount of correspondence from various parts of the town.

The best evidence of the acceptability of the Gazette with the people of Weymouth and vicinity is the many expressions of interest from subscribers and others who have been pleased to term it "the best country paper they have yet seen" and it will be our aim to merit in the future, such universal commendations.

At the annual meeting of the Weymouth and Braintree Mutual Fire Insurance Co. the following persons were chosen directors for the ensuing year, viz: Appleton Howe, Freeman P. Howland, Naaman L. White, Elias Richards, Thomas B. Porter, Elias S. Beals, Zacharia L. Bicknell, Richard A. Hunt and Joseph R. Frasier.

THIRTY SEVEN YEARS AGO.

A party of gents were perambulating the fields last Sunday, when they found a nest of black snakes, 127 of whom were killed and being placed in a row measured over 100 feet, some of them being five feet long.

Mr. Jackson was standing near the bank at Des. A. Raymond's hill, the other day, waiting for the gravel teams to return and load up, when the bank suddenly caved, and he was completely buried, but fortunately received no serious injury.

It is rather amusing to see children 7 years of age going to school with a back load of books. It costs about $15, to supply a seven year old boy with books to attend school at the present time.—Pera.

The annual meeting of the 2nd Cong. Society was held Monday evening the 15th inst. The following officers were chosen: clerk, George A. Morse; treasurer, B. F. White; parish committee, Geo. C. Torrey, S. S. Spear, Lysander Heald. The society adopts the envelope system of weekly contributions, are united, and start upon the year with fresh courage.

TWENTY-EIGHT YEARS AGO.

The hydrants have been painted black, and it would be a good idea to paint the tops of them white, so that they can be more readily distinguished at night.

The Selectmen will establish the lines for precinct voting upon the present ward boundaries, and will set stakes at present, the stone posts to be put down after their action is approved by the town.

The assignees of the Weymouth Iron Co. will forthwith pay and distribute to and among the creditors whose debts have been proved and allowed as not privileged, a second dividend of ten cents on a dollar.

The regular meeting of the Executive Committee of the South Weymouth Improvement Association last Friday evening was characterized by an unusual amount of lively and important business. Each sub-committee was represented, and there seemed to be a general determination to make the coming summer see more in the way of noticeable improvement than ever before. The tree committee expect to plant about seventy trees. The street lighting committee reported an unusual amount of interest in that department just at present and twenty-two lamps had already been erected.

Shelley Was a Queer Boy.

The poet Percy Bysshe Shelley as a small boy was an eccentric little being. He used to dress his four sisters to represent fiends, and, filling a fire stove with some inflammable fluid and setting it alight, he would marshal the diabolical procession to the back door. As a boy at Eton he would watch the livelong night for ghosts and consulted his books how to raise one. His diet in after years was meager enough to bring him weird fancies. Bread became his chief sustenance, and his pockets were well stored with it.

A circle upon the carpet, clearly defined by an ample verge of crumbs, often marked the place where he had long sat at his studies, his face nearly in contact with his book, devouring bread at intervals amid his profound abstractions. Sometimes he ate raisins with it, and his sweet tooth was immense.

Absolute Zero.

In the absence of all heat the temperature is zero, not the zero of the thermometers, but what is called "absolute zero." In other words, where there is no heat there is no temperature. Absolute zero is supposed to be about 274 degrees below the thermometric zero of the Centigrade scale and about 461 degrees below the thermometric zero of the Fahrenheit scale. Absolute zero might, imaginatively, be defined as molecular death, because a substance which has lost all temperature has necessarily lost all molecular, or internal, energy and has become entirely inert.—New York Journal.

Benjamin Franklin was the first to prove the identity of lightning with electricity. The idea of electricity dates from the time when the ancients wondered to see amber, when rubbed, pick up bits of straw, and the lodestone draw bits of iron.

CHAPTER IV.

Unveiled.
On the instant he recognized that no common interview lay before him. She was still the mysterious stranger, and she still wore her veil—a fact all the more impressive that it was no longer the accompaniment of a hat, but flung freely over her bare head. He frowned as he met her eyes through this disguising gauze.

"This is very good of you, Judge Ostrander," she remarked, in a voice both cultured and pleasant. "I could hardly have hoped for this honor. Such consideration shown to a stranger argues a spirit of unusual kindness. Or perhaps I am mistaken in my supposition. Perhaps I am no stranger to you? Perhaps you know my name?"

"Averill? No."
She paused, showing her disappointment quite openly. Then drawing up a chair she leaned heavily on its back, saying in low, monotonous tones from which the former eager thrill had departed:

"I see that the intended marriage of your son has made very little impression upon you."

Agitated for the moment, this was such a different topic from the one he expected the Judge regarded her in silence before remarking:

"I have known nothing of it. My son's concerns are no longer mine. If you have broken into my course of life for no other purpose than to discuss the affairs of Oliver Ostrander, I must beg of you to excuse me. I have nothing to say in his connection to you or to anyone."

"Is the breach between you so deep as that? I entreat—but no, you are a just man; I will rely upon your sense of right. If your son's happiness fails to appeal to you, let that of a young and innocent girl, lovely as few are lovely, either in body or mind."

"Yourself, madam?"
No, my daughter! Oliver Ostrander has done us that honor, sir. He had every wish and had made every preparation to marry my child, when—Shall I go on?"

"You may."
It was shortly said, but a burden seemed to fall from her shoulders at its utterance. Her whole graceful form relaxed swiftly into its natural curves, and an atmosphere of charm from this moment enveloped her, which justified the description of Mrs. Yardley, even without a sight of the features she still kept hidden.

"I am a widow, sir." Thus she began with studied simplicity. "With my one child I have been living in Detroit these many years—ever since my husband's death, in fact. We are not unlike there, nor have we lacked respect. When some six months ago your son, who stands high in every one's regard, as befits his parentage and his varied talents, met my daughter and fell seriously in love with her, no one, so far as I know, criticized his taste or found fault with his choice. I thought my child safe. And she was safe, to all appearance, up to the very morning of her marriage—the marriage of which you say you had received no intimation though Oliver seems a very dutiful son."

"Madam!"—The hoarseness of his tone possibly increased his peremptory character—"I really must ask you to lay aside your veil."

It was a rebuke and she felt it to be so; but though she blushed from behind her veil, she did not remove it.

"Pardon me," she begged, and very humbly, "but I cannot yet. Let me reveal my secret first. Judge Ostrander, the name under which I had lived in Detroit was not my real one. I had let him court and all but marry my daughter, without warning him in any way of what this deception on my part covered. But others—one other, I have reason now to believe—had detected my identity under the altered circumstances of my new life, and surprised him with the news at that late hour. We are—Judge Ostrander, you know who we are. This is not the first time you and I have seen each other face to face." And, lifting up a hand, trembling with emotion, she put aside her veil.

"You recognize me?"
"Too well." The tone was deep with meaning, but there was no accusation in it; nor was there any note of relief. It was more as if some hope deeply, and perhaps unconsciously cherished, had suffered a sudden and complete extinction. "Put back your veil."

Trembling, she complied, murmuring as she fumbled with its folds: "Disgrace to an Ostrander! I know that I was mad to risk it for a moment. Forgive me for the attempt, and listen to my errand. Oliver was willing to marry my child, even after he knew the shame it would entail. But Reuther would not accept the sacrifice. Judge Ostrander, I am not worried or such a child, but such she is. If John—"

"We will not speak his name," broke in Judge Ostrander, assuming a peremptory bearing quite unlike his former one of dignified reserve. "I should like to hear, instead, your explanation of how my son became inveigled into an engagement of which you, if no one else, knew the preposterous nature."

"Judge Ostrander, you do right to blame me. I should never have given my consent, never. But I thought our past so completely hidden—our identity so entirely lost under the accepted name of Averill."

"You thought!" He towered over her in his anger. He looked and acted as in the old days, when witnesses covered under his eye and voice. "Say that you knew, madam; that you planned this unholy trap for my son."

"Judge Ostrander, I did not plan their meeting, nor did I at first encourage his addresses. Not till I saw the extent of their mutual attachment did I yield to the event and accept the consequences. But I was wrong, wholly wrong to allow him to visit her a second time; but now that the mischief is done—"

Judge Ostrander was not listening. "I have a question to put you," said he, when he realized that she had ceased speaking. "Oliver was never a fool. When he was told who your daughter was what did he say of the coincidence which made him the lover of the woman against whose father his father had uttered sentence of death? Didn't he marvel and call it extraordinary—the work of the devil?"

"Possibly; but if he did it was not in any conversation he had with me."

"And your daughter? Was he as close-mouthed in speaking of me to her as he was to you?"

"I have no doubt of it. Reuther betrays no knowledge of you or of your habits, and has never expressed but one curiosity in your regard. As you can imagine what that is, I will not mention it."

"You are at liberty to. I have listened to much and can well listen to a little more."

"Judge, she is of a very affectionate nature, and her appreciation of your son's virtues is very great. Though her conception of yourself is naturally a very vague one, it is only to be expected that she should wonder how you could live so long without a visit from Oliver."

His lips took a strange twist. There was self-contempt in it, and some other very peculiar and contradictory emotion. But when this semblance of a smile had passed it was no longer Oliver's father she saw before her, but the county's judge. Even his tone partook of the change as he dryly remarked:

"What you have told me concerning your daughter and my son is very interesting. But it was not for the simple purpose of informing me that this untoward engagement was at an end that you came to Shelby. You have another purpose. What is it? I can remain with you just five minutes longer."

Five minutes! It only takes one to kill a hope, but five are far too few for the reconstruction of one. But she gave no sign of her secret doubts, as she plunged at once into her subject. "I will be brief," said she; "as brief as any mother can be who is pleading for her daughter's life as well as happiness. Reuther has no real ailment, but her constitution is abnormally weak, and she will die of this grief if some miracle does not save her. Strong as her will is, determined as she is to do her duty at all cost, she has very little physical stamina. See! Here is her photograph, taken but a short time ago. Look at it, I beg. See what she was like when life was full of hope; and then imagine her with all hope eliminated."

"Excuse me. What use? I can do nothing. I am very sorry for the child, but—" His very attitude showed his disinclination to look at the picture. But she would not be denied. She thrust it upon him and once his eyes had fallen upon it, they clung there, though evidently against his will. Ah, she knew that Reuther's exquisite countenance would plead for itself! God seldom grants to such beauty so lovely a spirit. If the features themselves failed to appeal, certainly he must feel the charm of an expression which had already netted so many hearts. Breathlessly she watched him, and, as she watched, she noted the heavy lines carved in his face by thought and possibly by sorrow, slowly relax and his eyes fill with a wistful tenderness.

"Parents must learn to endure bitterness. I have not been exempt myself from such. Your child will not die. You have years of mutual companionship before you, while I have nothing. And now let us end this interview, so painful to us both. You have said—"

"No," she broke in with sudden vehemence, all the more startling from the restraint in which she had held herself up to this moment, "I have not said—I have not begun to say what seethes like a consuming fire in my breast. I spoke of a miracle—will you not listen, judge? I am not wild; I am not unconscious of presumption. I am only in earnest, in deadly earnest. A miracle is possible. The gulf between these two may yet be spanned. I see a way—"

What change was this to which she had suddenly become witness? The face which had not lost all its underlying benignancy even when it looked its coldest, had now become settled and hard. His manner was absolutely repellent as he broke in with the quick disclaimer:

"But there is no way. What miracle could ever make your daughter, lovely as she undoubtedly is, a fitting match for my son! None, madam, absolutely none. Such an alliance would be monstrous; unnatural."

"Why?" The word came out boldly. "Because her father died the death of a criminal?"

The answer was equally blunt. "Yes; a criminal over whose trial his father presided as judge."

Quick as a flash, however, came the retort. "A judge, however, who showed him every consideration possible. I was told at the time and I have been assured by many since that you were more than just to him in your rulings."

"I Can Well Listen to a Little More."

Judge Ostrander—he had taken a step toward the hall door; but he paused at this utterance of his name—"answer me this one question. Why did you do this? You must have hated him deeply—your feeling for Mr. Etheridge was well known. Then why such magnanimity toward the man who stood on trial for killing him?"

Unaccustomed to be questioned, though living in an atmosphere of continual yes and no, he stared at the veiled features of one who so dared, as if he found it hard to excuse such presumption. But he answered her nevertheless, and with decided emphasis: "Possibly because his victim was my friend and lifelong companion. A judge fears his own prejudices."

"Possibly; but you had another reason, judge; a reason which justified you in your own eyes at the time and which justifies you in mine now and always. Am I not right? This is no courtroom; the case is one of the past; it can never be reopened; the prisoner is dead. Answer me, then, as one sorrowing mortal replies to another, hadn't you another reason?"

The judge, startled though he was or thought he was, against all conceivable attack, winced at this repetition of a question he had hoped to ignore, and in his anxiety to hide this involuntary betrayal of weakness allowed his anger to have full vent, as he cried out in no measured terms:

"What is the meaning of all this? What are you after? Why are you raking up these bygones, which only make the present condition of affairs darker and more hopeless? Oliver Ostrander, under no circumstances and by means of no sophistries, can ever marry the daughter of John Scoville. I should think you would see that for yourself."

"But if John should be proved to have suffered wrongfully? If he should be shown to have been innocent?"

His rebuke was quick, instant. With a force and earnestness which recalled the courtroom he replied: "Madam, your hopes and wishes have misled you. Your husband was a guilty man; as guilty a man as any judge ever passed sentence upon."

"But he swore the day I last visited him in the prison, with his arms pressed tight about me and his eye looking straight into mine as you are looking now, that he never struck that blow. I did not believe him then; there were too many dark spots in my memory of old lies premeditated and destructive of my happiness; but I believed him later, and I believe him now."

"Madam, this is quite unprofitable. A jury of his peers condemned him as guilty and the law compelled me to pass sentence upon him. The inevitable must be accepted. I have said my last word."

"But not heard mine," she panted. "For me to acknowledge the inevitable where my daughter's life and happiness are concerned would make me seem a coward in my own eyes. Helped or unhelped, with the sympathy or without the sympathy of one who I hoped would show himself my friend, I shall proceed with the task to which I have dedicated myself. You will forgive me, judge. You see that John's last declaration of innocence goes further with me than your belief, backed as it is by the full weight of the law."

Gazing at her as at one gone suddenly demented, he said: "I fail to understand you, Mrs.—I will call you Mrs. Averill. You speak of a task. What task?"

"The only one I have a heart for—the proving that Reuther is not the

Weymouth Gazette

FRIDAY, APRIL 23, 1915

Terre Haute, Indiana seems to be the banner city of the Nation for rounding up and bringing to justice official grafters and criminals. Thirty six official grafters have been tried and convicted. The president of the board of public works and a few others were sentenced to three years imprisonment; the sheriff of the county and the circuit Judge-elect received five-year sentences; the mayor of the city was sentenced to six years imprisonment.

The foreign war and base ball interest is very much divided this week with the "Birth of a Nation" question. From the earliest days in other countries the colored man has been a greater or less factor in private and public affairs and like the white race there are good and bad men among them.

This being the fact it is to be wondered at that the better element of the colored race remonstrate against being caricatured and pictured to the world in a way that place a stigma upon the entire race.

If the matter now goes to the courts and possibly to the Legislature of the state and nation why not make a clean thing of the matter and enact laws which prohibit either in prose, poetry, picture the publishing of anything of a burlesque nature. For instance the usefulness of many of our most able statesmen and developers of valuable industries are hampered and belittled by writers and artists who place them before the world in a way and manner which makes them subjects of ridicule.

There is many a man both white and black who is not a perfect beauty but it does not enhance his usefulness by being rudely caricatured.

Norfolk and Pilgrim Branch. W. B. M.

The 38th annual meeting of Norfolk and Pilgrim Branch, Woman's Board of Missions, is to be held at the Congregational Church, East Weymouth, on Tuesday next, with sessions at 10 A. M. and 2 P. M.

This society is composed of members of 35 smaller auxiliary societies, some of them in Norfolk and some in Plymouth County. The president is Mrs. Archibald McCord of Randolph.

The morning session will include the review of the year at home and abroad, and the address of the afternoon will be made by Thomas B. Scott, M. D., of the Ceylon mission.

A cordial invitation to be present is extended to all friends of missions.

Cheap Paint.

The cheapest paint is the one that goes farthest and wears best; there is most in a gallon of it.

What is a quart of milk worth? Depends on the milk.

Devote is worth the top price, whatever it is. Poor paint is worth nothing at all; you've got to pay your painter $3 or $4 a gallon for putting it on; and it isn't worth it.

Devote goes twice as far and wears twice or three times or four times as long.

The cheap paint is Devote at the top of the market.

By Observer.

I am told that rakes and hows are very costly this Spring. Better stock up and then clean up that back yard and get ready for Clean Up week.

I came across the following item in the "Observant Citizen" column in the Boston Post a few mornings ago, and I pass it along for the friends of Mr. Harper to peruse at their leisure: "Arthur V. Harper the well known Sears building attorney, tells me that in his home town, Weymouth, the frogs have been peeping for several nights, and never before has he remembered shrubs and especially lilac bushes leaved out so early as this year."

I am told that that the funeral of Chief of Police Patrick Butler in the Immaculate Conception Church, East Weymouth, last Monday morning was one of the largest attended ever known in this section. Mr. Butler was indeed a popular man in police circles and also as a citizen. Our town can ill afford to have such a man taken from its citizenship.

Don't forget the Moose minstrels tonight in Odd Fellows opera house, East Weymouth. They tell me that last night's debut was a decided hit from every standpoint.

I dropped into the Mock Court Trial in Bates' opera house, Weymouth a few minutes last Friday night and the affair seemed to be scoring a huge success. I am told that all the prominent men around Washington square and in East Braintree got several "knocks" from the witnesses and lawyers on the different cases tried.

After a short stay at the Mock trial, I took a trip over to the High School and danced the "light fantastic" with the merry-makers at the annual Athletic Association dance. While the crowd was not extra large, all enjoyed themselves to the utmost and I believe the young ladies of the school who conducted the party should be congratulated on their success.

I am informed that Division Superintendent Thomas Gammons of the Bay State Street Railway Co. has recently issued orders insisting on having passengers, on cars meeting in Lincoln Square on the Rockland line and East Weymouth and Braintree line, leave the car in this particular square by the front door and enter by the rear door, to stop confusion and save time. Most of the conductors ask their passengers to leave by the front door at Lincoln Square, but I am sorry to say that they receive little or no satisfaction by attempting to carry out the desired rule. As an example of the conductor's life, I witnessed the following incident in connection with the front and rear door order, while on a Braintree bound car from East Weymouth a few days ago. Just before the car reached Lincoln square the conductor respectfully and pleasantly asked the passengers who were to alight at Lincoln square, to leave by the front door.

Among the passengers who wished to alight, were two refined looking ladies and after the conductor's request, the following conversation took place in the presence of the conductor: "Well, I can't see why we always have to leave by the front door when I am on the car." Lady No. 2—"No, I don't either, no system, poor management, they ought to let us go out the back door and not try to change old time methods and customs." Yet, we wonder why some conductors seem rather "grouchy" at times!

child of a willful murderer; that another man did the deed for which he suffered. I can do it. I feel confident that I can do it; and if you will not help me—

"Help you! After what I have said and reiterated that he is guilty, guilty, guilty?"

Advancing upon her with each repetition of the word, he towered before her, an imposing, almost formidable figure. She faced again his anger, which might well be righteous, and with almost preternatural insight boldly declared:

"You are too vehement to quite convince me, Judge Ostrander. Acknowledge it or not, there is more doubt than certainty in your mind; a doubt which ultimately will lead you to help me. Then my way should broaden—a way, at the end of which I see a united couple—my daughter and your son. Oh, she is worthy of him," the woman broke forth, as he made another repellent and imperative gesture, "ask anyone in the town where we have lived."

Abruptly and without apology for his rudeness, Judge Ostrander turned his back, then with a quick whirl about which brought him face to face with her once more, he impetuously asked: "Madam, you were in my house this morning. You came in through the gate which Bela had left unlocked. Will you explain how you came to do this? Did you know that he was going down street, leaving the way open behind him? Was there collusion between you?"

Her eyes looked clearly into his. She felt that she had nothing to disguise or conceal.

"I had urged him to do this, Judge Ostrander. I had met him more than once in the street when he went out to do your errands, and I used all my persuasion to induce him to give me this one opportunity of pleading my cause with you. He was your devoted servant, he showed it in his death, but he never got over his affection for Oliver. I had listened to what folks said. I had heard that you would receive nobody; talk to nobody. Bela was my only resource."

He was scrutinizing her keenly, and for the first time understandingly. Whatever her station, past or present, she was certainly no ordinary woman nor was her face without beauty, lit as it was by passion and every ardor of which a loving woman is capable. No man would be likely to resist it unless his armor were thrice forged. Would he himself be able to? He began to experience a cold fear—a dread which drew a black veil over the future; a blacker veil than that which had hitherto rested upon it.

But his face showed nothing. He proceeded, with a piercing intensity not to be withstood:

"When you entered my house this morning did you come directly to my room?"

"Yes, Bela told me just how to reach it."

"And when you saw me indisposed—unable, in fact, to greet you—what did you do then?"

With the force and meaning of one who takes an oath, she brought her hand, palm downward on the table before her, as she steadily replied:

"I flew back into the room through which I had come, undecided whether to fly the house or wait for what might happen to you. I did not dare to go till Bela came back. So I stayed watching in a dark corner of that same room. I never left it till the crowd came in. Then I slid out behind them."

"Was the child with you—at your side I mean, all this time?"

"I never let go her hand."

"Woman, you are keeping nothing back?"

"Nothing but my terror at the sight of Bela running in all bloody to escape the people pressing after him."

Sincerity was in her manner and in her voice. The judge breathed more easily, and made the remark:

"No one with hearing unimpaired can realize the suspicion of the deaf, nor can anyone who is not subject to attacks like mine conceive the doubts with which a man so cursed views those who have been active about him while the world to him was blank."

Thus he dismissed the present subject, to surprise her by a renewal of the old one.

"What are your reasons," said he, "for the hopes you have just expressed? I think it your duty to tell me before we go any further."

"Excuse me for tonight. What I have to tell—or rather, what I have to show you—requires daylight." Then as she became conscious of his astonishment, added falteringly: "Have you any objection to meeting me tomorrow on the bluff overlooking Dark—"

The judge was looking at her; he had not moved; nor had an eyelash stirred, but the rest of that sentence had stuck in her throat, and she found herself standing as immovably quiet as he.

"Why there?" he asked. "Because"—her words came slowly, haltingly, as she tremulously, almost fearfully, felt her way with him—"because—there—is—no—other—place—where—I can make—my point."

He smiled. It was his first smile in years and naturally was a little constrained—and, to her eyes at least, almost more terrifying than his frown.

"Why have you waited till now?" he called out, forgetful that they were not alone in the house, forgetful, apparently, of everything but his surprise and repulsion. "Why not have made use of this point before it was too late? You were at your husband's trial; you were even on the witness stand?"

She nodded, thoroughly cowed at last both by his indignation and the revelation contained in this question of the judicial mind—"Why now, when the time was then?"

Happily, she had an answer.

"Judge Ostrander, I had a reason for that, too; and, like my point, it is a good one. But do not ask me for it tonight. Tomorrow I will tell you everything. But it will have to be in the place I have mentioned. Will you come to the bluff where the ruins are one-half hour before sunset? Please be exact as to the time. You will see why, if you come."

He leaned across the table—they were on opposite sides of it—plunging his eyes into hers, then drew back, and remarked with an aspect of gloom but with much less the appearance of distrust:

"A very odd request, madam. I hope you have good reason for it," adding, "I bury Bela tomorrow and the cemetery is in this direction. I will meet you where you say and at the hour you name."

And, regarding him closely as he spoke, she saw that for all the correctness of his manner and the bow of respectful courtesy with which he instantly withdrew, that deep would be his anger and unquestionable the results to her if she failed to satisfy him at this meeting of the value of her point in reawakening justice and changing public opinion.

GOOD CIRCULATION OF AIR

Ventilation is Admitted to Be an Important Matter in the Stabling of Animal — Details May Be Worked Out to Suit Ideas of Individuals.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

A standard dairy barn is illustrated in this perspective and floor plan. It is thoroughly well built from the bottom of the foundation to the ventilators on the peak. The foundation walls, including the piers which are placed in two rows in the center of the building, are set down below frost and have ample footings to prevent settling. Width of building is 36 feet and the length is 60 feet. Thirty-six feet wide works out about right in placing the cows, and leaves room to milk by machinery. Also the alleys are laid out to accommodate feed carriers and litter carriers for convenience in feeding and disposing of the manure.

The length, 60 feet, is sufficient to provide stall room for 30 cows, allowing 3½ feet for each cow with passageways at each end of the stable. Thirty cows is a fair-sized dairy, as farmers usually conduct a dairy business in connection with diversified farming. It is possible to crowd in a few more cows by standing them in the passageways if it becomes absolutely necessary.

There is another floor plan which provides stable room for 22 cows, besides making a horse stable in one end. This combination horse stable and cow stable is not recommended, except as a temporary provision to stable a half-dozen horses until a separate horse stable can be provided. The cow stable floor may be extended through the horse stable at the time of building.

In laying the foundation for a barn like this the outside wall usually is made of concrete and is carried up 12 or 18 inches above the level of the ground.

A cow stable floor should be at least a foot above the barnyard. The cenderneath settles after the floor is laid. It is customary to make cow stable ceilings a little higher than formerly, because of the labor-saving stable machinery that is now being adopted.

Tracks to support feed carriers and litter carriers are attached to the ceiling and about eight feet of head room above the concrete floor is usually provided.

A concrete stable floor is made level endwise of the building; crosswise, it varies, to give the necessary slant to the standing floor and the drop for the gutters; also the floor behind the cows slopes forward slightly to drain into the gutters.

The bottoms of the mangers, the front of the standing floor, and the floor between the mangers usually are made the same height. The mangers may or may not have fronts that project up to keep the feed in where the cows can easily reach it. If there are no fronts to the mangers, then usually the floor in the center alley is made a few inches higher. These details are worked out at the time of building to suit the individual owner.

There are a few arbitrary rules in regard to building dairy stables that we cannot go away from, but unimportant details may be easily modified to suit each farmer's preference for doing work in certain ways.

Every well-built dairy stable has a concrete floor. The top surface of the floor is waterproofed in some way to provide easy cleaning and to preserve the liquid manure. After waterproofing, the surface may be made somewhat rough to prevent the cows from slipping.

Also the question of ventilation has been thoroughly thrashed out. Professor King of the University of Wisconsin worked for years to spread ventilation information among dairy farmers that would induce them to change the air in dairy stables, to provide fresh air as often as needed.

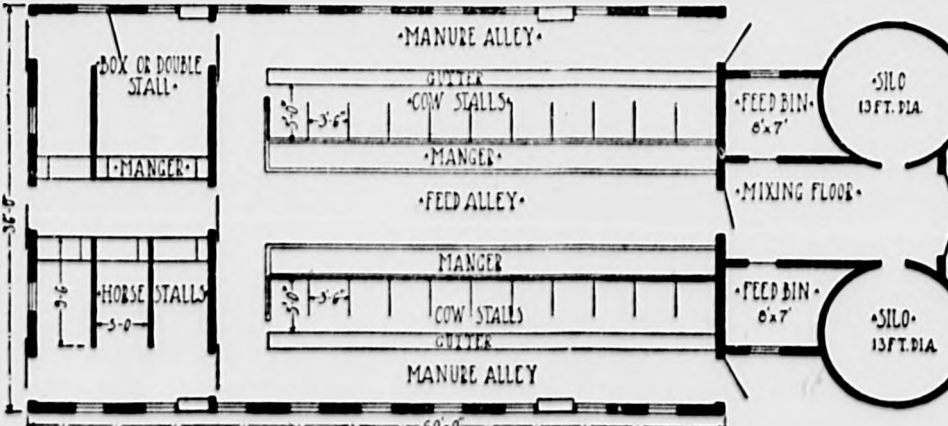

This plan provides for four ventilating flues in the sides of the stables. These flues follow the slope of the roof and terminate in metal ventilators perched on the peak. These are the exhaust flues which take the foul air from near the floor at the sides of the stable behind the cows and carry it up, chimney fashion, and discharge it into the atmosphere.

Fresh air is supplied by means of air ducts that enter the sides of the stable from the outside as shown in the illustration. These air ducts are built in the wall so that they extend up near the ceiling and discharge the air over the cows.

Circulation of air in a stable depends principally upon the heat supplied by the animals. For this reason a dairy stable should be well filled with cows in cold weather, so that their body heat will start the air in motion.

The principle of the circulation of warm air is that heated air has a tendency to climb to the top. It is well illustrated in the chimney. There is little draft up through a cold chimney, but as soon as the fire is started air rises up with considerable velocity.

A well built cow stable that is filled

ter piers are about a foot lower than the side walls to allow for the thickness of the concrete floor. The center piers come under the mangers so that posts supporting the floor above are in line with the front of the cow stalls. Especial attention is required in building these center piers to have the footings wide enough and deep enough in the ground to prevent settling, for there is a great mass over the dairy stable and there is likely to be considerable weight up there, so that the center piers and the supporting posts will be under long and continuous strain. Sometimes builders do not fully and thoroughly appreciate the amount of weight resting on center posts and center piers.

After the walls and the piers are finished the ground is graded for the floor. It is a good plan to wet the ground thoroughly so it will settle alike in every part of the stable. It is annoying to have a concrete floor break through because the ground un-

Submarines' Disappearing Guns. The Krupp gun works, in Germany, have produced a quick-firing gun designed especially to provide submarines with the means of destroying aeroplanes and dirigibles. This gun, which can be fired at any angle, is mounted on a disappearing carriage, which sinks into a well and is automatically covered with a water-tight slide when the submarine is submerged. The weapon can be raised from its well to the deck and made ready for firing in 30 seconds. The disappearing carriage is operated by electricity. When an aeroplane or dirigible appears overhead, the submarine so equipped may rise to the surface, the gun be trained upon the enemy, and a rapid bombardment ensue.

FACTS.

ORIGIN OF WHITE WYANDOTTE

White Cochon Blood Was Introduced in Making of Breed as Feathers on Legs Would Denote.

A question has been asked relative to the Wyandotte breed, and why the White Wyandotte will sometimes show a dark feather and even show a faint ruff of feathers on its legs? There are several varieties now of the Wyandotte, but the first to be admitted to the standard was the Silver Wyandotte. From the first the Silver Wyandotte had the rose comb. The next variety of Wyandottes to be admitted was the White Wyandotte. The Towle and the Briggs Wyandottes were the first to be shown, each of these fanciers stating that the White Wyandottes kept by them came as sports from the Silver Wyandotte, and yet claim is made that no one can tell exactly where the first Wyandotte originated, as several breeders must have been breeding for this type of fowl at about the same time, and that all the early White Wyandottes were sports from the Silver variety is not likely to be true. It is thought that White Cochon blood was introduced in the making of the White Wyandotte at the beginning, as the size, shape and color of the eggs not only denotes this, but that feathers appear at times on the legs makes this seem probable. Why dark feathers often appear in certain of these birds good enough to show is often a mystery to the breeder. These seldom appear in such numbers that they cannot hardly be pulled out. The purest blood may show these. However, White Wyandottes are improving away from most of their early tendency to reversion.

HOME-GROWN POULTRY FEED

Not a Difficult Task to Get Eggs During Winter if Ordinary Horse Sense Is Exercised.

To get eggs in winter under the conditions obtainable on a general farm is, I find, no difficult task if ordinary horse sense is used in the matter of feeding and housing, writes W. K. Moore in an exchange. As far as possible I use the food grown on the farm, feeding as soon after daylight as practicable a mash composed of fine corn chop and alfalfa meal, half and half by measure. Feed all that the birds will clean up by noon, then give about one gallon of oats to each 100 hens, scattering it in straw litter in the scratching shed or hen house. At noon, or shortly after, I give all the ear corn they will clean up by night, and let them shell it.

For a meat food I get good results from the cracklings obtained from the local butcher for one cent per pound, of which I give about two pounds to every hundred hens three times a week. I find that a good way to do this is to mix the cracklings in the mash when steaming it; this softens them so that the fowls will get every part that is not bone. I keep oyster shell and dry cracked bone before them at all times.

The mash referred to is mixed dry, and boiling water is poured over it and it is left to steam for at least two hours—or better, over night. For variety, I mix with the mash potatoes, beets or anything of the kind that is obtainable; however, a diet of oats, corn and alfalfa, with a little meat, will give good profit in eggs.

The poultry house must be airtight and water-tight on four sides, the top, north, east and west. The floor may be of earth if proper drainage is arranged so that it will always be dry, and most of the south side may be made of common unbleached muslin.

Feed White Clover Hay.

White clover hay is the richest in lime. Feeding clover is a preventive of soft-shelled eggs. Cut clover hay has helped revolutionize the poultry business. Red clover hay contains about twenty-eight pounds of lime to the thousand pounds. Scald the hay at night, and keep it covered, so it can steam. See that the clover is cut to one-third to one-half inch lengths. When longer it is apt to pack in the crop, causing crop-bound.

Talking Through His Hat.

When you hear a farmer saying one hen is as good as another, don't waste time trying to find his name among those who attend farmers' institutes. If you don't find him at home he is talking politics at the corner grocery.

VOL. XLIX. NO. 7.

Travel Club Vote Booms.

Increase in Totals Evinces Keen Interest. Gold Pieces Won by Miss Hilda Tomlinson and Miss Lizzie Connell. More Special Prizes for Hustlers. Booster Bonus Vote Offer.

"BOOSTERS DAY" FOR TRIP ASPIRANTS

A "Boosters Day" for the contestants in the race for trip honors will be observed during the week, terminating on Thursday night, May 6, and by this excellent plan candidates can, and no doubt will, secure the counters for their totals that will prove most gratifying.

The bonus vote that has been given for the past two weeks will be rescinded, and in its stead a better and more productive vote getting plan will be given by which the contestants may secure more votes than by the previous plan. This "Boosters Day" stunt is just a little harder but the number of votes that are given is commensurate with the effort.

This "Boosters Day" coupon will be issued on new or old subscriptions and candidates may avail themselves of this opportunity to secure as many of the "Booster Day" coupons as may be desired, but the full amount must be turned in to receive the benefit of the offer.

The vote is a little larger on "Booster Day" coupons than formerly offered, but the amount of money necessary to get the special coupon is correspondingly larger. Speed up.

For instance—For each $15 reported by a candidate a "Booster Day" coupon good for 10,000 votes will be given and for each $25 reported by a contestant a "Booster Day" coupon good for 20,000 votes will be given.

More Special Prizes.

For week ending Thursday May 6th The Travel Club will award more Gold Pieces as follows:

$2.50 in Gold for the largest cash report.

$2.50 in Gold for the greatest number of individual subscriptions.

This little competition is open to all contestants and should help in securing large totals.

Brief Story of Trip.

To those in fancy dreaming of journeys afar—that thought has been pictured the very pinnacle of joy, but no imagination, however vivid, can conceive the delights and innumerable pleasures that the Travel Club members who leave Weymouth in a very few weeks, made up of representative women from the various districts, will have meted out to them.

If the tours offered nothing else but the pleasures of the trip across the country and the few days spent in the travel, the winning candidates in the great voting contest could feel repaid for their efforts. But, this is a mere start. To tell every feature of the trip would consume too much time and space but enough has been said to ensure the real interested ones that it is a trip of a lifetime in the fact that much of the pleasure will be in the delightful formation of the party.

Just think of the sights that the fortunate girls will be enabled to witness. It will be one continuous round of pleasure from the time that the party leaves Weymouth until the return to their homes, happy in the thought of their visitation to the more prominent cities of the United States and Canada.

There will not be a dull moment, not a second without pleasure of some kind to enjoy. Not the smallest amusement (Continued on Page 5)

OLD COLONY CLUB.

Mrs. William Wagner Elected President For Another Year.

The annual meeting of the Old Colony Ladies' club was held in the Universalist church in South Weymouth last Thursday afternoon.

The feature event of the afternoon's program was a musical under the direction of Miss Ethel Freeman Raymond, assisted by Miss Hazel F. Clark, violinist and Miss Mildred Hiley, cellist. The program follows:

Trios, "The Merry Wives of Windsor" (Cello solos, a, "Auldicht" (Poppo) b, "Tarentelle" (Poppo) Trios, a, "Minuet" (Parker) b, "Neil Gyn Dance" (German) Violin solo, "Legende" (Wienlawski) Trio, Henry VIII Dance" (German)

At the annual business meeting the principal business was the election of officers for the ensuing year and the result was as follows: president, Mrs. William Wagner; vice presidents, Miss Marion M. Merrill, Mrs. Edward Barrett; recording secretary, Mrs. William Wagner; corresponding secretary, Miss Florence K. Howe; treasurer, Mrs. Nelson Gay; directors, Mrs. Sidney Rogers Cook, Mrs. J. Leonard Bicknell, Mrs. Mary E. Holbrook, Mrs. Raymond Proctor, Mrs. Jennie Worster; auditors, Mrs. George H. Shaw, Mrs. Frederic G. Bauer; custodian, Mrs. D. N. Crawford.

At the tea Mrs. Charles R. Denbroeder of East Weymouth proved to be a most able hostess. She was assisted in serving by other members of the club.

Burglars Busy In Town.

Early this morning burglars entered the South Weymouth railroad station and took about $50. worth of railroad tickets and other numerous articles. Entrance was also gained to the building of the Alvin Hollis company opposite the depot, by forcing open a cellar entrance and a typewriter, some stamps, postal cards etc. were taken. The burglars also attempted to get into the waiting room of Percy Belcher but were reported to have been unsuccessful. The police are investigating.

Pastor Accepts Call To Union Church.

Rev. Ora A. Price of West Gloucester, Mass., has accepted a call to the Union Congregational church in South Weymouth, and plans to take up his duties about June 1st.

Mr. Price is twenty-eight years old, married and graduate of Marietta College of Marietta, Ohio, and Andover Theological School. He has preached at West Gloucester for about a year, and comes to South Weymouth with the highest recommendations.

Clean Up Week.

The Board of Selectmen of Weymouth has appointed the week from May 1 to May 8 inclusive as clean-up week in this town. The road department will take refuse from houses on Thursday, May 6 only. It will not take it from stores.

All organizations and persons interested in improving the health conditions and appearance of the town are asked to co-operate in the above work.

By order of the Selectmen of Weymouth. BRADFORD HAWES, Secretary.

Old Colony Driving Club.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Old Colony Driving Club was held on Tuesday evening, April 27, in Knights of Columbus Hall, East Weymouth.

There was a large number of members present when President Stetson called the meeting to order at 8 o'clock. Two new names were proposed for membership and will be balloted upon at the next meeting.

The report of the secretary showed that the April 19th races had been very successful, both as to the number of horses starting and the financial result at the gate.

The matter of improving the condition of the track was aired quite generally, and after Joseph Cummings and S. B. Totman had been added to the track committee they were instructed to get expert opinion as to the best thing to do to put the track in proper condition for racing. The matter of postponing all races for two weeks, while the track was being improved, was defeated by a rising vote, and races will be held each Saturday if the weather conditions are favorable.

The matching committee reported twenty-eight horses matched up for the races of Saturday, May 1.

RACING LAST SATURDAY.

At the matinee at the track last Saturday afternoon, the racing was very interesting. First place winners included: Katherine R., Kaldor, Trilix, Boxer, Queen McGregor, Patriot and Ann. The summary:

TRACK NOTES.

Frank Fay has sold the trotter, Prince Lot, 2:07 1/2, to a party in Bangor, Me.

As bad as the track was April 19, Fred Bellows drove Teddy Bling in the third heat in 1:10 flat. Some speed so early in the season and under present track conditions.

Harry Thayer has bred Katherine R. and Joe Frank's Queen McGregor to Col. Drinkwater's prize stallion, Squanton.

With the passing of Prince Lot, it looks as if Katherine R. and Jack Bling would have to fight it out together all summer.

There is a feeling among the members that racing horses against the watch should be discouraged as much as possible. There is no honor in this kind of racing for either the horse or the watch.

If the club had several more members like Tom McKenzie and a few more horses like Doubtful, there would not be any doubt but what there would be plenty of racing, clinders or no clinders. Tom believes in racing regardless of conditions.

Jack Rae and Fred Eldridge, members of the Old Colony Club who live in Dorchester, motored down to the track last Saturday. Rae is the owner of Star Patch, 2:04 1/2, and Ruth D., 2:04 1/2, the two fastest matinee horses in Boston.

They were much disappointed at the condition of the track. Rae had almost decided to send his horses down here, but after inspecting the track decided not to do so.

What is Old Colony's loss is the Metropolitan's and the Dorchester's gain. Do not get discouraged, boys, with Totman and Cummings added 1 the track committee and with the opinion from the experts who the committee have in mind, carried out, we will undoubtedly have what was originally intended the fastest and best piece of racing art in New England for matinee purposes before Decoration Day.

A. H. Pratt, New Chief

East Weymouth Patrolman for Twenty-three Years, Receives Appointment. Successor of Late Patrick Butler.

ARTHUR H. PRATT, CHIEF OF POLICE

In March 1893, A. H. Pratt became a regular police officer in East Weymouth, after being appointed by the Selectmen, who were in supreme control of the force at that time. On Monday last the present board of Selectmen recognized Mr. Pratt's long term of service by appointing him as Chief of the Police force to succeed the late Patrick Butler.

The new Chief's experiences as a patrolman in town have been many and varied. He started in 1893, when the force was not organized at all and when Thomas Fitzgerald was patrolman in Weymouth Landing and Michael Allen in South Weymouth.

The new chief was born in East Weymouth and is 59 years of age. He assumes his duties as chief tomorrow with the best wishes for a highly successful regime from his host of friends in town.

Minstrels Big Hit.

Moose Two-Nights' Event Attracts Large Crowds From Weymouth and Surrounding Towns

Last Thursday and Friday evenings being excellent evenings for a good time, especially as far as the weather conditions were concerned, it is easy to understand why all roads in town led to Old Fellow's Opera House, East Weymouth, on both evenings, when the long looked for and widely advertised minstrel show of the Weymouth Lodge No. 1299 Loyal Order of Moose was put on the boards by home talent.

Every seat in the large hall was taken long before the scheduled time for starting and the "S-I-O" sign was put out early.

The program on both evenings was practically the same, but with different jokes and local hits being put in on Friday night.

At 8:15, after the large corps of ushers had successfully seated the large number of reserve seat holders, Mr. C. Raymond Perkins, the talented director and pianist of the well known Moose orchestra, took his seat at the piano and from then on "Joy reigned supreme" for over two hours.

The first number on the fine program was the overture by the orchestra which was composed of the following Moose members: Mr. Perkins, piano; W. W. Faraar, cornet; James Cullen, trombone; J. W. French, brass viol and Fred E. Burdell, traps.

At the conclusion of this selection the curtain went up on the opening scene, showing a setting resembling the Palm Garden at Nantasket, with tables situated about the front of the stage and for a background the scene had a chorus of sixty of Weymouth's popular young people the men dressed in black with white neckties and the ladies in pure white.

After the opening medley by the large chorus, the end men all in black face came on to the scene from the entrance in the rear.

The list of end men included John F. Kelly, A. Ernest Gay, William R. Forsyth, Harry Richmond, J. J. Rhodes, F. A. Beal, Alfred Gardner and Milton Richmond.

Next in order came Irving Joy with Mrs. James Peers, Roderick Ellis with Miss Helen Lewis and Lewis M. Beach with Mrs. Beach and Mrs. Fred Beals who took seats at the tables.

After everybody had become settled for the evening, Mr. Beach who was interloper, arose and welcomed the minstrel men and chorus and then the fun began with a vengeance. After a few knocks had been handed out to Peter Galt, Lewis Beach and Dr. Donnett, William Forsyth sang "Back to Dixie", in the form and was highly applauded. A. E. Gay next made his debut before local footlights by singing "Rag Time Everywhere" to be followed by Scotch character songs given costume and in a very pleasing manner by John W. Smith.

J. F. Kelley next scored a hit with the end song, "On My Way To New Orleans" and then little Miss Mary Hannan drew a big hand by charmingly rendering "Can't You Hear Me Calling, Caroline?" Miss Hannan was forced to respond to three encores on both evenings before the audience was satisfied. Fred Beal next hit a popular note with the crowd, especially the men, by singing "I'm Glad My Wife is in Europe" to be followed by the most amusing specialty of the program when Miss Margaret Kelly and E. F. Burdell presented the rube specialty "On The 515".

The costumes of the pair sent the audience into an uproar and the antics and singing of the couple further aided in causing several near cases of hysterics. The encores by this pair were numerous and all different.

After the crowd had gained its composure, the ever popular and funny "Milk" Richmond sang "Mississippi Cabaret" in his usual popular and unimitable style, and of course scored a big hit.

One of the biggest hits of the entire evening came next when the new ballad, "My Marjorie," words and music by C. Raymond Perkins of this town, was splendidly rendered by Weymouth Center's own baritone artist, Irving Joy. Mr. Joy will be remembered as the premier soloist of Castalucci's American Band which was so popular in town a few years ago. For the past few years Mr. Joy has been in the west and it was a decided treat to hear him on a local stage once more. He was called back for several encores and as is his usual wont responded with his customary grace and ability.

J. J. Rhodes next tripped to the center of the stage and sang "Minstrel Show Parade," receiving lots of applause and a fine bouquet of flowers from his admirers. No. 12 on the program was another decided hit when Miss Marion Bowker and Albert Humphrey, assisted by Miss Louise Hill, Miss Elizabeth Higgins, Miss Mildred A. Grant, Miss Elizabeth C. Cullen, John Sullivan, William Miller, John Barba and Waldo H. Mattson presented "I Don't Know Why" in a very pleasing manner.

A banjo solo came next, given by F. A. Cushman and he was followed by Central Square's idol, Harry Richmond, who sang "When the Grown-Up Ladies Act Like

Mrs. H. S. Huntington presided at the afternoon session which was opened by Rev. Dr. Ford in brief remarks.

The address of the day was by Rev. Thomas B. Scott of Ceylon, his topic being "Missions and College Work in Ceylon." An interesting paper by Mrs. Louis Gratton of Randolph also added to the afternoon's exercises.

The following officers were chosen:

Whitcomb of Milton, aud. The prayer of installation was offered by Mrs. A. A. Lincoln of Wollaston. Selections were sung by Mrs. F. P. Whitten of Weymouth, accompanied by Miss E. F. Raymond the church organist.

TOWN BUSINESS.

At the meeting of the Selectmen on Monday it was voted to make the week beginning May 31 a Clean Up week. A more detailed notice of which appears in this issue.

Arthur H. Pratt was appointed as chief of police to succeed the late Chief Butler. Eight new applications for victualliers' licenses were received and hearings on the same will be given later.

On petition of the North Weymouth Yacht club, permit was granted them to give entertainments at their club house during the spring and summer months.

The Selectmen are in receipt of a statement from the Secretary of State, that no petition for the pardon of Joseph Marano has been filed with that department.

Proposals were received by the selectmen from a Brighton district contractor for construction of concrete side walks at largely reduced rate from any previous offers.

Rep. Geo. W. Merrill of Attleboro, calls attention of the town to a bill he has just introduced and asks for support, in modifying the law in regard to hospitals for tuberculosis cases.

At a meeting of the Selectmen held last night Edward F. Butler, son of the late Patrick Butler, was appointed night officer for East Weymouth in place of Arthur H. Pratt promoted to Chief.

The eng'rs of the Fire Department met at the office of the Selectmen on Tuesday night and organized with the choice of Walter W. Pratt as chief and John Q. Hunt, secretary.

OBITUARY.

Charles G. Grundstrom Passes Away at the Age of 47 Years.

On account of lack of space last week we were forced to omit the following obituary notice.

Charles G. Grundstrom passed away at his home on Central street, South Weymouth, Monday evening after a short illness of pneumonia. He was born in New York City 47 years ago and has lived in this town since he was four years old. He leaves a widow and three children. Mr. Grundstrom was a charter member of the Monatiquot lodge of Braintree, a member of the Boot & Shoe Workers Union and the Shoe Cutters' relief. Mr. Grundstrom was for many years employed as a cutter at the W. L. Douglas factory in Brockton. Services were held from his late home Thursday afternoon, Rev. W. W. Rose of the Universalist church conducting the services. There were many beautiful floral tributes. Burial was at Pond Plain cemetery, Knights of Pythias having services at the grave.

Instinct and Reason.

The term "instinct" is supposed to refer to the intelligence which leads to the performance of actions that are adaptive in character, but, pursued without necessary knowledge of the relation between the means employed and the ends attained, while "reason" is supposed to be aware of such knowledge and to work accordingly.

ON THE FARM

Read this column and you can have it delivered at your house with something new every week for a full year by sending $2.00 to this office now.

Increase the farm stock to the extent of utilizing all the waste products and idle land of the farm.

Get the young pigs out on the ground
as soon as the weather will permit.
Nothing will retard the growth or cripple a young pig so quickly as to keep it on a board floor.

The dairyman has no right to complain of the labor problem unless he is willing to give a good faithful man steady work all the year around.

The best way to get rid of dandelions,
if there are too many to weed out by hand is to spray them with a coppers and iron solution. If one cuts the plants out by hand, they should be cut well below the crown with a sharp instrument.

There are many little devices for outwitting the bugs. Tobacco stems strewn on the ground at the base of rose plants will help to keep away insects. The same remedy has been used successfully by cucumber growers.

In small patches of sweet corn, one part of insect powder, mixed with three parts of any other dry vehicle—even fine sand—sprinkled on the bud of the ears will drive away the boll-worm or its moth.

Practice a good system of rotation, but avoid growing potatoes, eggplants and peppers in rotation with tomatoes, as some of the same diseases affect all of these plants. Do not plant tomatoes on land that has grown any plant affected with rootknot.

Eggshells sometimes become too hard to hatch easily. When such is the case, cover them with a flannel cloth wrung out of hot water, if they are in the incubator, beginning at the fifteenth day. If under the hen, dip them in warm water.

After spading, pulverize the soil with a good steel-toothed rake, making it fine and smooth. This brings the soil particles together for better moisture contact for good germination of seed and good young root growth. Allowing a freshly spaded bed to settle for a few days before seeding is a good thing. A shower will also help to settle the soil and bring the particles close together.

Geese take utmost care regarding their bath and are always free from vermin and almost exempt from diseases of all kinds. Some authorities claim to raise geese without water, save for drinking purposes. Try it if you will, but many of your eggs will be clear, and your birds ragged and unkempt.

Some of the largest poultry farms in the East have found it profitable to combine chickens and pizeons. By so doing they increase the profits from a given tract of land. In fact, squab raising and egg farming seem to make an ideal combination for the man who wants to engage in the poultry business, either from a fancy or a utility standpoint.

Many farmers feed too much hay to horses. When at work, horses should not be fed all the hay they will eat except at the evening meal, when they will have all night for digesting the bulky ration.
Never give full feed of hay when driving horses on the road.

Give the tomatoes frequent shallow cultivation in order to keep down the weeds and maintain a loose soil mulch over the surface to prevent evaporation.
Cultivate after each rain, as soon as the ground is in condition to work. Do not allow a crust to form. As a general rule, a small-tooth cultivator should be used rather than a shovel plow, sweep, or turn-plow. Keep the soil loose between the plants by the use of a hand hoe, and keep weeds down at all times, as they rob the soil of moisture and plant food that should go to the tomatoes.

By Observer.

I met Preston Lewis a few days ago on the street. Mr. Lewis is just back from an extended tour through the country and looks hale and hearty and says he is feeling "tip top."

So it is Chief Pratt now, is it? Well,
I believe Mr. Pratt will turn out to be a good man for the position left vacant by the untimely and unfortunate passing of Patrick Butler. The new chief has served long and faithfully on the Weymouth police force and I think I voice the sentiment of the majority of the town in wishing him the greatest of success in his new position.

The open cars certainly looked good the past week didn't they though? With the dust laid with the tarvia and open cars on the lines it is some pleasure to travel about town these days.

I am told that the 66th annual May party in South Weymouth on the evening of May 7th is to have a very attractive program. As in former years the popularity of the annual event has not waned a bit and with good weather conditions a large crowd is expected to attend.

I am told by a friend who witnessed the Pilgrim vs. Lynn N. E. league baseball game at Ocean park, Lynn, last Saturday afternoon, that Representative Kenneth Nash and J. Leo (Dudley) Dowd of this town put up the greatest games ever seen on the grounds by a Lynn crowd. Ken and Dudley can certainly play the game when they are going right.

The Travel club manager tells me that the voting contest is booming right along and that the candidates are getting into the vote chasing with a vengeance. Now ladies get busy, you can win one of the trips if you make up your mind to do so, and think of the pleasure you will have if you do win. Many men have told me that they wished they could get in on a trip similar to those offered by the management of this paper, but only you "fair sex" can win in this club race, so it is up to you to show that you appreciate the efforts of the management to give a party, one grand trip of nine days' duration.

One of the most ardent baseball fans in town is my old friend Lester H. Cushing of East Weymouth. Although unable to help himself to any extend Mr. Cushing is highly grateful to his boy friends who will take him to the game on the C. M. A. field, and take it from me, the expression of pleasure on his face after his arrival at the game is certainly reward enough for the person who pushes the unfortunate young man to the field of battle.

I see my friend George R. Kempf, the popular Washington square druggist, is becoming very proficient in the auto game.
Every pleasant day "Kemp" takes the "Flivver," or Dodge, out and a joy ride is in order for twenty-five miles or more.

I dropped in to the Moose minstrel show Friday night. A better minstrel show was never put on in this town. Some may have been more lively than the Moose shows, but for genuine fun and an attractive and specialty program, the shows of last week had them all beaten. Congratulations are in order to the Moose for the grand success attained on their initial appearance behind the foot lights.

FOR YOU MR. AUTOMOBILIST.

Principal Automobile Rules Condensed
For Ready Reference.

Below we give in condensed form, the most important auto rules, which should be strictly adhered to by all drivers of motor cars. Learn these rules and do your part to reduce accidents on our highways.

THE LAW FORBIDS

Speed greater than is reasonable and proper, considering all the circumstances, speed being prima facie excessive outside of the thickly settled or business part of a city or town if over twenty miles per hour; inside such a district if over fifteen miles per hour; at corners or where view is obstructed, if over eight miles per hour.

Reckless operation, operation by an intoxicated person, or operation which endangers the lives and safety of the public.

Harsh, unreasonable, or objectionable signals in thickly settled parts of the city or town.

Emission of unreasonable amount of smoke.

Use of muffler cut-out in cities and towns and unnecessary use elsewhere.

THE LAW REQUIRES

Two license numbers plainly visible during the day.

The rear number to be plainly visible at night at a distance of sixty feet.

Two white lights and one red rear light at night.

Operator to stop when approaching a frightened horse, or at the request of the driver.

Operator to slow up and if necessary stop when passing a stationary street car discharging or taking on passengers.

Operator to slow up and use horn or other signal when approaching a corner, curve, or intersecting way.

Operator to report to Highway Commission every accident in which his machine is involved, and in which an injury to person or property is caused. —[Annual Report Highway Safety League.]

ORBITS OF THE PLANETS.

Why They Are Ellipses and Cannot Become Perfect Circles.

Every ellipse has two foci. Kepler's second law is, "The orbits of all of the planets are ellipses, the sun being in one common focus of them all." All of the other foci are empty space. The eccentricities of orbits of all planets vary on account of the attraction of all the other planets making variations.
Some are decreasing while others are increasing, but none can ever become exact circles since there are eight mutually disturbing planets.

That of the earth's orbit is now decreasing and, according to the French astronomer Leverrier, who took time to make elaborate mathematical researches in this part of astronomy, will continue to decrease during about 24,000 years, but will not vanish, making the earth's orbit an exact circle, and then will begin to increase.

The orbit of Venus now has the least eccentricity and is therefore nearer a true circle than any other orbit, but it cannot become a circle, one reason being the disturbance caused by the huge mass of the earth. One earth revolving around one sun, both trillions of miles away from any other disturbing, could traverse a true circle.—Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York American.

THE SILVER SWORD.

It Grows in Hawaii and is the Rarest Plant in the World.

The rarest plant in the world grows in Hawaii, a fact which is unknown to all but very few of the thousands of tourists annually visiting the paradise of the Pacific. It is the silver sword.

Its very name is odd and unusual, at once arousing the curiosity and the interest of the stranger who chances to hear it. It is a cactus-like growth, the long, silky, gray leaves of which give it its peculiar name. The reason for its rarity is that it is found only on the most inaccessible slopes of the volcanoes of this group of islands.

From the earliest times it has been appreciated and greatly admired by the native Hawaiians, who called it "ahinahina" (gray headed), because they had never before the coming of the white man seen silver and therefore could not apply to the plant the common name which so well describes it.
All who have found it prize it more jealously than do Alpine climbers treasure their Edelweiss. It is a far more beautiful thing and more difficult to obtain than the famous flower of Switzerland.—San Francisco Chronicle.

GurPower at Waterloo.

As to gurpower at the time of Waterloo, two facts of guidance: The British dr sergeants of the day taught recruits to hold their fire "until they could see the whites of the eyes of the enemy." That would make the best musky range, I should say, about twenty-five yards. "Brown Bess" was not much use beyond sixty yards, judged by all the evidence. As to big piece then, as now, naval guns were super to field artillery, and Neison loved to get in his broadsides at sixty yds! I believe that 600 yards was the limit of effective naval gun fire then. Field artillery range could be less, probably much less, the enormous increase in the effectiveness of guns since is due, first, to explosives with greater power and more controllable power;
second, the invention of rifled barrels and breechloading, and, third, stronger alloys of metals.—Frank Fox in London Nation.

CHAPTER V.

Excerpts.

One of the lodgers at the Claymore inn had great cause for complaint the next morning. A restless tramping over his head had kept him awake all night. That it was intermittent had made it all the more intolerable. Just when he thought it had stopped it would start up again—to and fro, to and fro, as regular as clockwork and much more disturbing.

But the complaint never reached Mrs. Averill. The landlady had been restless herself. Indeed, the night had been one of thought and feeling to more than one person in whom we are interested. The feeling we can understand; the thought—that is, Mrs. Averill's thought—we should do well to follow.

The one great question which had agitated her was this: Should she trust the judge? Ever since the discovery which had changed Reuther's prospects she had instinctively looked to this one source for aid and sympathy. But her faith had been sorely shaken in the interview just related. He was not the friend she had hoped to find. He had insisted upon her husband's guilt, and he had remained unmoved, or but very little moved, by the disappointment of his son—his only remaining link to life. Judge Ostrander might seem cold—both manner and temper would naturally be much affected by his unique and solitary mode of life—but at heart he must love Oliver. It was not in nature for it to be otherwise. And yet—

It was at this point in her musing that there came one of the breaks in her restless pacing. She was always of an impulsive temperament, and always giving way to it. Sitting down before paper and ink she wrote the following lines:

My Darling if Unhappy Child:
I know that this sudden journey on my part must strike you as cruel, when, if ever, you need your mother's presence and care. But the love I feel for you, my Reuther, is deep enough to cause you momentary pain for the sake of the great good I hope to bring you out of this shadowy quest. I believe, what I said to you on leaving, that a great injustice was done your father. Feeling so, shall I remain quiescent and see youth and love slip from you, without any effort on my part to set this matter straight? I cannot. I have done you the wrong of silence when knowledge would have saved you shock and bitter disillusion, but I will not add to my fault the inertia of a cowardly soul. Have patience with me, then; and continue to cherish those treasures of truth and affection which you may one day feel free to bestow once more upon one who has a right to each and all of them.

This is your mother's prayer.—DEBORAH SCOVILLE.

It was not easy for her to sign herself thus. It was a name which she had tried her best to forget for twelve long, preoccupied years. But her purpose had been accomplished, or would be when once this letter reached Reuther. With these words in declaration against her she could not retreat from the stand she had therein taken.

She recommended that rapid walking to and fro which was working such havoc in the nerves of the man in the room below her. When she paused it was to ransack a trunk and bring out a flat wallet filled with newspaper clippings, many of them discolored by time, and all of them showing marks of frequent handling.

The first was black with old headlines:

FOUL CRIME IN DARK HOLLOW

ALGERNON ETHERIDGE, PROMINENT CITIZEN, WAYLAIED AND MURDERED AT LONG BRIDGE.

DIRECT CLUE TO MURDERER

Stick With Which Crime Was Committed Easily Traced to Its Owner—Landlord of Claymore Tavern in the Toils—He Denies His Guilt.

"Last evening Shelby's clean record was blackened by outrageous crime. Some time after midnight a carter was driving home by Factory road, when, just as he was nearing Long bridge, he came upon the body of a man lying without movement and seemingly without life.

"Knowing that in all probability an hour might elapse before assistance could arrive in the shape of another passer-by, he decided to carry his story straight to Claymore tavern. It was fortunate his horses were headed that way instead of the other, or he might have missed seeing the skulking figure which slipped down into the ravine with a short cough, hurriedly choked back. He could not see the face or identify the figure, but he knew the cough. He had heard it a hundred times; and, saying to himself, 'That's John Scoville,' he whipped his horse up the hill and took the road to Claymore.

"And he was right. A dozen fellows started up at his call, but Scoville was not among them. He had been out for two hours; which, the carter having heard, he looked down, but said nothing except 'Come along, boys! I'll drive you to the turn of the bridge.'

"But just as they were starting Scoville appeared. He was hatless and disheveled and reeled heavily with liquor. He also tried to smile, which made the carter lean quickly down and with very little ceremony drag him up into the cart. So with Scoville amongst them they rode quickly back to the bridge, the landlord coughing, the men all grimly silent.

"One flash of the lantern told the dismal tale. The man was not only dead, but murdered. His forehead had been battered in with a knotted stick; all his pockets hung out empty; and from the general disorder of his dress it was evident that his watch had been torn away by a ruthless hand. But the face they failed to recognize till some people, running down from the upper town, where the alarm had by this time spread, sent up the shout of 'It's Mr. Etheridge! Judge Ostrander's great friend. Let some one run and notify the judge.'

"But the fact was settled long before the judge came upon the scene, and another fact, too. In beating the bushes they had lighted on a heavy stick. When it was brought forward and held under the strong light made by a circle of lanterns a big movement took place in the crowd. The stick had been recognized. Indeed, it was well known to all Claymore men. They had seen it in Scoville's hands a dozen times. Even he could not deny its ownership, explaining, 'I lost it in these woods this afternoon. I hadn't anything to do with this killing.'

"He had not been accused; but he found it impossible to escape after this, and at the instance of Coroner Haines he was carefully looked over and a small red ribbon found in one of his pockets. He was immediately put under arrest and taken to the city lockup.

A later paragraph:
"The detectives were busy this morning, going over the whole ground in the vicinity of the bridge.

"They were rewarded by two important discoveries. The impression of a foot in a certain soft place half-way up the bluff; and a small heap of fresh earth near by which, on being dug into, revealed the watch of the murdered man. The broken chain lay with it.

"The footprint has been measured. It coincides exactly with the shoe worn that night by the suspect." . . . "The prisoner continues to deny his guilt. The story he gives out is to the effect that he left the tavern some few minutes before seven o'clock, to look for his child, who had wandered into the ravine. He had his stick with him, for he never went out without it, but, finding it in his way, he leaned it against a tree.

"He crossed the bridge and took the path running along the edge of the ravine. In doing this he came upon the body of a man in the black recesses of the hollow, a man so evidently beyond all help that he would have hurried by without a second look if it had not been for the watch he saw lying on the ground close to the dead man's side.

"It was a very fine watch; it seemed better for him to take it into his own charge till he found some responsible person willing to carry it to police headquarters.

"He dashed into the woods, and, tearing up the ground with his hands, buried his booty in the loose soil, and made for home. Even then he had no intention of appropriating the watch, only of safeguarding himself, nor did he have any hand at all in the murder of Mr. Etheridge. This he would swear to; also, to the leaving of the stick where he said."

"Today John Scoville was taken to the tree where he insists he left his stick. The prisoner showed a sudden interest in the weapon and begged to see it closer. He pointed out where a splinter or two had been freshly whittled from the handle, and declared that no knife had touched it while it remained in his hands. But, as he had no evidence to support this statement, the impression made by this declaration is not likely to go far toward influencing public opinion in his favor."

Deborah sighed as she laid this clipping aside and took up another headed by a picture of her husband.

It was not an unhandsome face. Indeed, it was his good looks which had prevailed over her judgment in the early days of their courtship. Reuther had inherited her harmony of feature from him—the chiseled nose, the well-modeled chin and all the other physical graces which had made him a fine figure behind his bar. He had had no business worries; yet his temper was always uncertain. She had not often suffered from it herself, for her ascendancy over men extended even to him. But Reuther had shrunk before it more than once.

Was not the man who could bring his hand down upon so frail and exquisite a creature as Reuther was in those days capable of any act of violence? Yes; but in this case he had been guiltless. She could not but concede this even while yielding to extreme revulsion as she laid his picture aside.

The next slip she took up contained a eulogy of the victim.

"The sudden death of Algernon Etheridge has been in more than one sense a great shock to the community. Though a man of passive, rather than active qualities, his scholarly figure, long, lean and bowed, has been seen too often in our streets not to be missed, when thus suddenly withdrawn.

He Was Hatless and Disheveled.

"Why he should have become the target of Fate is one of the mysteries of life. His watch, which, aside from his books, was his most valuable possession, was the gift of Judge Ostrander. That it should be associated in any way with the tragic circumstances of his death is a source of the deepest regret to the unhappy donor."

This excerpt she hardly looked at; but the following she studied carefully:

"Judge Ostrander has from the first expressed a strong desire that some associate judge should be called upon to preside over the trial of John Scoville for the murder of Algernon Etheridge. But Judge Saunders' sudden illness and Judge Dole's departure for Europe have put an end to these hopes. Judge Ostrander will take his seat on the bench as usual next Monday. Fortunately for the accused, his well-known judicial mind will prevent any unfair treatment of the defense."

"The prosecution, in the able hands of District Attorney Foss, made all its points this morning. Unless the defense has some very strong plea in the background the verdict seems foredoomed. A dogged look has replaced the callous and indifferent sneer on the prisoner's face, and sympathy, if sympathy there is, is centered entirely upon the wife, the able, agreeable and bitterly humiliated landlady of Claymore tavern. She it is who has attracted the most attention during this trial, little as she seems to court it."

We omit further particulars which followed to save repetition; but they were carefully conned by Deborah Scoville. Also the following:

"The defense is in line with the statement already given out. The prisoner acknowledges taking the watch, but from motives quite opposed to those of thievery. Unfortunately he can produce no witnesses to substantiate his declaration that he had heard voices in the direction of the bridge while he was wandering the woods in search of his lost child. No evidence of any other presence there is promised or likely to be produced. It was thought that when his wife was called to the stand she might have something to say helpful to his case. She had been the one to ultimately find and lead home the child, and, silent as she had been up to this time, it has been thought possible that she might swear to having heard these voices also.

"But her testimony was very disappointing. She had seen nobody but the child, whom she had found playing with stones in the old ruin. Though by a close calculation of time she could not have been far from Dark Hollow at the instant of the crime, yet neither on direct or cross examination could anything more be elicited from her than what has been mentioned above. Nevertheless, we feel obliged to state that, irreproachable as her conduct was on the stand, the impression she made was, on the whole, whether intentionally or unintentionally, unfavorable to her husband.

"Some anxiety was felt during the morning session that an adjournment would have to be called, owing to some slight signs of indisposition on the part of the presiding judge. But he rallied very speedily, and the proceedings continued without interruption."

"Ah!"
The exclamation escaped the lips of Deborah Scoville as she laid this clipping aside. "I remember his appearance well. He had the ghost of one of those attacks, the full force of which I was witness to this morning. I am sure of this now, though nobody thought of it then. I happened to glance his way as I left the stand, and he was certainly for one minute without consciousness of himself or his surroundings. But it passed so quickly it drew little attention; not so the attack of today. What a mis-

Counting the Cost

"I OFTEN wonder," said a local merchant recently, "why our bill for toll calls isn't larger each month, when I stop long enough to consider the use we make of the telephone, both at the store and at home. There isn't a town where I do business but seems nearer to me than even next door. I can beat many competitors by selling my goods over the telephone before they can get there by train; I can get into every town in New England all in one day, tell about my stock, quote my prices, make my deals and sit right here with my eyes on the home store all the time. Most of the people I sell to like that way of doing business.

"As for the folks at home, they keep in touch with all their friends everywhere, and my daughter there at Wellesley isn't a bit lonely, for she has mothers counsel, and it's the same way with Bob in Boston.

"Do you think I would let that telephone out of my reach? No sirc! It's not only money in my pocket in my business, but we are in the center of a big world of real live people, just because we can call up any one, anywhere."

Weymouth Gazette

FRIDAY, APRIL 30, 1915

Did you plant that tree last Saturday, Arbor day? If you didn't, do it now. It doesn't have to be Arbor day you know, to do a good turn.

Some one has figured it out that $250,000,000 will be spent in this country the coming season by tourists who but for the foreign war would have traveled across the ocean and in foreign lands.

Dr. Felix von Luschau, a German scientist, has now traced the human race back 60,000 years but the majority of people would like to have him devote a little time to the present head of the German Empire and trace a reasonable excuse for the present war and failing to find the said excuse call a halt on the destruction of life and property.

The selectmen and fire engineers of Needham are now wrestling with the problem of getting convenient horses to draw apparatus to fires. Let us hope they will not wait until they have burned up a Town hall and other valuable public and private buildings but get a move on and equip themselves with a "get away quick" up-to-date motor apparatus. At the first sound of the alarm we are now on the road.

The deaths last week of Chief of Police Patrick Butler and George C. Torrey, will be seriously felt in all parts of Weymouth where the influence of these two men was a factor in nearly all important matters. The same energy, enthusiasm and ability with which they both grew to be successful in business life, was characteristic of all their relations, public or private, and the Town of Weymouth is a sad loser by the passing of two such sterling men.

The Massachusetts committee to Promote Work of which H. S. Dennison is the chairman, has been for many weeks quietly promulgating "repair now" propaganda, "repair now" being a first cousin of "paint-up" and "clean-up." However, the "repair now" proposition is not put forward so much on a hygienic and good-looks basis as it is on the maxim that "a stitch in time saves nine." Briefly, it means, have your spring work done now, while there is an abundance of labor. We believe that this is a grand good movement and why not combine this idea with "Clean-up week."

CORRECTION.

Through an error, it was published in this paper a few weeks ago, that the Choral Society concert would take place on Friday evening, May 9. The article should have read Sunday evening, May 9 instead.

D. A. R.

Susannah Tufts Chapter D. A. R. met at the house of Mrs. Harry Newman on Monday. After attending to the regular business of the chapter, Mrs. T. C. Crane, the regent, related some incidents of her recent trip to Washington, and then introduced Mrs. Richard L. Hunt, who read a very able paper on Russian art and music. Before beginning the paper, Mrs. Hunt made a short patriotic address in which she very gracefully alluded to the pleasant relations America had sustained, and in some cases, the debt of gratitude we owed, to some of our European neighbors. The autocratic manner in which the Russian church, for so many years, controlled the artistic and musical life of the nation was described, and then the gradual opportunity for a freer expression of the ideas of that great people. Mrs. Newman, played upon the Angelus, three selections of modern Russian music by Rubinstein, and Szechaikowsky, and by way of contrast played the always popular Brahms Hungarian Dance. After the reading of the paper, the hostess served refreshments and a social hour followed.

BOY SCOUT NOTES.

New Troop at North Weymouth.

On Monday evening of this week, in the vestry of the Pilgrim church, a new Troop of Boy Scouts of America was organized, with Rev. Charles Clark, scout master; Leonard Aldrich, scout leader; George Aiken, patrol leader and Arthur A. Alden, Jr., secretary. Mrs. Margaret Culley and Mrs. Eliza Ferris of Reynolds W. R. C. gave the troop an American flag, the presentation being made by Commander Culley of Post 58, G. A. R. A troop flag, with name and number, was the gift of some of the members of the Pilgrim Brotherhood. Troop 1 of Quincy gave an exhibition of first-class scout work.

Troop 2, East Weymouth.

At the last meeting, Wilbert Comeau, George Chalmers, Emery Millett and Clarence Wyman received the tenderfoot initiation and came through with flying colors.

It was voted to purchase four maps of Weymouth and surrounding towns. These maps are issued by the U. S. government and give in detail the streets, etc., of the different towns.

The Hound, Buffalo, Eagle and Lion patrols have completed a tree census of East Weymouth. This has been done at the request of the Forestry Department of the State. The village was laid off by streets and each patrol was given certain streets to cover, finding the number of shade trees on each. The number of miles was also counted.

Tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon, the Scout Master will take the troop to the Navy Yard at Charlestown. Scouts will leave on the 12:49 train from East Weymouth station.

Every Woman Should Know

There are three entirely different kinds of baking powder, namely:

- (1) Cream of tartar, derived from grapes;
- (2) Alum, a mineral acid; and
- (3) Phosphate of Lime.

(1) Baking Powders made of Cream of Tartar add to the food the same healthful qualities that exist in the ripe grapes from which Cream of Tartar is derived.

(2) Baking Powders made of Alum add to the food some form of Alum or Aluminum, a heavy metal, wholly foreign to any natural article of food.

(3) Phosphate of Lime is made from rock or by burning bones which by chemical action are changed into a white, powdered acid. It is used in baking powder only because it is a cheaper substitute.

A Cream of Tartar powder never contains Alum or Phosphate.

Every housekeeper should read the names of the ingredients printed on the label and know what she is using.

Babies." Harry was in his ever present fine form and drew a fine hand from his host of friends in the hall. "Slumming in Chinatown," by M. T. Gallant, came next, and then the applause burst forth for Weymouth's highly popular minstrel star, "Alie" Gardner. After singing "When Uncle Elias Dances the Turkey Trot" and giving several encores, "Alie" showed that he can do other things besides cut meat, by giving a bang up tamborine solo. The next selection was given by J. A. Sullivan. It was a Dutch specialty, and a better looking Dutchman than Mr. Sullivan was, cannot be imagined. He was assisted in his sketch by Miss Margaret Grant, Miss Laura Batchelder, Miss Marion Ferris, Miss Nellie Muese, Miss Alice Hurley, Miss Hazel Mammel, Miss Margaret Kelly and Miss Grace Carleton.

A minstrel show without a topical song would never make a hit in this town, so, of course, one had to be introduced last week at this show. Harry and "Milt" Richmond did the honors, and they did them to perfection. The finale followed this number and the big Moose show was a matter of record.

The entire show sparkled with humor and many "knocks" and "slams" were bandied out. Among the prominent people in town who got hit by the jokesmiths were: Dan Reddy, Lewis Beach, Peter Gallant, Fred Burrell, Horace Randall, Dr. Jenkins, George Mitchell, George Lamrock, D. J. Horgan, Bert Cushing, John Maynard, T. J. White, Abe Russo, our new Chief of Police, A. H. Pratt, and others.

Special mention is due Mr. Perkins, the pianist, for his fine work. He was with his soloists every minute and worked like a beaver from start to make the show one grand success.

The stage was tastefully decorated for the event with ferns, cut flowers and colored lights. The floral decorations were by A. A. Spear and Paul Lundy looked after the electric effects.

The most enjoyable event was under the personal direction of Ralph Hawkes, the well known minstrel show director of Rockland. The committee of arrangements included T. E. Boyle, J. V. Richards, C. R. Perkins, H. L. Cann, J. W. French, F. E. Burrell, A. T. Blanchard, W. W. Farrer and Luther C. Hayden. Thomas Boyle was stage manager.

The entire performance went off without a hitch and the "Howdy Pap" boys are to be congratulated on the fine success recorded.

South Shore Morning Musicals Club.

On Thursday, April 22nd, the South Shore Musicals Club held its first Gentlemen's Night Concert at the home of one of its members, Mrs. Helen Allen Hunt of Weymouth. A delightful program, including organ and piano numbers by Miss Clapp and Miss Raymond and violin numbers by Mrs. Clark; songs by Mrs. Hollis and Mr. John Chipman, and Vincent D'Indy's cantata, "St. Mary Magdalene," by Mrs. Hunt and chorus. The club was assisted by John Chipman, tenor, and Miss Lida Low, accompanist.

The club has decided to start an associate list and anyone desiring to become an associate member may communicate with Miss Clapp, 27 Front street, or any other active member.

CARD OF THANKS.

No one but those who have been called upon to pass through the trying ordeal knows what it is to part with a loving husband and father at a moment's notice with no note of warning.

No one but those who have come in touch with it in time of sore affliction and deep grief knows what real human sympathy is and in a single hour we learned both, the sorrow and the heart of sympathy.

We would not here dwell upon our loss and grief but feel we must say a word in regard to human friendship which comes to us in large measures.

As long as memory shall last there will linger with us the tears that mingled with ours, the hushed breath and tender words, the helping hands which were reached out to us, the beautiful floral tributes of love and esteem which came from individual friends and organized comrades, each and all taught that though bereaved we were not alone. For this we take this opportunity to thank all of those who ministered to us in our sorrow and taught us more of the great lesson of human sympathy.

Travel Club Contest

will be overlooked. Not a single interesting spot will be passed by unnoticed by the guests of this paper.

Another salient feature lies in the fact that complete arrangements will be made for transporting the Travel Club from one place to another, that they will suffer no fatigue, and will surely enjoy the delightful panorama constantly being unfolded before them, with all the comforts that money and influence can secure.

It will be one great event for several women of this vicinity and there is no suitable reason why any person should not try. It costs absolutely nothing but a little effort and the reward is sufficient to repay one for some very strenuous work. The contest has just begun and any live candidate can forge to the front now, with a few hours canvassing among her friends. The coupons count some so each subscriber should clip the one appearing in their paper and get it to this office before it expires to be counted for some one in the race. It won't cost you anything and may be the means of helping someone to procure the much to be desired trip.

And, readers of the WEYMOUTH GAZETTE, do not forget when paying a subscription at the office or other place to ask for the votes for some of the workers. It means much to the candidates. If you have a girl in mind whom you would like to see profit by the offering of the contest, announce her name NOW, and then assist her to win some of the valuable prizes.

Candidates, your field is large. The WEYMOUTH GAZETTE should be in every home, and few indeed are the people, rightly approached who would refuse you a subscription. There are many new subscribers that may be had for the asking. At any rate it will pay each candidate to keep earnestly at it and corral all the votes possible as no one ever won by any too large a total. Better have a few thousand too many than fall short by a few.

There are some mailing cards at this office for the contestants' use, and any who do not receive them right away will confer a favor by notifying the office. Better get busy, call and get as many as you want. The cards are printed ready for the signature of the contestant and if mailed out to some of your friends whom you may not be able to see may be the means of securing many thousand counters.

FARM POULTRY

GETTING MOST FROM TURKEY

If Fowls Are Tame They Will Lay in Improvised Nests—Confine Poultry in a Dry Place.

About the last of February, place some old barrels on their sides, with straw or leaves in them, around in good places, with a few hens' eggs in them, and, says a writer in Farmer's Guide, if your turkeys are tame they will lay in the nests you have fixed for them, and you will have very little trouble hunting nests.

While the weather is cool bring in the eggs before they are chilled, and if they are turned every day you can save them until all the hens are through the first laying, then set one or two, and put the balance under chicken hens, giving all the poultry to the turkey hens, letting the other turkeys sit after second laying, as the third laying is too late to make good turkeys. When the eggs begin to hatch watch them to see that the shells do not get slipped over some of the other eggs and smother the little turks.

After the eggs are all hatched leave the mother alone as long as she will stay in the nest. Then confine her with the poultry in a coop until they have learned her call, as they will follow anything off the first day or two.

After they get strong on their legs, let the mother out after the dew is off the grass, and let her take her babies for a stroll to catch insects, but be sure they are back in their coop before sundown. I never really confine the poultry after the first day, except while it is raining, but confine the hens and let the little ones go in and out of the coops at will.

I feed corn bread and curds with black pepper sprinkled on them, and feed all they will clean up, at least every two hours, and often when the weather is so they have to be confined. There is a great deal written about feeding young turkeys, and it seems to be the easiest way out of it, when anyone loses turkeys, to tell them they have been feeding too much. But I think it could be often traced to lice, for with good sweet feed properly fed, it is impossible to feed too much on free range, for they can eat but little at a time, and with their rapid growth and feathering, they cannot make fine birds when they are stunted for feed.

LITTLE HINTS ABOUT DUCKS

Necessary That Quarters Be Dry at All Times—Young Fowls Require Fairly Damp Mash.

Although ducks will spend a great deal of time in the water if it is always accessible, when they return to their quarters they require a perfectly dry place.

The straw or litter, which should always be cut fine, must be removed as soon as it becomes damp or filthy. Care in this matter will prevent weakness of the legs and other troubles.

Do not feed young ducks dry food. They require a fairly damp mash until they are about a month old. The first few meals will consist of stale bread, moistened with a little milk and mixed with a very small portion of fine grit.

After the fifth or sixth day a little finely chopped, well cooked meat should be added to the duckling's rations.

Cooked Meat is Beneficial.

Poultry, especially when confined, are benefited by an occasional feed of cooked meat. For this purpose lean meat that will divide readily into fibers resembling small worms is very tempting to fowls. But do not give much fat meat. It is muscle and bone and feather-making material that they need, and fat meat supplies none of these, while lean meat contains them all.

Glass in Poultry House.

You can have too much glass in your poultry house, both winter and summer, for in summer glass concentrates the heat and holds it until far into the night, and in winter the glass gathers frost and freezes everything near it.

Muslin Replaces Glass.

Muslin windows are rapidly replacing some of the glass windows in every up-to-date poultry house. They will not answer exclusively in all climates but they should be used with the glass.

fortune rests upon this man. Will they let him continue on the bench when his full condition is known? These were her thoughts, as she recalled that day and compared it with the present.

There were other slips, which she read. The fate of the prisoner was in the hands of the jury. The possibility suggested by the defense made no appeal to men who had the unfortunate prisoner under their eye at every stage of the proceedings. The shifty eye, the hangdog look, outweighed the plea of his counsel and the call for strict impartiality from the bench. He was adjudged guilty of murder in the first degree, and sentence called for.

This was the end; and as she read these words the horror which overwhelmed her was infinitely greater than when she heard them uttered in that fatal courtroom. For then she regarded him as guilty and deserving his fate, and now she knew him to be innocent.

When her eyelids finally obeyed the dictates of her will the first glimmering rays of dawn were beginning to scatter the gloom of her darkened chamber!

Years Ago This Week.

Forty-four years ago.

At the annual meeting of the Weymouth and Braintree Fire District held at the Amazon Engine hall last Monday evening the treasurer reported a surplus of funds on hand, and no tax levy will be required this year. The following officers were elected for the year: clerk and treasurer, Elias Richards; prudential committee, R. A. Hunt, E. G. Hunt, L. W. Hobart; assessors, Elias Richards, E. S. Hunt, John Binney; collector, Elias Richards; chief engineer, Joshua Binney; assistant engineers, N. M. Hobart, William S. Wallace, S. W. Guttererson.

The thunder storm of last Saturday was one of unusual severity, the heavy rolls of thunder jarred buildings very perceptibly, while the lightning appeared to fill the atmosphere. Fortunately the storm passed away with no serious damage, though the M. E. church at East Weymouth and the dwelling of Rev. Fr. Smith of the Catholic church received slight visitations of the electric fluid. A workman in a crimping shop at the Landing was stunned and a pair of pliers knocked out of his hands.

Thirty-seven years ago.

The fishery at Great Pond will be opened to the members of the South Weymouth Piscatorial association on Wednesday of next week. As the association numbers about 370 stockholders, a large attendance of anglers is expected, and good sport will no doubt be found among the black bass.

The committee of twenty chosen at the annual town meeting to consider the subject of a division of the town, and report at some subsequent meeting, held a session at the Town house last Tuesday afternoon, and eighteen of the number were found to be in favor of division. A sub-committee was chosen to concert the necessary measures for division, and fix the lines for four towns.

The dissatisfaction of the members of Rocket Engine Co. of East Weymouth with their tub, has become so pronounced that the subject will be taken into consideration at the special town meeting next Thursday, and an effort will then be made to procure a more serviceable machine.

In regard to the article of the warrant calling for other engines, the opinion, as generally expressed among the members of the companies, is that the Amazon, Active, Conqueror and Gen. Putnam, are very satisfactory machines.

Considerable anxiety is being felt by the summer residents at Fort Point and Rose Cliff as to which of the two resorts will be seized first when the Spaniards sail up the river.

The Columbia Rubber Company have given up their business in this place, and sold their machinery to the Washburn & Meon Company of Worcester, Mass. The machinery is being shipped to that place. This will throw about fifty hands out of employment.

Next Wednesday evening will be held at the Congregational church a "Jubilee Rally" to celebrate the paying off of the mortgages which for some time have rested upon the parsonage and church building. An interesting order of service has been arranged.

The board of selectmen at the meeting Monday made the following appointments: liquor officers, Thomas Fitzgerald and Patrick Butler; night police, N. B. Pearce, James T. Pease and Michael Allen; engineers of fire department, William O. Collier, Edward Fahey, J. Rupert Walsh, William Hocking and Otis Cushing.

A Spanish war rally.—On Saturday night at 7 o'clock the business men will throw the national colors, the stars and stripes to the breeze at Jackson square amid red fire and rockets. At 6.30 the school children will assemble at the Franklin school and march to the square and arriving at the flag will sing several patriotic selections, "The Star Spangled Banner," etc., assisted by cornetist Fred H. Pratt and Miss Annie Powers, soloist. W. C. Earle has perfected all arrangements.

Famous Products of Cyprus.
Cyprus gave its name to the metal copper. For it was from this island that the Romans got their supplies of the metal, which they knew as "Cyprium aes," or, for short, "Cyprium." In Latin "cuprum." Another famous product of the island was a tree—not the cypress, which has nothing to do with Cyprus, but the "cyprus," from which a valuable oil was made. But it is better worth remembering as "gopher," the Hebrew name of the wood of which Noah's ark was built.—London Chronicle.

After Half A Century

By JOHN TURNLEE

One morning when John Merton of Chicago awoke and looked out through his front window he noticed some men digging in a vacant lot opposite. He was seized with trepidation lest some objectionable building was to be erected on the lot and, dressing himself, went out to make inquiries. He learned that the lot had been sold and the owner was about to erect on it a soap factory.

Mr. Merton at once sought the man and secured an option on the lot at a substantial profit to the latter. Then he visited several of his neighbors, proposing that they should club together and protect the locality by buying the lot. Only one person, a man named Gawtry, was willing or perhaps able to make such an investment, and he and Merton became the owners. By agreement they put the property in the hands of a trust company, to be divided among the heirs of the third generation, or the grandchildren of the two owners. The Mertons were to have the north half and the Gawtrys the south half.

Twenty years later, both Merton and Gawtry being dead and the part of the city in which the lot lay having become used for business, the trustees leased the lot for thirty years, and a store building was erected upon it. By the terms of the lease at its expiration the building was to belong to the owner of the lot.

Meanwhile the descendants of the joint owners had become scattered, the trust company's directors and officers had been changed, and there was no descendant of either Merton or Gawtry who knew about the lot, for which but $800 had been paid by the two purchasers.

One day an advertisement appeared for grandchildren of the late John Merton and Samuel Gawtry. It elicited no response and was repeated from time to time for a year, when it met the eyes of a young bank clerk named Spencer in a western city. His father and mother were dead, but he knew that his mother's maiden name was Merton. He wrote to the advertiser and received a printed statement setting forth the facts in the case of the Merton-Gawtry lot. Spencer, convinced that the John Merton named was his grandfather, investigated the case and, after a long hunt, found that he was the only living grandchild of the said Merton and consequently heir to the north half of the property.

No response to the advertisement whatever came from the Gawtry side, and no division could be made of the lot and building until the heirs in this family were found. John Spencer, desirous of coming into what was a fortune, at once made it his business to hunt up these heirs. He began at the fountainhead, making inquiries as to the first and second generations of Gawtrys, and learned that a son of Samuel Gawtry had settled in Detroit.

Spencer went to Detroit, where he learned that the widow of Samuel Gawtry of the second generation was living in straitened circumstances. Not wishing to excite false hopes in this person, he made inquiries in a roundabout way and learned that the original Gawtry had had several children, but the only living grandchild was Marian Gawtry, daughter of the widow he had found. Having proceeded thus far, Spencer returned to Chicago and reported his find to the trust company and left its officers to satisfy themselves that he (Spencer) and Marian Gawtry were the heirs to the property in question and, this done, to give each heir a half.

One morning Miss Marian Gawtry, when about to go to her school duties, took a letter from the postman informing her that the Trust company of Chicago was ready to convey to her one-half of a certain lot and building in that city bequeathed to her by her grandfather, Samuel Gawtry. She referred the matter to her mother, who said she had never heard of her father owning such property. He had left Chicago forty years before, a poor man. Miss Gawtry put the matter down as a mistake and, proceeding to school, thought no more about it.

One evening she received a call from a young man named Spencer. He was about to mention the fact that she was an heiress when it occurred to him that since there was a building on the property there might be difficulty in dividing it and it would be better that they should own it together. But he was an honorable fellow and scorned to win her knowing that she was an heiress. "Miss Gawtry," he said, "I have come to Detroit to inform you that you are joint owner with me of a lot and building in Chicago worth in all half a million dollars."

The young lady, remembering the former information she had received on this subject, coolly remarked: "That's a mistake. My mother says her father owned no such property in Chicago."

"Will you marry me if what I tell you is true?"

"If you can convince me that I am worth the sum you name I'll marry you!"

Spencer eventually proved his case and held her to her promise. Since they had been mutually pleased with each other and a division of the property was hard to effect Miss Gawtry was by no means loath to keep it.

All of which goes to show that our fates are often determined by small matters.

A New Back for an Old One—How a Weymouth Resident Made a Bad Back Strong.

The back aches at times with a dull indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame that to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply plaster to the back if the kidneys are weak. You cannot reach the cause. Follow the example of this Weymouth citizen.

Calvin D. Packard, 143 Washington St., Weymouth, says: "My kidney secretions passed too frequently and annoyed me at night. I suffered from pain across my back and felt tired nearly all the time. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. In a short time I could see a marked improvement, and I continued using this remedy until I was relieved. I have Doan's Kidney Pills on hand, and occasional use keeps me in good shape. You may continue to publish my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills as in the past."

Price 50 cents, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Packard had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Fruit Growers of Massachusetts.

Are you spraying at the right time? Are you spraying at all? Are you killing the bees which set the fruit for you?

These are important questions. There is no doubt that by spraying in the right way at the right times you can greatly increase your crops and your profits. Are you doing this?

The Bud Moth begins its work just as buds begin to open. Spray with arsenate of lead paste, three pounds (or one and one-half pounds powdered arsenate of lead) in fifty gallons of water just before the buds open.

Spraying just after the blossoms have fallen gives better protection from the apple worm; saves the bees and sets more fruit.

Spray again about the 20th or 25th of June, as the eggs of the apple worm will soon hatch and the little worms feed somewhat on the leaves before going to the fruit. Spraying at this time gets large numbers of the worms before they even reach the fruit.

In pears the top of the cup does not close, so that spraying there can be put off until the apple spraying has been finished. It is the best policy never to spray any plant while it is in blossom.

Further details in regard to spraying will be found in circular No. 2, "Insecticides, Fungicides and Directions for their use." This will be sent to anyone applying for it to the State Board of Agriculture, State House, Boston.

Better Paint

Better paint this year if your property needs it. Mistaken men have been waiting for paint to come down. The cost of their job has gone up not down; it always goes up by waiting; never comes down.

Better paint than Devco? There isn't any. Suppose one had waited 20 or 30 years ago for a better paint than Devco; how long would he have waited? How long would he still have to wait?

The price a gallon makes some difference; yes, but much; it's the paint that counts; the quality counts. It's the go-for that counts. Protection of property counts more yet. Better paint.

DEVCO

Everett Loud, East Weymouth; M. R. Loud & Co., South Weymouth, and A. J. Siddinger, North Weymouth sell it.

Origin of Japanese.

It is, of course, impossible to be precise upon the subject of the origin of the Japanese people. They may have come originally from China or Malaysia, or from any one of a dozen other regions. It is certain that they are an amalgamation of several different races, but beyond this all is guesswork—as is the case of the origin of every other race of men.

By J. E. Fabyan.

I see by a newspaper report that "Ken" Nash the town's sterling representative and star ball tosser has been released to Montreal by the St. Louis Cards, with whom he played last year. Ken made good alright with the Huggins outfit but his refusing to report until the legislative session closed put him in "Dutch" with the scrappy little St. Louis leader. Under Manager Dan Howley of this town, Nash should make a great record with Montreal aggregation and I am told that Ken is due to report about May 15, if his duties at the State House will so permit. Leave it to Ken however not to make his get-away until the proper time, that isn't his way to do business, his heart and soul goes into everything he undertakes. I wish you all kinds of luck Ken up north with my friend "Handsome" Dan Howley.

Brookline was sure some lucky to cop that game last Saturday. One very apparent weakness with the Weymouth boys however is their inability to hit. Better get a good pitcher around a few days boys and practice up on the batting. You will need it if you hope to land the pennant in the South Shore league this spring. Callahan pitched excellent ball last Saturday, but he can't win if your other fellows don't get a few runs for you.

BOSTON PIN TOURNAMENT AT END AT NORFOLK CLUB

The Norfolk club have just flushed one of the closest Boston pin tournaments in the club's history. The result not being decided until the last game of the season. Up to last Thursday night Capt. Abbott's team 3 was leading the race with Capt. Alfred Loud's team 8 second. The last game of the season was between Capt. A. T. Loud's team 8 and Capt. F. E. Loud's team 2. It was necessary for Capt. Loud's team 8 to take 3 points to tie Capt. Abbott's leaders and 4 to win the race which team 8 did, Capt. A. T. Loud's team getting 1384 to Capt. F. E. Loud's team 1355. Frank Loud was high man with a single of 126 and 3 string total off 336. Capt. A. T. Loud, Geo. Marshall, Chas. Torrey and Archie Blanchard were the members of the winning team. They won 37 games and lost 19.

Weymouth Shuts Out Dedham.

In a one-sided contest, in which the W. H. S. boys batted at will, the Dedham H. S. nine met defeat at the hands of the Weymouth High School Team on the C. M. A. field, East Weymouth, Wednesday afternoon, by the score of 8 to 0. Louie Callahan's pitching was the feature.

Weymouth Defeats Newton.

On last Thursday afternoon Weymouth High defeated Newton High, 3-2 in a well played game. Newton has one of the strongest teams around Boston, and they had defeated all comers until they met Weymouth. Dwyer pitched for Weymouth, and the brand of ball pitched by that boy was remarkable. Weymouth team, as a whole, played a fine game.

Brookline, 2; Weymouth, 1.

On the C. M. A. field, East Weymouth, last Saturday afternoon, the Weymouth High boys lost to the Brookline High team, 2 to 1 in an interesting game. Callahan pitched fine ball, but a misplayed fly allowed the Brookline boys, two runs, enough to land the game.
